INSPECTOR ASKS PUNISHMENT OF 9 POLICEMEN IN JUNE LYTZ CASE

Mishandling of Murder Inquiry, Lax Enforcement Alleged — Only One Linked With Report of Pay-Offs.

Disciplinary action against Capt. William Pleitner, Lt. John Sieloff and six other officers for alleged infractions of police department regulations has been recommended by Police Inspector James F. Thompson to the Board of Police Commissioners as a result of his investigation of the June Alma Lytz massage parlor case, the Post-Dispatch was told yesterday.

Thompson's recommendations are based on phases of the case having no direct connection with reports of pay-offs by brothel operators to some policemen, it was learned, but include alleged lax law enforcement, mishandling of the investigation of Mrs. Lytz's murder and related subjects.

More serious charges involving alleged pay-offs were made against another high-ranking officer whose dismissal from the force was recommended by Thompson. The officer was a key figure in the grand jury inquiry into the alleged pay-offs, but no indictment was returned against him.

Meeting Tomorrow.

The Board of Police Commissioners will consider the recommendations at a meeting tomorrow. Thompson's report was given to the board at its July 2 meeting.

The officers against whom disciplinary action was recommended are, in addition to Capt. Pleitner and Lt. Sieloff, Detective Sgt. William Ferie, Sgts. Walter Lange and Edmond Duther, Detectives James Raymond and Richard C. Windhorst and Cpl. Henry Anthonis.

Basis of the recommendation for disciplinary action against Capt. Pleitner, now serving as an aid to Chief of Police Jeremiah O'Connell, was his alleged failure to take action against the brothel while he commanded the Ninth District in 1953, 1954 and 1955.

In a written statement to Thompson, it was learned, Capt. Pleitner said he had no knowledge of rive raids made on the brothel by the morality squad during his period of command. He indicated he did not know Mrs. Lytz's place was operating.

Other Criticisms.

Disciplinary action was recommended against the other officers for these reasons:

Lt. Sieloff, who was acting commander of the Ninth District in the absence of Capt. Pleitner on the day Mrs. Lytz was killed, was named by the Inspector for poor supervisory judgment in his handling of the investigation of her murder.

Thompson criticized Sieloff, the Post-Dispatch was told, because he failed to assign officers of higher rank than patrolman to the case. Instead, he sent two special officers who allegedly made a slipshod search of the brothel and did not gather and mark evidence properly.

Detectives Windhorst and Raymond were the special officers. Their efforts to inquire into the killing were viewed with special criticism because the murder was unsolved at the time they went to the brothel.

Records kept by Mrs. Lytz of her activities, considered important leads in the pay-off investigation, were permitted to pass out of police hands without careful inspection. Two books, containing listings of amounts of money and individuals, later were found in possession of Public Administrator Thomas Brady and an appointment book was traced to Mrs. Litz's attorney, who obtained it from Brady.

One of the books was found

7 DIXIE CHAIRMEN FAVOR HOLDING PRE-CONVENTION CAUCUS OF SOUTH

Name Group to Work With Any Others for Solidarity — Express Opposition to Any Bolts or Third Parties.

By SAM B. ARMSTRONG
National Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ATLANTA, Ga., July 14.—A caucus of southern leaders, to be held before the Democratic national convention, was urged today by Democratic state chairmen of seven southern states. They concluded a two-day conference here today after protracted closed sessions at which the question of party planks on civil rights and school integration was discussed.

Those who would be invited to attend the caucus would include the state governors, the chairmen and vice chairmen of state delegations to the national convention, and members of the convention Platform and Resolutions Committee.

In a conciliatory statement, the state party chairmen emphasized that "we do not favor any bolts, walkouts or third parties," and declared that they expected to accomplish a meeting of the minds with northern Democrats "within the framework of the Democratic party."

Unity Believed Essential.

"We believe," the southern chairmen said, "that party unity is important to every section of the country and is essential and necessary for Democratic victory in November. We believe that a Democratic victory is a necessity for the nation, and that the inept Republican Administration should be removed from the White House."

The group meeting here appointed a committee to "coordinate our suggestions with any other meeting looking toward southern solidarity and thereby obtain unity of action and procedure." This committee presumably would have the task of organizing the caucus before the Platform and Resolutions Committee begins its hearings at Chicago Aug. 6, a week before the Democratic national convention convenes there.

Chairman of the committee is John Sammons Bell of Georgia. Other members are Herbert S. Walters of Tennessee and Neville Bennett of South Carlonia. It was Bennett who organized the Atlanta conference at the urging of Gov. George Bell Timmerman Jr. of South Carolina.

Critic of Supreme Court.

Gov. Timmerman has been an outspoken critic of the United States Supreme Court's decision declaring racial segregation in schools unconstitutional, and he initiated state legislation to evade the law.

Democratic State Chairman Bennett was a party "regular" both in 1948, when Strom Thurmond of South Carolina was the Dixiecrat candidate for President and in 1952 when South Caroline advocates of states' rights voted to support General Eisenhower. Gov. Timmerman took no active part in either campaign.

The Atlanta caucus issued a statement in which it said that the meeting represented "the section which is traditionally the most loyal of all in the nation to the Democratic party." The statement also said:

"Nearly four years of a Republican administration with its records of broken promises to farmers and others, indifference to other domestic problems, its failure to keep up with the demands of national security, and its favoritism to big business, coupled with its total lack of interest in small business, affords the Democratic party an opportunity for victory in the coming November election. We expect to work loyally toward that victory.

Alert to Danger of Split.

"Those who would defeat us would first seek to divide our Democratic party. With this in mind, we have met to consider the elements of possible division within the party, hoping to contribute toward harmony in the national convention.

"The difficulties arising from our differences are not insurmountable; on our part, we recognize the problems and political necessities of other states; we insist that they, in turn, recognize ours. We urge responsible Democratic leadership everywhere to work toward this end.

"The Southern states are gravely concerned over the invasion of the sovereign rights of the states and the departures from the constitutional guarantees upon which our country was founded and became great. The people of the Southern states look to and expect the Democratic party leadership in our respective states to stand firmly, calmly, intelligently and with determined resolve to protect these rights.

"We believe in and indorse the proposal for Southern solidarity at the Democratic national convention. We believe that the South should work together to protect itself and to preserve the rights of the states and of the people as guaranteed by the Constitution

RADFORD EFFORT TO SLASH FORCES STIRS SERVICES TO RENEW FEUD

Dispute Will Confront Eisenhower This Week—Involves Joint Strategic Plan for 3 Years.

By ANTHONY LEVIERO
The New York Times News Service.
(Copyright, 1956, by The New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON, July 14 — When the President returns to the White House early next week he will be confronted with an interservice dispute more profound than the row that engaged his attention in May.

The New York Times learned that the Joint Chiefs of Staff had planned to see President Eisenhower at Gettysburg late this week. They were to present the joint strategic objectives plan, 1960, a new look three years ahead, comparable to the famous three-year "new look" of the fall of 1953.

But an effort by Adm. Arthur W. Radford, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, to impose a concept involving a cut in the armed forces of approximately 800,000 men by 1960 and withdrawal of the bulk of United States forces overseas caused the chiefs of the Army, Navy and the Air Force to object violently.

The result was that high Defense Department officials intervened to prevent public disclosure of the dispute, if possible. The trip to Gettysburg was canceled and action on the plan postponed until after election day.

Review by President Awaited.

It was assumed in official quarters that the President will look into the new dispute either when Adm. Radford pays his weekly call or in next week's National Security Council meeting.

Meanwhile, the Times received assurance from Defense Department sources that its published account of the dispute was entirely accurate. The story referred to a memorandum embodying Radford's radical concept and some of his other strategic views.

Yesterday Radford issued a statement stating the dispatch was "a mixture of fact and pure speculation," but acknowledging that the "introduction of new weapons" might ultimately make possible a reduction in military manpower.

Defense Department spokesmen have sought to minimize the dispute by telling some reporters that the memorandum was really a staff paper prepared at a low level. The fact was that Radford did not deny the existence of the memorandum, which is labeled "top secret," and bears his name, nor did he deny the chiefs of the Army, the Navy and the Air Force revolted against it.

New Details.

Today came this more detailed summary of what had occurred:

The joint strategic objectives plan normally was to have been completed by June 30, end of fiscal year 1956, give or take a week or two. Work had started on it about two months ago. In outlining the basic objectives for it, Radford carried further the concept of main reliance on nuclear airpower as a deterrent to war and the decided Eisenhower Administration trend to push the development of new weapons and reduce military manpower.

Radford informed his three colleagues he had President Eisenhower's general approval for his outline, though the chiefs entertained doubts.

The service chiefs accordingly planned, and came back within the last 10 days with estimates of the forces and funds they would need. There were no disagreements among them, and essentially their plans called for programs fixed around the levels estimated for June 30, 1957, with its forces totaling 2,865,258.

Ordered Reductions.

Radford received these estimates, expressed his displeasure and told the chiefs to reduce them. He told them that if they did not he would give them his own views. The chiefs waited. The result was the memorandum that reached them last weekend. Only an extremely limited number of copies of the top secret paper were sent to the services, and with instructions prohibiting the making of copies.

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chief of staff of the Army, Adm. Arleigh Burke, chief of naval operations, and Gen. Nathan F. Twining, Air Force chief of staff, sent in their objections last Monday and the civilian chiefs of the Defense Department decided, with memories of the open outbreak between the Army and the Air Force in May, that it was too hot to handle at a time when the presidential campaign was warming up.

The dispute of May, while serious in revealing the deep split over the all-out nuclear war concept, involved essentially abstract problems and ideas. But the one now posed for President Eisenhower was the shape of national military, and indirectly foreign, policy in the next three years.

The question that has now

EISENHOWER AND NIXON MAP CAMPAIGN, DISCUSS FOREIGN AID BILL CUTS

Eisenhower's Recovery Is Still Not Complete, Doctors Report

Their Bulletin Is Optimistic but Indicates He Isn't Ready for Normal Work Schedule.

By a Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., July 14 —President Eisenhower's physicians gave him another optimistic medical report today but added that he has not completed his convalescence.

In a medical bulletin issued as Mr. Eisenhower ended his fifth week of recuperation from a major abdominal operation, the doctors indicated they did not think he was ready for a normal work schedule.

They gave no hint of when he will be able to resume the full duties of his office, although they said he had increased his activities and work load.

The bulletin said Mr. Eisenhower's condition "continues to progress very satisfactorily" and his recovery has "gained momentum."

It added, however, that he had not gained any weight in five weeks of convalescence. There was no sign that the physicians were concerned about this.

The President's return to Washington, expected in the next few days, "should not signify that his convalescent period has been completed," the doctors said.

This indicated the recovery would take at least six weeks. When Mr. Eisenhower left the hospital last June 30, his physicians said four to six weeks of convalescence would be required.

Technically at least, the President may still be a convalescent when he flies to Panama City next Friday for a meeting of the chiefs of state of American nations.

Mr. Eisenhower's weight loss has been noticeable to reporters who have seen him in Gettysburg. He weighed 162 pounds after the operation, compared with his normal 168 to 172. He gained one pound shortly after the operation and has stayed at 163 pounds since then, despite a diet designed to build up his strength and weight.

The weekend medical bulletin

VICE PRESIDENT SAYS THEY DIDN'T TALK ABOUT HIS RENOMINATION

That Is Up to G.O.P. Convention, He Insists — Other Measures Before Congress Also Considered.

By JAMES DEAKIN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., July 14. —President Eisenhower discussed politics with Vice President Richard M. Nixon today, but Nixon said later his "possible candidacy" for renomination was not brought up.

Nixon, who had not seen Mr. Eisenhower for almost a month, chatted with him for an hour and 15 minutes on a variety of subjects, including his recent Asiatic trip and the administration's legislative program.

The political discussion Nixon said, was brief and concerned only Mr. Eisenhower's campaign plans. He refused to give any details, saying it would be "quite foolish" to tip off strategy in advance.

In an airport interview before he returned to Washington, Nixon was asked if the subject of his candidacy came up in the meeting at the President's farm home.

"No, we did not discuss my possible candidacy," he replied.

Reporters were curious about the word, "possible." Did it imply there was some doubt he would win renomination? they asked.

No One Runs for It.

Nixon replied that there was an old saying that no one runs for the vice presidency, because the second spot on the ticket is up to the presidential nominee and the national convention.

He said he was still "available" for renomination but that it would be "presumptuous" for him to assume it was his for the asking.

Later, however, Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty told reporters it was his personal opinion Nixon would be Mr. Eisenhower's running mate this fall.

Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall said earlier this week Mr. Eisenhower had made it "absolutely" clear he was still pleased to have Nixon as the vice presidential nominee.

Nixon, however, would only repeat today what he said after his return from the far eastern trip, when he told reporters his decision to seek renomination remained unchanged in view of Mr. Eisenhower's announcement that he is still in the race.

The Vice President's reluctance to say anything stronger than that led reporters to ask him if he though there were any other candidates for the second spot.

Heard of No Others.

"I would say there is always that possibility," Nixon answered. But he added with a smile: "I have heard of no such thing."

"It would be presumptuous for me to suggest that there was no doubt as far as the Nixon candidacy is concerned," he said. But he added there was "no doubt" about Mr. Eisenhower's renomination.

Nixon emphasized several times that his future will be up to the President and the Republican national convention, which begins next Aug. 20. He said he would "abide by" the decision.

He told reporters the principal purpose of today's meeting was to give Mr. Eisenhower a first-hand report on the recent trip which took Nixon to the capitals of six Asiatic nations.

Other Main Points.

Discussing the conversation, Nixon made these other main points:

1. His report on the Far Eastern trip included some recommendations to the President on administration of the foreign aid program in the six countries Nixon visited. He declined to spell out his suggestions.

2. He gave Mr. Eisenhower an "optimistic" report on chances for restoring some of the funds cut by the House from the Administration's foreign aid bill.

Nixon said he was personally optimistic about the outlook for Senate approval of the $4,105,420,000 in new foreign aid money recommended yesterday by the Senate Appropriations committee.

He added that he thought "we will hold pretty close to four billion dollars" in the conference between the Senate and House, which cut the foreign aid appropriation sharply.

3. The administration still is hopeful Congress will approve the school construction

BILL FOR 1925 BABY PAID AT LAST; BABY MAY HAVE PAID IT

The hospital maternity bill for a baby born 31 years ago at St. John's Hospital was paid in full yesterday, and hospital employes were speculating last night that someone may have paid for his own entry into the world.

A few days ago a telephone call was received from a man who gave no name. He asked whether the bill of a patient had been paid, giving her name and the date in 1925 on which the baby was born. Hospital employes explained that a number of old records were destroyed about 15 years ago and they had no way of checking on the status of the bill.

The caller then asked for an estimate of what the bill would have been in 1925 and was told the minimum was about $65. A check for that amount was received in yesterday's mail.

At today's prices the $65 is a real bargain, the hospital spokesman said. Minimum costs now are about twice that.

POLICEMAN LEAPS OFF BUS, OUTRUNS PURSE SNATCHER

When Patrolman Robert Foxworth saw a youth running from an irate woman yesterday, he jumped from the bus on which he was riding, gave chase and caught an exhausted 17-year-old purse snatcher after five and a half blocks. The officer, a former Golden Gloves light heavyweight champion, keeps in shape with daily roadwork and tennis.

The pursuit began in a store at 522 Washington avenue, where a customer, Mrs. Andrew Wilson, 1300 Williams street, Cahokia, felt her wallet being removed from her dress pocket. "Stop that man!" she yelled.

Foxworth, off duty but in uniform, left his groceries with a newsboy to give chase, after leaving the bus. He fired a shot as he ran.

The shot failed to make the fleeing youth halt. The wallet was found behind a trash barrel along the circuitous route the chase had taken. But the $19 that Mrs. Wilson said was in her wallet was missing. Officer Foxworth and his prisoner are Negroes.

VOTING FINALLY MADE FREE FOR MALES IN LIBERTY, MO.

LIBERTY, Mo., July 14 (AP) —The city's poll tax ordinance was repealed last night by the city council.

The $2 levy against all male voters had been in effect since the state granted the city an amended charter in 1861. It was one of the few cities in the state that retained the tax.

City officials admitted the collection had not been too strict in recent years, but last year it produced $2052 in revenue.

U.S. APPROVES HOUSING UNITS FOR BARRACKS

Contract to Be Signed Soon—Start on Project Not Expected Before Spring.

Approval of the proposed 350-unit, low-rent public housing project at Jefferson Barracks was announced yesterday by the Public Housing Administration in Washington. The estimated maximum cost of the development is $4,755,000.

Charles E. Slusser, commissioner of the Public Housing Administration, said a contract providing for the Government's share of the cost will be signed in the near future with the project's sponsor, the St. Louis County Housing Authority.

The executive director of the county housing authority, Robert J. Tracy, said six to eight months would be required for completion of architectural plans. He doubted whether construction could start before spring.

Under the Public Housing Administration contract, the Federal agency will lend up to 90 per cent of the project's total cost. The county housing authority will repay the loan, with interest, from proceeds realized from sale of bonds to private investors.

The dwellings will be on a 37-acre site that includes 29 acres occupied by units of the present Barracks housing group. Tracy said last April that 60 old buildings, housing several hundred families, would be razed and efforts would be made to find other homes for the tenants.

An interesting aspect of the project approved yesterday is that it will be the first low-rent public housing project in the St. Louis area to consist of two-family and four-family dwellings, rather than multi-story apartment structures or "row" houses.

Plans for the new Jefferson Barracks project were prepared by Leo A. Daly Co., architectural and engineering firm. All buildings will be two stories in height, separated by large side and back yards. Some units for large families will have as many as five bedrooms.

ABSENCE MAKES EMPLOYES PONDER AT BONUS TIME

ANN ARBOR, Mich., July 14 (AP)—Twice a year, Joseph W. Edwards hands out a pile of checks to his employes—mostly because they come to work.

Edwards, president of Edwards Brothers, Inc., Ann Arbor lithographers, has a profit sharing plan, based on an employe's attendance record.

At the latest distribution this month, Edwards handed out 152 cnecks totaling $51,020. It came to roughly $416 per employe who had missed no days of work. Workers who had missed a day or two got less. The bonus works out to about 35 cents an hour above the hourly rate for the period Dec. 1, 1955, to June 30 this year.

Edwards makes two distributions—one in the summer and the other before Christmas. The total comes to 20 per cent of the company's profits, Edwards said.

NO HELL IN ENGLAND, SO TV CONTESTANT CAN TRY AGAIN

MILAN, Italy, July 14 (AP) — Italian experts have announced after a painstaking search that there is no Hell in England.

Thus Giovanna Ferrara, 23-year-old college student and quiz whiz on American history, may have another chance to win the big prize of 5,000,000 lire ($8000) on Italy's top TV quiz program. She appeared to flunk out the other night when the quizmaster asked her to give the three-H motto of British Gen. Howe's troops when they retreated from Boston in 1776. He said each H stood for an English town.

The answer, which Miss Ferrara said she didn't know, was "Hell, Hull and Halifax." Her rejoinder was: Where in England is Hell?

U.S. POPULATION ON JUNE 1 ESTIMATED AT 167,858,000

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP) —The Census Bureau estimated yesterday that the total population of the United States on June 1 was 167,858,000.

The bureau said this total, which includes armed forces overseas, is an increase of 16,726,000 or 11.1 per cent since April 1, 1950, the date of the last census. It is 2,818,000 higher than the total on June 1 a year ago.

GOVERNOR SEEKS NEW PENALTIES FOR GAS STRIKE

Unions Would Be Named in Additional Suits — Crews Work to Restore Service.

Gov. Phil M. Donnelly yesterday called for filing of additional suits seeking financial penalties from union locals of Laclede Gas Co. employes, who returned to work yesterday after a 13-day strike.

The Governor said he would confer with Attorney General John M. Dalton early this week to discuss filing of the suits.

Petitions seeking $35,000 in penalties from the locals and union officers were filed July 7 by the state, two days after Gov. Donnelly ordered seizure of the strike-bound utility under the King-Thompson Act.

Service Being Restored.

Laclede employes, who returned to work in compliance with a court injunction against the strike, will continue at their jobs today in an effort to restore service to the estimated 20,000 customers in St. Louis and St. Louis county who were without gas when the strike ended.

Company officials said they were unable to estimate how long it would take to restore service to all homes and businesses which have been without gas.

About 1200 maintenance and service employes worked yesterday and will continue on the job today, the officials said.

The remaining 1000 members of the AFL-CIO Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers union, whose jobs are not directly involved in restoration of gas service, are to report for duty as usual tomorrow.

Negotiations Resumed.

Negotiations toward a new contract were resumed yesterday between representatives of the company and union. Some progress in the talks has been reported in recent days.

Gov. Donnelly indicated that

A new traffic sign erected at Delmar boulevard has southbound motorists on Twelfth boulevard blinking and counting on their fingers.

Whether confused drivers believe it or not, the sign means exactly what it says in a backhanded way. It says blandly, "Left Turn Only on Arrow, 6 p.m. to 4 p.m."

Lest motorists wait until their clocks run backwards, the signs mean, according to the Traffic Division, that left turns may be made when the arrow shows on the electric signal, except between 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. daily.

Or, in traffic sign jargon, beginning at 6 p.m. on one day and continuing for 22 hours until 4 p.m. of the following day it is now possible for southbound motorists to make a left turn into Delmar when the arrow shows.

Informed of the unusual wording, Traffic Commissioner Charles G. Gonter was surprised, remarking "There must be some mistake. What we're trying to say there is that you can't make a left turn between 4 and 6 p.m."

Wives Set Picnic Date and Put Their Weathermen in the Shade

Meteorologist Harry F. Wahlgren conceded grudgingly last night that wives of St. Louis weathermen are pretty good long-range forecasters, even if he doesn't approve of taking the long view. Distaff members of the Weather Bureau family set yesterday as the picnic date one cold day last February. July 14 will be a nice day, they informed their husbands, and pointed to an almost perfect record of forecasting good picnic weather.

Wahlgren and his associates adopted an "I told you so" attitude as they prepared to leave for the picnic grounds at Heman Park yesterday afternoon. After forecasting scattered showers they gave the wives a knowing look and carted umbrellas and raincoats to the park, along with hot dogs and hamburgers.

"I have to admit they did a better job of forecasting than we did," Wahlgren said, after an evening of pitching horseshoes with some of his six grandchildren and other young folk. (He lost.) "It thundered quite a bit off in the southwest, but the weather was delightful."

2 SENATORS ACT TO BLOCK PLANE FUND FOR TITO IN FOREIGN AID BILL

Knowland and Bridges Would Cut Off 300 Jets but They Back Other Boosts Over House Figure.

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP)—Republican Senators Knowland of California and Bridges of New Hampshire joined forces today in an effort to end abruptly the furnishing of new military equipment — including jet fighters—to Yugoslavia.

Bridges, who heads the Senate Republican policy committee, said he and Knowland, the G.O.P. floor leader, will reoffer in the next week an amendment that was defeated 11-to-10 yesterday by the Senate Appropriations Committee.

They will have the support of Senator McCarthy (Rep.) of Wisconsin, who clashed bitterly with the United States ambassador to Yugoslavia, James W. Riddleberger, in a closed hearing before the committee voted.

To counter objections that any abrupt cutoff of military aid would drive Communist Yugoslavia completely into the Russian camp, the amendment would permit the shipment of maintenance and spare parts for equipment already delivered.

New Fund Cutoff.

But it would have the effect of cutting off new funds for military assistance and halting delivery of around 300 jet fighters reported already contracted for out of past appropriations.

Bridges said in an interview he also would seek to reduce the approximately $70,000,000 in economic aid for India included in a $4,105,420,000 money bill sent to the Senate yesterday by the committee. He said he did not expect Knowland to join in this move.

President Eisenhower was credited with a gain yesterday when the Senate committee added $680,300,000 to the bill above the total previously voted by the House.

Bridges said he and Knowland brought pressure to bear to get that result and would support all of the increases in the Senate, except for their effort to chop off Yugoslav funds and Bridges's own effort to reduce those for India.

"I certainly believe that foreign aid must be continued for our true allies and friends, people we are confident will stand with us in any emergency," Bridges said.

Excludes Neutrals.

"But such aid should not be given to potential enemies or so-called neutral nations that play 90 per cent of the time with the Soviet bloc. By that reference I mean Yugoslavia and Tito and countries like India."

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has called for continuance of aid to Yugoslavia despite Marshal Josip (Tito) Broz's exchange of goodwill assurances with Russian leaders in a recent visit to Moscow. Dulles also has backed continued aid to India despite Vice President Nixon's recent criticism of the neutralist role followed by Prime Minister Nehru.

Riddleberger was questioned sharply by committee members about Tito's attitude to a statement by Soviet Defense Minister Zhukov that in any future conflict Russia and Yugoslavia would fight "shoulder to shoulder."

Riddleberger told the committee Tito had interpreted te remark to him this way: "As we marched shoulder to shoulder in time of war, so shall we march shoulder to shoulder for a peaceful world."

He said Tito contended that represented his own viewpoint, adding that there were many difficulties in translating from Russian to Yugoslavian.

6 SOUTHERN SENATORS ASK REJECTION OF SOBELOFF

WASHINGTON, July 14 (UP)—Six Southern Senators said today that the nomination of Solicitor General Simon E. Sobeloff to a federal judgeship is "obnoxious" to them and their states. They asked all fellow Senators to join them in voting against Sobeloff when the Senate takes up his nomination Monday.

The six Senators represent three of the five states in the Fourth Judicial Circuit. President Eisenhower last July nominated Sobeloff to serve as one of the three judges on the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals, which covers Maryland, North and South Carolina, Virginia and West Virginia.

The request by the six Senators to reject the nomination was contained in a letter mailed to the Senate's entire membership today. The letter was signed by Senators Sam J. Ervin Jr., North Carolina, A. Willis Robertson, Virginia, Harry F. Byrd, Virginia, W. Kerr Scott, North Carolina, Thomas A. Wofford, South Carolina and Olin D. Johnston, South Carolina.

Student Admits Burning Crosses At Homes of Warren and Others

Wanted to Convince People of 'Wrongness' of Desegregation Decision—Surrenders After Father's Car Is Traced.

WASHINGTON, July 14 (UP)—A University of Virginia student today admitted planting fiery crosses in front of the residences of Chief Justice Earl Warren and Solicitor General Simon E. Sobeloff in protest against the Supreme Court decision on desegregation of schools.

Ronald Eugene Rowley, 24 years old, Arlington, Va., was charged on two counts of "kindling a bonfire between sundown and sunrise." He forfeited $10 bond on each count rather than stand trial for the misdemeanors.

"I wanted to convince the greater populace of the wrongness of the Supreme Court decision," Rowley told police.

Rowley refused to name any companions in the burning of crosses last night before the residences of Warren, Sobeloff, Associate Justice Felix Frankfurter, Senator Herbert H. Lehman (Dem.), New York, and Mrs. Douglas King, head of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People in Beltsville, Md.

Police said Rowley surrendered after the car he used was traced to his father's home in Arlington, across the Potomac river in Virginia. A doorman at the Sheraton-Park Hotel, where Warren and Lehman live, noted the license number and informed police.

Rowley, who attends the University of Virginia's Arlington extension and works as a laborer in the summer, told police the incident followed a discussion of public school desegregation.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation, acting with President Eisenhower's backing, joined the hunt on orders of Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. Brownell discussed the incidents with the President at his Gettsyburg farm. Presidential press secretary James E. Hagerty told reporters Mr. Eisenhower "thought it was a good idea" to bring the FBI into the case.

Rowley's statement confirmed earlier police reports that the actions were in protest against the desegregation decision. Warren and Frankfurter both participated in the decision. Sobeloff presented the Government's views on implementing the decision and is now awaiting Senate confirmation of his appointment to a federal judgeship. Lehman has been a long time foe of school segregation.

The crosses were identical in construction. Near them were notes calling the officials "nigger lovers."

It was understood the FBI would determine whether the youths could be charged with trying to intimidate a federal officer — Warren, Frankfurter, Sobeloff and Lehman.

EISENHOWER ASKS HOOVER TO MAKE CONVENTION TALK

WASHINGTON, July 14 (UP)—President Eisenhower personally has invited former President Hoover to make a principal speech at the Republican national convention which meets Aug. 20 in San Francisco.

The United Press was informed that Hoover had accepted the invitation. Mr. Eisenhower's bid to his most immediate Republican predecessor was in the form of a letter. The President heard indirectly that Hoover was not planning to attend this year's convention although he usually has been an honored guest at those affairs.

Mr. Eisenhower wrote a personal appeal to Hoover to reconsider and, further, to accept an important spot on the convention program. Hoover will celebrate his eighty-second birthday anniversary Aug. 10.

EAST GERMANY'S TOP RED LEADERS GOING TO RUSSIA

Summons Indicative of Unity Move — West Zone Soviet Ambassador Recalled.

BERLIN, July 14 (AP)—Communist East Germany announced tonight that virtually all of its top officials are going to Moscow Monday for "important negotiations."

The announcement caused speculation in the West that the Soviet Union is preparing a new maneuver on German unification. The announcement said the Moscow conference would deal with the "further development of a peace-loving democratic Germany."

Zorin Being Replaced.

Shortly after the East German announcement West Germany disclosed that the Soviet ambassador to Bonn, Valerian Zorin, is being replaced after having been in the post only since December. The German press office said Zorin advised Foreign Minister Heinrich Von Brentano he was being transferred to another country, but did not say which.

A Western diplomat commented:

"I imagine the whole German question is coming under review. Zorin certainly hasn't done very well. He got a rather bad press in West Germany."

The East German delegation to Moscow is to be led by Premier Otto Grotewohl, and will include party secretary Walter Ulbricht and six other deputy premiers. The statement said the negotiations result from a "wish" of the East German government and the "invitation" of the Soviet Union.

Agenda for Meeting.

In addition to the question of German unification, the conference is to cover these topics:

1. A further clarification of disarmament problems. East Germany is creating a "people's army," but has announced that its size will be cut from 120,000 to 90,000.

2. The promotion of European security. The Soviet Union contends that Germany can be unified only if an all-European security pact is signed.

3. The "realization" of aims set forth in East Germany's current five-year economic plan.

The annaunncement said efforts in this field would be directed at raising the living standards in East Germany.

CATCH BASINS PUMPED OUT FOR CLUE TO KIDNAPED BOY

WESTBURY, N. Y., July 14 (AP)—Work crews today began pumping out catch basins on the chance they might yield a clue or the body of kidnaped Peter Weinberger.

Two crews of three men each started with two basins nearest the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Weinberger, where the 5-week-old baby was stolen from a rear patio 10 days ago.

The kidnaper left a ransom note demanding $2000 for the baby's return. Later, in telephone calls the father was convinced came from the kidnaper, the ransom demand was raised to $5000.

NEHRU DECLARES U.S. POLICY MAY DIVIDE WORLD

Says America Expects Others to Follow Its Will, Leaves No Middle Ground.

BONN, July 14 (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru declared tonight United States policy could split the world into two hostile camps.

"The United States expects others to follow its will," the visiting Indian leader said in a speech to the West German Foreign Policy Association.

"If they do not, they (the United States) feel hurt and think there is something wrong with the other man's thinking.

"This kind of thinking leaves no room for any country to sit on the fence. If carried to its final end, it divides the world into two hostile camps, each of which is ready to spring at the throat of the other."

'Leads to Hatred.'

Nehru said the cold war "leads to encouraging hatred, suspicion and fear of the other."

"A cold war can only be justified if, sometime or other, there is going to be a hot shooting war," he said.

The Indian Prime Minister said the two major world problems today are a divided Germany and the Far East. Nehru called the German problem a tremendous one. He said it could be solved either by "imposed overwhelming strength" or by peaceful negotiation.

"In this case, however, a climate of peace must be created," he added.

Won't Rule It Out.

Nehru's remarks were made against the background of a news conference earlier in the day at which he declined to rule out the possibility India might recognize Communist East Germany.

Chancellor Adenauer has repeatedly declared the Bonn republic would consider recognition of the rival German government by other states a hostile act. Adenauer's position is that such recognition would solidify the division of Germany. India now has diplomatic relations with West Germany and maintains only trade ties with East Germany.

The Indian leader said he favored independence for the British colony of Cyprus, that France should recognize what he called "the separate individuality" of Algeria, and that he did not believe neutrality was a good word for India's position in world affairs.

"I thought the word neutrality was used in war," he said. "I do not understand neutrality in peacetime. To use the word neutrality in peacetime gives it a warlike significance. We (Indians) do not think in terms of war and, therefore, the word has no significance to us. If one country wants to impose its policy on another country, that is domination."

BEDFORD, England, July 14 (AP)—The bones of a plesiosarus, a 16-foot amphibian reptile extinct for 160,000,000 years, have been unearthed near here. Ditch diggers found the fossils in clay only five feet down.

Survivors Tell of Bad Weather In Plane Crash That Killed 45

MATS Commander Investigates Service's First Major Disaster—Craft Took Off in Storm, Plunged Into Forest.

FORT DIX, N.J., July 14 (AP)—Turbulent weather at take-off time figured today in an intensive investigation of the crash of a C-118, first major disaster in the history of the Military Air Transport Service.

Forty-five persons died, and 21 others aboard were injured as a big, four-engined plane plunged into a boggy pine forest yesterday, 90 seconds after it left adjacent McGuire Air Force Base in a thunderstorm.

Five women and two children were among the dead. Five of the 21 injured were in critical condition at the Fort Dix hospital. The plane carried a total of 66—a crew of ten, 50 military personnel, and six civilians.

It was the first crash costing passengers lives since the service was organized eight years ago. The service annually transports hundreds of thousands of military personnel and dependents to and from bases in this country and overseas.

Survivors Tell of Crash.

As Lt. Gen. Joseph Smith, MATS commanding general, flew in from his Maryland headquarters to oversee the official investigation, survivors told of violent, churning air currents that gripped the plane.

"It happened in an instant," said Second Lt. George A. Wiltse of Santa Monica, Calif. "We seemed to hit a downdraft."

Another survivor, Sgt. Robert R. Ashley of Wrightstown, N. J., said the vicious downdraft struck the plane just "when we needed power" to climb.

Lightning crackled, and heavy clouds, rain and hail darkened the late afternoon atmosphere as the plane took off. Three miles from the runway, it hit into a remote, swampy woods at the edge of the huge Fort Dix military reservation.

Lt. Col. Richard Goss, information officer, said, "Weather conditions at the time of the take-off were within acceptable standards for normal procedure."

Visibility at the air base was reported to be a mile, with a ceiling of 2000 feet and scattered clouds at 500 feet when the plane took off for Burtonwood, England.

The minimum flight requirements were said to be a 300-feet ceiling and a half-mile visibility.

Vertical Wind Currents.

"Everything happened so quick," said Airman Albert J. Buck of Philadelphia, one of the survivors. "We were going along steady, hit a downdraft, and she dropped."

Boiling air amid thunderstorms often produce strong vertical wind currents, experienced flyers said.

Either a downdraft or updraft can cause a plane momentarily to lose altitude. Moving out of an updraft, a plane sinks quickly, like a man walking off a cliff.

The C-118 Liftmaster, the military version of the DC-6 commercial airliner, was estimated to be only about 500 to 700 feet aloft when the trouble came.

Military spokesmen said several factors probably prevented additional deaths. Brush and pine trees, some of them 100 feet tall, served to cushion the impact as the plane ripped a 300-yard swath in the woods.

It hit, belly-down, as in a crash landing, from the relatively low altitude. Seats on the plane faced toward the rear, a safety device used for some time in the service. Most passengers still had on seat belts. Pvt. Thomas Kiley, of Lawrence, Mass., who stumbled bleeding and dazed from the wreckage, said he felt "a tremendous jarring" just before the plane slammed into the rain-soaked treetops and broke apart.

"I saw things flying off to the side and then tearing and breaking," he said.

'Spluttering Noise.'

Simultaneously, on a lonely dirt road nearby, Pfc. Rudolph A. Johnson, 22 years old, of Norfolk, Va., was driving through blinding rain, when he heard a "spluttering noise" and then "a big noise in the center of the woods."

Going afoot to investigate, he said he found Kiley in the woods "staggering around in circles" and crying, "Plane crash." It was these two who brought first word of the accident to authorities.

Rescue parties, first using hand tools, and then bulldozers and cranes, fought through the thick growth to bring out the stunned, the injured, the dead and dying. It was five hours after the crash before the job was done.

A log road was built over the mire to give access to ambulances.

Col. Goss said an aircraft accident investigation board, made up of senior officers and headed by Brig. Gen. George Daney of the MATS Atlantic division, would analyse "minutely all aspects" of the crash. This, he said, included the weather conditions at the time.

A special air safety team also was flying to Fort Dix from Norton Air Force Base, San Bernardino, Calif., to aid in the inquiry.

POLES TRANSFER ECONOMIC CHIEF IN WAKE OF RIOTS

Part of Troubles Had Been Laid to His Ministry—Named to Building Post.

LONDON, July 14 (AP)—Poland's Communist government has transferred the Polish economic planning chief to a new post in the wake of the Poznan rioting.

The Warsaw radio announced Eugeniusz Szyr, chairman of the state commission for economic planning, has been relieved of his job and made minister of building.

Stefan Jedrychowski, deputy chairman of the council of ministers, was appointed in his place, the broadcast said.

The Communist regime placed the blame for part of the trouble for the Poznan riots two weeks ago on "certain economic problems" facing the population of the industrial city.

The building ministry is a new post formed out of a merger of the ministry of town and country planning and the ministry of industrial building, the radio said. No new posts were announced for the two deposed ministers — Roman Piotrowski and Szeslaw Babinski.

The brief announcement said the reshuffle was carried out "on the motion of the chairman of the concil of ministers"—Premier Cyraniewcz.

Frank acknowledgements of labor unrest have come from Hungary and East Germany. Czechoslovakia has acknowledged student unrest and other dissatisfaction. News from remoter Romania and Bulgaria is scarce, but even there the Communist press has complained of lagging production and attributed much of this to poor working conditions and lack of consumer goods.

In Czechoslovakia, Communist education authorities met some of the demands of protesting students by reducing weekly classroom hours and promising that henceforth compulsory lectures in Marx-Leninism will be less dull, a Communist newspaper said. They did not, however, meet student demands for genuine academic freedom and the import of Western books and newspapers.

In East Germany, Communist rulers retreated on efforts to increase worker production quotas. Trade Union Secretary Otto Lehman said the workers received them with "indignation."

HIGH COST OF U.S. BUILDINGS UNDER LEASE-PURCHASE METHOD CITED

Two Structures Here Would Cost 80 Pct. More by That Plan Than by Direct Appropriation.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 14—Cost of constructing and acquiring two new federal buildings in St. Louis would total about $16,000,000, or 80 per cent, more under the proposed lease-purchase method than under direct congressional appropriation, analysis of Government figures indicated today.

The General Services Administration announced this week it planned to build two structures at a total estimated construction cost of $20,500,000 under the Lease-Purchase Act of 1954. One of the buildings, a federal office structure downtown, would cost $13,760,000. The other, a records center, would have an estimated construction cost of $6,740,000.

25-Year Payments.

The Lease-Purchase Act provides that buildings be constructed by a private contractor and then leased to the Government for 25 years, with the Government paying an annual fee which includes municipal taxes and cost of financing, much as a home-buyer makes his monthly payment to a lending firm. At the end of 25 years title goes to the Government.

Earlier this year, when GSA had tentative plans for a single federal office building in St. Louis, figures made available to Representative Frank M. Karsten (Dem.), St. Louis, showed the lease-purchase total cost to be $35,750,000, compared with a direct appropriation cost of $19,800,000.

The annual payment for principal and interest under lease-purchase would have been $999,300, Comptroller General Joseph Campbell wrote Karsten, and the annual real estate tax would have been $269,700. The financing rate was figured at 3⅞ per cent.

The cost differential between the two methods, a total of $15,905,000, is 80 per cent of the direct appropriation cost.

Differential Borne Out.

Other figures, based on plans for a single $13,000,000 federal office building, maintain the 80 per cent differential. Prepared by GSA and sent to Karsten, the figures estimate total acquisition cost under lease-purchase at $24,237,000, compared with a $13,000,000 cost under direct appropriation. The difference is $11,237,000, or 80.6 per cent of the $13,000,000.

Karsten previously had opposed the lease-purchase method, but now joins the other St. Louis area representatives and the Missouri Senators in supporting it because of the "great need" for the buildings. However, he has suggested that an "escape" clause be embodied in the contract.

This would permit the Government to shift to direct financing if lease-purchase proves too costly.

Proponents of the lease-purchase method argue that more can be done this way because large sums of money are not needed all at once and payments can be spread out. They also observe that, in many instances where a lease-purchase project is to be undertaken the Government already is paying out in rent for private space as much as the amount needed for annual payments toward a federal building.

Opponents reply that there need be no payments after the building is constructed by the direct appropriation method.

$1,161,698 Annual Rental.

In the St. Louis area at the end of 1954 there were 10 federal agencies in leased space for which the annual rental was $1,161,698. They occupied 858,544 square feet of office, storage and related space.

The rental figure extended over 25 years would be considerably more than the $24,237,000 estimated total acquisition cost for a $13,000,000 federal building under lease-purchase.

Ruling by Judge Holt Is First That King-Thompson Act Is Valid

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

CIRCUIT JUDGE IVAN LEE HOLT JR., who in the Laclede Gas Co. strike injunction case ruled that the King-Thompson Act was constitutional.

Law on Books 9 Years, Heads for Final Decision on Constitutionality by State or U.S. Supreme Court.

Missouri's controversial King-Thompson act barring work stoppages in public utilities, a frequent target of union lawyers, has been held constitutional by a Missouri court for the first time since enactment of the law by the Legislature nine years ago.

The ruling upholding validity of the act came Friday when Circuit Judge Ivan Lee Holt Jr. granted an injunction, sought by the state under terms of the law, against continuation of the 13-day strike of Laclede Gas Co. employes. The workers returned to work yesterday in compliance with the order.

A final determination of the law's constitutionality, however, still awaits a ruling by the Missouri Supreme Court, and possibly by the United States Supreme Court, as Judge Holt clearly indicated in approving the state's application for the strike-ending injunction.

Attorney General's Opinion.

Although a Missouri Attorney General once gave an opinion that the law is unconstitutional, no court previously had ruled on the law's validity.

Judge Holt not only issued an injunction as authorized by the act, but he specifically denied the request of the AFL-CIO Oil, Chemical and Atomic workers union, representing the striking Laclede employes, for a declaratory judgment holding the law unconstitutional.

In making his ruling, Judge Holt said it is a "well-established practice in this state that a trial court should not declare an act of the Missouri General Assembly unconstitutional unless it is clearly so.

"I will not declare the King-Thompson Act unconstitutional. That decision should be left to the higher courts."

He later told a Post-Dispatch reporter that the effect of his ruling was to uphold the validity of the act.

A final determination of the question could come if Judge Holt's ruling is appealed to the Missouri Supreme Court. Or it could arise on appeal if the courts assess civil penalties against the union and its officials for continuing the strike after Gov. Phil M. Donnelly seized Laclede Gas Co. in the name of the state July 5.

Penalties Under Law.

Under the law, a union is subject to a fine of $10,000 for each day it engages in a strike against a public utility seized by the state. The maximum penalty against a union official is $1000.

The King-Thompson law was enacted by the 1947 Legislature at the request of Gov. Donnelly, then serving his first term as chief executive. He recommended the law in response to public demands for protection against interruptions in vital utility services as a result of labor disputes.

In 1951, Attorney General J. E. Taylor issued an opinion to the Missouri House saying the King-Thompson law was invalid. The House had requested the opinion after the United States Supreme Court invalidated a somewhat similar Wisconsin utility no-strike law.

Taylor based his ruling on the United States Supreme Court's decision in that case, which held that the Wisconsin act was unconstitutional because Congress had pre-empted the field of labor-management relations in all matters affecting interstate commerce.

Arguments for Law.

Defenders of the King-Thompson Act contend that decision is not applicable because of substantial differences between the Missouri and the Wisconsin laws. They point out that the Missouri act does not require compulsory arbitration, as did the Wisconsin law.

The also assert that the King-Thompson law fundamentally is not a labor-management regulatory act, but represents a valid exercise of the state's police powers to protect the health, welfare and safety of the public.

Three suits involving the King-Thompson Act have reached the Missouri Supreme Court, but the court did not pass directly on the constitutional question in any of these cases. In 1949 the court ruled that strikes in municipally-owned utilities in Springfield and St. Joseph came under the law, in a case in which validity of the law was not an issue.

The second case, growing out of the 1950 state seizure of the strike-bound Kansas City Public Service Co., involved only the question of whether the state or the transit company was liable for damages for personal injuries which occurred while the firm was being operated under state seizure. Reversing a Cole county circuit court decision, the Supreme Court held the company was liable.

The last case was in 1951, when the state comptroller refused to pay expenses of the State Board of Mediation, which was created by the act, after Taylor ruled the entire law was invalid. The court upheld those sections of the act setting up the mediation board and defining its duties, but did not pass on the constitutionality of the law as a whole.

Suit Dismissed Here.

Last year the St. Louis bus and streetcar operators unions sought to test the constitutionality of the act, but Circuit Judge Waldo C. Mayfield dismissed the suit on the grounds he lacked jurisdiction, and the litigation was dropped. The state's suit to collect $30,000 in penalties against the transit union is still pending in circuit court here.

The King-Thompson law has been invoked in labor disputes involving public utilities on numerous occasions, but the state has seized utility properties only five times, including the present seizure of Laclede Gas. The St. Louis Public Service Co. has been taken over by the state twice during strikes, and the Kansas City transit company once. In addition to the Laclede seizure, the state recently took control of the Kansas City Power and Light Co.

Labor-sponsored bills to repeal the King-Thompson law have been defeated in every session of the Legislature since 1949. The 1955 General Assembly passed a union-backed bill materially weakening the law by amendments, but the measure was vetoed by Gov. Donnelly.

POLICE SEEKING 2 ABDUCTORS OF ST. ANN DRIVER

Motorist Beaten Robbed of $57 — Shots Fired at Pursuers in Wild Chase.

Two young men who abducted Russell E. Bovier early yesterday, and took him for a wild ride of more than nine miles in north and south St. Louis, were being sought by police last night. They robbed Bovier of $57 and took his car. Shots were fired at pursuers.

Bovier, a pattern maker living at 10307 St. Joan lane, St. Ann, was beaten on the head with a pistol after he was forced to lie on the floor in the back seat of his machine. He escaped when the robbers stopped at a restaurant about an hour after they forced their way into his car.

Bovier was driving west in Cass avenue and had halted for an electric signal at North Grand boulevard about 2 a.m. when the two men stepped off the northeast curb, opened the right front door of his machine and got in. Both were armed with pistols, he said, and they ordered him to drive straight ahead.

Ordered to Stop Car.

A few blocks away, the robbers ordered Bovier to stop the machine and get in the back seat. One then took over the wheel and the other got in the back with Bovier, forcing him to lie down on the floor. They drove west and then drove north.

Eddie Miller, 1492 North Grand, was in front of his house when the two men invaded Bovier's car. He got into his own machine and gave chase as far as Whittier street and Easton avenue, where he stopped a police patrol car. Police began searching.

At Natural Bridge avenue, the police encountered another machine that had pursued the Bovier car after witnessing the Grand boulevard incident. The four occupants, all Negroes, said they chased the fugitives until one of the robbers fired two shots at them near Fair and Kossuth avenues.

Meanwhile Bovier's assailants drove to the vicinity of the old water tower at East Grand avenue and North Twentieth street. Bovier, huddled on the floor, caught a glimpse of the tower.

Then they started south.

Bovier simulated unconsciousness in the later stages of his harrowing ride. He heard the two robbers talk about getting something to eat, and the car halted in front of a restaurant at 2402 South Broadway. The man sitting beside Bovier went in and ordered six hamburgers. It was nearly 3 a.m.

Victim Flees.

Sensing that the driver had relaxed his vigilance, Bovier scrambled out the loosely-fastened door and ran down the street. The driver fired one shot, penetrating the restaurant's glass door and smashing into the cigarette machine. The other robber ran out and the two drove away, escaping.

Bovier fled south on Broadway until he encountered Patrolman Fred Kuhlmann, who fired a shot after the robbers. They were described as between 20 and 22 years old. One wore a red hat and the other a T-shirt, Bovier said. He is 37 years old.

Charles Bishop, 4614 North Broadway, reported he was robbed of $90 early yesterday by two men who forced their way into his automobile and then slugged him.

The men, Negroes, entered his car while he was stopped for a traffic signal at Manchester and Big Bend boulevards, Maplewood, Bishop, 32 years old, said. He was forced by one, who held a knife, to drive to Garrison and Laclede avenues. The men fled on foot after striking him, Bishop said. He was treated at City Hospital for lacerations of the head and cheek.

JUDGE MAY PUT OFF SENTENCING OF TRUMAN AIDS

Minneapolis Jurist Says He Expects to Delay Action in Connelly, Caudle Case.

United States District Judge Gunnar H. Nordbye of Minneaoplis, who is to hear motions and fix sentences in the case of T. Lamar Caudle and Matthew J. Connelly, indicated yesterday that sentencing might be deferred.

Judge Nordbye, assigned as a replacement for the late Judge Rubey M. Hulen, who was to have sentenced the two former Truman administration officials Thursday for conspiracy to defraud the Government, told the Post-Dispatch by telephone that he had made no plans to come to St. Louis this week.

"I have just received notification of my assignment," Judge Nordbye said, "and I am awaiting word from the United States Attorney and counsel in the cases. I would anticipate that there would be a delay."

Assignment of Judge Nordbye was made Friday by Chief Judge Archibald K. Gardner of the United States Court of Appeals. Judge Nordbye, a Republican, was appointed to the bench in 1931 by President Herbert Hoover. He may require time to familiarize himself with the records of the prolonged trial, which ended in convictions June 14, and various subsequent defense motions.

Judge Hulen died July 7 of a gunshot wound in the head. A coroner's jury returned an open verdict, reporting that it could not determine whether his death was accidental. He was found shot in the right temple in the back yard of his home, 16 Southmoor drive, Clayton.

The federal grand jury which indicted Caudle, former head of the Justice Department's tax division, and Connelly, appointments secretary to President Truman, is to meet again Wednesday in connection with its inquiry into tax scandals in the Truman administration.

The jury recessed April 4 at suggestion of Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., who took the position its continuing investigation might influence the trials.

When the jury was not recalled after the trial it took matters into its own hands after repeated rebuffs from the Department of Justice, and requested United States District Judge George H. Moore to reconvene it. However, the jury has only until July 23 to serve, and the Justice Department has indicated no further indictments will be sought now.

BOY, 2, STRUCK BY AUTO, HAS SERIOUS HEAD INJURY

Van Johnson, 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Johnson, 1017 North Twenty-second street, was seriously injured last night when he was struck by an automobile in the 2200 block of Carr street.

The driver of the car, who said he was Namon Branchcomb, 2715 Dickson street, told police he was driving about 10 miles an hour when the child suddenly ran in front of his machine. The child, a Negro, as is Branchcomb, was taken to Homer G. Phillips Hospital, where he was treated for a head injury.

Mosley Has Good Chance to Win Nomination, G.O.P. Leaders Say

Ousted Sheriff Working Hard to Regain Office—3 Democrats Said to Be in Close Race.

Arthur C. Mosley, ousted as sheriff of St. Louis county last February, has a good chance to win the Republican nomination for the office in the primary election next month, county leaders said yesterday.

In the race for the Democratic nomination, Frank L. Malone, Roy T. Graham and Eugene H. Buder are running a close race, and are ahead of four other candidates, Democratic observers reported.

Mosley has been making a vigorous campaign in an intensive effort to win not only a political comeback but also what he would regard as vindication of his conduct while in office.

He has been running hard, overlooking nothing that might mean a vote, political observers say.

Although he no longer holds an office in the county courthouse in Clayton, Mosley has been a frequent visitor there. In his 18 years as a constable and sheriff he came to know many county residents, and now he stops every one of them he sees.

"Don't forget me in the primary," he tells them. "I'll certainly appreciate your vote."

Mosley contends he was ousted because of his reliance on a so-called "carnival code," under which certain types of games of chance were permitted at charitable and civic functions.

The code had been approved by a grand jury and other county law enforcement agencies, Mosley says, and he followed it.

But willful failure by Mosley "to enforce the laws of the state against gambling and against operation of lotteries for charitable, civic and municipal purposes" was one of the findings of the Missouri Supreme Court in ordering his ouster.

The other charge, in which the court also upheld the finding of its special commissioner, was that Mosley sought a $500 reward in connection with the recovery of liquor taken in a hijacking case.

Politicians say Mosley's battle with Orio J. Litzinger, present Second district constable, for his party's nomination is very close.

"There is more than just a possibility that Mosley will be nominated," one political leader said. The third candidate, Ernest Hadrick, Negro, of Robertson, is said to have little chance.

Both Mosley and Litzinger have some support from members of the county Republican Central Committee. Mosley can rely on the support of followers he acquired while in the then-powerful office of sheriff. Many of his former special deputies are working hard for him.

Mosley also has a psychological advantage, observers say, because he has defeated Litzinger twice previously, in 1944 and 1952. But many Republicians are opposing him because of his ouster and the effect his nomination would have in the general election.

"I hope they don't hang that Millstone around our necks," said one G.O.P. leader.

In the race for the Democratic nomination for sheriff, politicians differ on who is likely to win.

Malone, first district constable, has strong support in the northern part of St. Louis county, where most of the county's Democratic strength is located.

Graham, a professional bondsman and former owner and operator of a Clayton tavern, is well known to other tavern operators and is a personable and shrewd campaigner, Democratic leaders say.

In February 1955 Graham was indicted by a circuit court grand jury on a charge of perjury in failing to list bonds totaling $147,000 in an affidavit to quality as a bondsman. He was acquitted of the charge last January when a motion that the state had failed to state a cause af action was sustained in court.

Buder, an attorney who was the unsuccessful Democratic candidate for Congress in the Second District in 1954, reportedly has support from several Democratic clubs and from young members of the party.

NEW HIGHWAY TAX FORMS AVAILABLE LATER IN MONTH

New federal tax forms for filing returns under the recently enacted Highway Revenue Act, which became effective July 1, will be available to business firms later this month, Ernest M. Flinn, district director of the Internal Revenue Service, said yesterday.

Taxes on gasoline, tires, trucks, busses and trailers were raised to finance a 16-year national program of road construction which is to include 41,000 miles and link 90 per cent of the cities having a population over 50,000. The form for reporting stocks on hand July 1 is No. 2265. It should be filed by Oct. 15.

The federal tax on gasoline was increased 1 cent a gallon. Airlines and other concerns not using gasoline on highways are entitled to refunds.

WOMAN FOLLOWER OF CARDINALS TO BE 102 TOMORROW

Mrs. Maria Schoellhammer, who will be 102 years old tomorrow, still maintains a lively interest in the St. Louis Cardinals, although she has been unable to attend a game for 13 years, one of her four daughters, Mrs. Andrew E. Lutz, said last night.

Confined to bed since shortly after her 100th birthday, Mrs. Schoellhammer listens to baseball games over a radio in her bedroom. She lives with another daughter, Mrs. Anna Burggrabe, 4038 Pleasant street.

Mrs. Schoellhammer will celebrate her birthday tomorrow with her four daughters, who range in age from 64 to 78, and four grandchildren and great-grandchildren. Yesterday neighbors and friends visited her, including the pastor of her church. Mrs. Schoellhammer commented to one neighbor: "I never would have lived to be 102 without my four daughters."

GARDEN ON ROOF BOOSTS DRIVE TO BEAUTIFY PLAZA

The city's plan for redeveloping and beautifying the Plaza area has been receiving a boost from a gardening project of Mr. and Mrs. John Buckowitz, 23 South Sixteenth street, just south of Market street.

The pair, who live in a second-floor apartment, have put their garden on the roof. Buckowitz began installing flower boxes four years ago. Gardening quickly became a hobby of the 73-year-old retired brewery worker.

His wife helps to water flowers and is in charge of cooking the tomatoes plucked from the vines growing above them. During the summer months she also serves dinner there.

TRAFFIC SCHOOL COMPLETED BY 521 PERSONS IN YEAR

A total of 521 persons out of 568 assigned to the city's traffic school completed the course in the fiscal year ending last March 31, Clarence W. Schlingmann, chief parole and probation officer for police courts, announced yesterday in his annual report to Mayor Raymond R. Tucker.

The report showed that 2380 persons were committed to the City Workhouse, and 3224 probations were granted. Schlingmann said more people were sentenced to the Workhouse for individual peace disturbance than any other offense; with intoxication on streets second.

The appropriation forthe Parole and Probation office for the fiscal year was $30,250. Besides Schlingmann, the office consists of six other employes.

INSPECTOR URGES ACTIONS AGAINST 9 IN JUNE LYTZ CASE

on top of the cluttered desk of State Senator Michael Kinney beside a bust of Napoleon in Kinney's ninth floor office of the Holland Building, 211 North Seventh street. It had been given to the Senator by Attorney Charles R. Cuntz, who had asked Kinney to study it and evaluate it for him in the light of the pay-off investigations.

Sgt. Lange was sergeant of the precinct in which the brothel was located for 10 years. Sgt. Duther has been assigned to the same precinct since 1952. Thompson suggested punishment under a police manual regulation which holds a sergeant responsible for his precinct. Both sergeants were aware of arrests made by others at the brothel, it was said, but took no action themselves.

Detective Sgt. Ferie was the driver for Capt. William Greenspan, who subsequently was indicted by a grand jury on charges of accepting bribes. Ferie is reported to have admitted to his superiors that he provided transportation for two prostitutes from one part of the city to another.

Cpl. Anthonis was criticized for refusing to co-operate in the grand jury investigation of alleged pay-offs. He was a riding partner of Cpl. George R. Wood, who was indicted with Greenspan on charges of accepting bribes. Anthonis opposed efforts of Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd to subpena him before the grand jury. The subpena was quashed on the ground Anthonis also was being called as a defense witness.

Thompson recommended that no action be taken against some police officers named by prostitutes as recipients of bribes. He said the testimony of prostitutes should not be accepted against the word of policemen, unless supported by other proof.

However, he recommended dismissal of a high-ranking officer on testimony of five women who accused him of receiving bribes, because the women's account of the reasons he gave for needing the money agreed with known financial difficulties the officer was having.

Thompson suggested the department maintain a close watch on testimony to be given in the trials of Greenspan, Wood and Lt. Lyman Davis, who also was indicted on charges of accepting bribes. Thompson said the department may wish to reopen some phases of its investigation if any of the testimony justifies such action.

The three have been suspended from service by the Board of Police Commissioners, but Thompson recommended no further action against them pending disposition of the indictments.

A general transfer of police department personnel to stabilize the department also was recommended. Thompson suggested the transfer apply to all men who have been in one district more than two years. This change would be beneficial because several districts have been mentioned in the police pay-off inquiry, it was stated in the report.

The departmental and grand jury investigations of the pay-off allegations began in June 1955 after the Post-Dispatch told Dowd about charges made by Pauline Cloin, an employe of Mrs. Lytz.

She threatened to expose members of the police department if $14,335 found in Mrs. Lytz's brothel at 308A North Theresa avenue was not turned over to her. Mrs. Lytz was shot to death on a street April 21, 1955.

The police investigation of the Lytz case covered a much larger area than the grand jury inquiry. Thompson checked records of arrests made at the Lytz establishment dating back to 1944. He also scrutinized activities of 52 officers who served in the Ninth District during that period.

Capt. Pleitner, Lt. Sieloff and Detectives Windhorst and Raymond said they did not wish to comment on Inspector Thompson's recommendations. Others named in the report could not be reached.

GOVERNOR SEEKS NEW PENALTIES FOR GAS STRIKE

the state would not end its technical operation of Laclede until after a contract settlement has been reached.

He did not comment directly when asked when state seizure would end, but referred reporters to the King-Thompson Act, which provides that a seized utility plant be returned to the owners "as soon as practicable after the settlement of the labor dispute."

In filing the penalty suits, the state was acting under other provisions of the law which state that $10,000 in penalties may be sought against a union for each day of a strike after the state has seized a utility.

In its suits filed July 7, the state asked for $10,000 in penalties against each of the three locals and $1000 each against five union officials.

In granting an injunction against the strike on Friday, after a three-day hearing, Circuit Judge Ivan Lee Holt Jr. upheld the constitutionality of the King-Thompson Act, the first such ruling on that law.

He said yesterday that the union had 10 days in which to file a motion seeking a new trial but added that he would deny such a motion forthwith and would so inform the union attorney.

Denial of the motion would open the way for an immediate appeal of Judge Holt's ruling by the union. Morris J. Levin, union attorney, has said an appeal would be made.

The injunction order, signed by Judge Holt yesterday, permanently enjoins union employes from continuing their work stoppage and refusal to work. It did not specifically order the employes back to work, which had been requested in the state's petition.

The 2200 strikers voted almost unanimously at a mass meeting Friday night to obey the injunction and return to work.

There were heated criticisms of Laclede officials and the King-Thompson Act at the meeting.

Joseph Appelbaum, international vice president of the union, mentioned several company officers and declared: "We are not going to let them break the union."

"As long as the King-Thompson law is on the statute books," he told the meeting, "we will not be equal to the utility bosses."

The strike began July 1, the principal issue being a dispute over the installation of "riser" connections of gas lines. The company wanted these connections to be installed in the future by private contractors. The union wanted its members to continue to do the work.

This issue has been referred to attorneys for the two sides, who have been attempting to work out a solution. Negotiating parties have been drawing closer to agreement on wages and have resolved some minor differences.

The most recently reported company offer is a 5½ per cent wage increase in a one-year contract. The union is asking for a 6 per cent rise.

PRESIDENT TALKS OVER CAMPAIGN PLAN WITH NIXON

bill, but its "chances for passage look very bad."

The measure providing federal aid for school building has been stalled by the segregation issue.

4. Mr. Eisenhower, Nixon said, looked well and showed no signs of fatigue after the conference. The President's loss of weight is noticeable, Nixon said.

Chotiner Won't Be Named.

Nixon told reporters Murray Chotiner, Los Angeles attorney, will not be his campaign manager if he wins renomination.

He made it clear he had accepted the decision of Republican strategists to drop Chotiner, who ran Nixon's 1952 campaign and was later revealed to have sought White House help for some of his legal clients.

Nixon declined to give reporters any details of what he told Mr. Eisenhower about his 11-day Asiatic trip, which produced a controversy between the vice president and Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India.

With Maj. Gen. Wilton B. Persons (Ret.), the President's legislative liaison assistant, taking part, Nixon and Mr. Eisenhower then discussed "the legislative schedule for the balance of the congressional session."

Nixon refused to specify what bills were mentioned, except for the foreign aid and school measures. The fate of other measures Mr. Eisenhower wants passed will depend on the Democratic leadership in Congress, he said.

Willing to Accept.

When reporters turned back to politics, Nixon repeated that he would be "willing and honored" to accept renomination. But he appeared anxious to emphasize that the choice was not his.

Asked about Chotiner, who has been the subject of a congressional investigation, Nixon said the Republican National Committee would run his campaign this year, if he is renominated.

He said the committee was not set up to do this in 1952, but now had a larger staff and could do the job more efficiently.

Asked by the Post-Dispatch if this meant an individual was ruled out as his campaign manager, Nixon replied: "That's right."

G.O.P. Chairman Hall has said previously that Chotiner would not be used in the Republican campaign this year.

PRESIDENT STILL NOT RECOVERED, DOCTORS REPORT

was issued by Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, the President's personal physician, and Maj. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, who operated on Mr. Eisenhower.

Walked Longer Distances.

Text of the bulletin:

"The President's recovery has gained momentum, particularly during this, the fifth post-operative week. His condition continues to progress satisfactorily. He has held his weight and is steadily regaining his strength and his activity. He has walked progressively longer distances this week and yesterday walked over a mile. His temperature, blood pressure and pulse have remained normal.

"It is expected that the President will return to the White House within the next few days. Although he has been increasing his activities and his work load daily here at Gettysburg, his return to the White House should not signify that his convalescence period has been completed."

Gen. Heaton at Farm.

Gen. Heaton, commanding officer of Walter Reed Army hospital in Washington, has been staying at the Eisenhower farm for the past two weeks and has assisted Snyder in periodic examinations of the President.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty told reporters Dr. Isidor Ravdin, who assisted Heaton in the operation last June 9, was coming to Gettysburg with his wife. Dr. Ravdin, professor of surgery at the University of Pennsylvania medical school, will remain overnight at the Eisenhower farm and will examine the President, Hagerty said.

He told reporters Mr. Eisenhower might return to Washington tomorrow night "or it might be as late as Tuesday morning." The President had said previously he might go back to the capital Monday or Tuesday.

Hagerty was questioned closely on why the physicians have not held any press conference since their meeting with reporters the day of the operation at Walter Reed hospital.

He replied that the doctors do not intend to hold any more news conferences. Hagerty added that he was not responsible for this decision.

Reporters pointed out that frequent press conferences were held by the doctors after Mr. Eisenhower's heart attack last fall.

"That was a heart attack," Hagery said. "This is merely an operation. And that's the difference. And there is a great difference."

Well, said a reporter, there has been a lot of controversy about Mr. Eisenhower's latest illness, ileitis, referring to medical disputes about the possibility that his abdominal condition would recur despite the operation.

"There is no controversy about the illness" so far as the doctors actually on the case are concerned, Hagerty answered heatedly.

Signs 36 Bills.

After talking with Vice President Richard M. Nixon this morning, Mr. Eisenhower signed 36 bills in a brief work session with three assistants.

Most of the bills were minor, the most important being a measure making it a federal offense to damage or blow up an airplane. The death penalty or life imprisonment is provided if there is loss of life in such a crash.

The bill, sponsored by Senator Warren G. Magnuson, (Dem.) Washington, was prompted by the crash of a United Airlines plane in which 44 persons were killed. John Gilbert Graham of Denver was convicted of planting a bomb aboard the plane.

In the event of damage to a plane or airport, but no loss of life, the measure provides maximum imprisonment of 20 years and a maximum fine of $10,000, or both.

and as contemplated by its framers."

Others at Conference.

Others attending the meeting included state chairmen Thomas H. Blanton of Virginia, John Larkins Jr. of North Carolina, James M. Milligan of Florida and Roy Mayhall of Alabama. Four other southern states were invited but did not send representatives. They were Texas, Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana.

The seven states represented here have a total of 196 delegates to the Democratic convention. The four states which did not send representatives have a total of 128 more. There will be 1377 delegate votes at the Chicago convention. A total of 686½ is required for nomination.

Bennett said that he would find the 1952 Democratic civil rights platform plank satisfactory, and he thought other Southern Democrats also would accept it. He and Bell of Georgia said they would like to see a Democratic statement against federal aid for schools, because they thought such aid would lead to federal interference with school operations by the state.

Bell, chairman of the committee to plan the meeting of Southern leaders, said that it would be necessary to consult the governors before any decision could be reached as to the time and place of the caucus.

GRENADE BLAST FATAL TO 14 IN ALGERIA MARKET

The New York Times News Service. (Copyright, 1956, by the New York Times Co.)

ALGIERS, July 14—Thirteen Arabs and a French corporal were killed today when a hand grenade exploded in the market place of La Robertsau in northeastern Algeria. The grenade presumably was thrown by an Arab terrorist.

Meanwhile, French authorities here made this Bastille day an occasion for a show of clemency in a move aimed at hastening a settlement of the Algerian conflict.

The office of Robert Lacoste, minister residing in Algeria, announced that civil servants who had participated in a general strike ordered by the national liberation front July 5 would be treated with leniency.

It was also announced that "certain categories of persons detained in internment camps" would be freed. These were thought to be followers of the nationalist leader Ferhat Abbas, advocate of an Arab republic for Algeria.

FORMOSA RESTRICTS SALE OF AUTOS BY FOREIGNERS

TAIPEI, Formosa, July 14 (AP)—The government has decreed that foreigners who bring cars to Formosa may not sell them to private persons but only to a state-appointed authority and at a price based on resale values in the United States.

If anyone finds the price unattractive, he can take his car with him when he leaves.

This is a blow to members of the diplomatic corps and United States servicemen who are allowed to import vehicles duty free. Formerly, sale of used cars to private persons at inflated prices enabled the sellers to buy new ones outside the country and, more often than not, still have money left.

STEVENSON HITS 'CYNICAL' MOVES OF G.O.P. REGIME

Says 'They're Kissing New Deal They've Denounced—And With Straight Face.'

PEMAQUID, Me., July 14 (UP)—Adlai E. Stevenson tonight accused the Eisenhower Administration of cynical election-year gestures for small business men and farmers.

"They're kissing the New Deal they've denounced and fought for so long—and with a straight face," he told a Democratic clambake.

Stevenson attacked Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. for having "the gall to put himself on a Sunday afternoon commercial television program and make a campaign announcement about the General Motors monopoly on making busses."

He said Brownell's television announcement two weeks ago was typical of the G.O.P. Administration's "cynicism" and "four years of do-nothingism."

A tidal drift toward monopoly has set in and the Federal Government has done very little to arrest it," the Democratic presidential aspirant charged.

Stevenson's speech was his first major address in his current swing through New England to drum up support for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Joined by Gov. Muskie.

Maine's Gov. Edmund S. Muskie joined Stevenson at the clambake. The Illinoisan heaped high praise on Muskie as a man who "has won great stature in the counsels of his party and his nation."

Stevenson attacked the Eisenhower Administration for a "lack of any real heartfelt concern . . . for the smaller, weaker economic units.

"In the last few months the Administration has suddenly become concerned with the school problem, the health situation, even the plight of the farmers," he said.

When congressional Democrats tried to raise support levels for dairy products and to establish 90 per cent of parity for farmers they were accused of "demogoguery," Stevenson said.

Yet, Stevenson said, when President Eisenhower announced the same dairy supports "it suddenly became an act of nobility." And "when Eisenhower proclaimed supports at 86 per cent of parity, that was principle," Stevenson said.

'4 Per Cent Difference.'

"Evidently the difference between principle and demagoguery is 4 per cent and the President who was applauded as a man of firm principles and flexible prices has got around to flexible principles and firm prices — in an election year," Stevenson added.

Stevenson warned that the trend towards monopoly is driving many small business men to the wall. He said livestock farmers in Iowa and Missouri told him last week they are worse off than they were in the depression.

In Maine, Stevenson said, the average cash labor income equivalent for farmers is as low as 10 cents an hour. He called this a "shocking" fact "at a time when we are told that the rest of the country is wallowing in prosperity."

There are solutions available for both problems, Stevenson said. He listed more defense and Government contracts, plus readier access to capital and long-term credit, for small businessmen, and better credit arrangements for farmers.

Blames Indifference.

But "the chief difficulty," Stevenson said, "is Governmental indifference — indifference to the human values of something like the family farm so long as the gross national product keeps going up."

Earlier, at Belfast, Stevenson said the appointment of Paul Hoffman and Senator William F. Knowland of California to the United Nations General Assembly "illustrates perfectly the trouble with the Republican party and its impotence in the conduct of foreign policy."

Stevenson told a press conference that Hoffman and Knowland each represent "conflicting viewpoints." He said, "It is all the President can do to maintain bi-partisanship within the Republican party."

Stevenson said "trying to satisfy" both wings of the party hurt attempts at "positive, consistent action demanded by the present world situation."

Stevenson criticized a statement made yesterday by United States delegate to the U.N. James J. Wadsworth that atomic tests would continue.

"I had hoped the United States might take some strong initiative in halting the tests of the weapons of total destruction, when even the testing may be so dangerous, let alone the use of such weapons," he said. "This is one area where we could take a step with relative safety towards the disarmament we talked so much about."

Two Onlookers in Airliner Fight Join Plotters in Begging Asylum

Betrothed Pair Injured When Seven Hungarians Seized Craft and Flew It to Germany to Escape Red Rule.

INGOLSTADT, Germany, July 14 (AP)—Two passengers caught in an aerial revolt aboard a Red Hungarian airliner joined the rebels in asking asylum today, police said.

Seven Hungarians seized the American-built DC-3 of the Hungarian state airlines in a bloody battle and flew it here last night. They declared they had lost all hope under Communist rule.

Today Bela Horvath, 34 years old, and his fiance, Ilona Antal, 19, innocent bystanders injured in the fight, decided to ask to remain in West Germany.

Police sources said they passed notes from their hospital rooms asking each other what they should do. They had said earlier they planned to announce their engagement in three weeks.

Bavarian officials said they believe all nine will be granted asylum. The other 10 persons aboard the plane said they wanted to return to Hungary.

Five Conspirators Hurt.

Five of the seven plotters suffered bashed heads and broken bones in subduing the crew of four, the other passengers and a Communist secret police agent. Seven other passengers and crew members also were in the hospital.

The ringleader of the aerial coup was Gyorgy Polyak, a Hungarian air force pilot in World War II. He is among the five in the hospital.

There was one woman among the conspirators. She was Enese Iszak, 19-year-old wife of Ferenc Iszak, 25, a Budapest student who was with her. Interviewed in the hospital, where she is being treated for a broken finger and broken ankle, she said:

"The systematic destruction by Communist authorities of all sparks of individual ambition was why we left."

"Nobody can plan for the future in Hungary," she said, "because we never knew whether they would let us realize our ambitions."

Another student, Joseph Jakaby, 25, said he joined the plot because in Hungary "there is absolutely no future for young men." He said he hoped to get to the United States to join his aunt, Mrs. William L. Farmer, of Chicago.

"The only way my husband, an educated man, could get a living was by driving a tractor," said Mrs. Iszak. "There was constant intrigue against him because he liked to wear neat clothes, keep his finger nails clean and go to decent cafes."

"What do you need most now?" she was asked.

"A comb, a mirror, lipstick and face cream," she replied, patting her battered face ruefully.

Mrs. Iszak, married 10 months, said the fight for control of the plane lasted only 15 minutes "but to me it seemed like eternity. I was sure we were all going to be killed."

The greatest difficulty the plotters had, she said, was to get tickets together on the same plane, bound from Budapest to Szombathely near the Austrian border. They said the escape had been planned long before the recent rioting in the Polish city of Poznan.

Shortly after the plane was over the industrial city of Gyor, Polyak stood up and said "Look, there's Gyor." That was the signal. The rebels hit other passengers on the head with iron rods they had concealed in their clothing. They had been tipped that a secret police agent was on the plane but did not know who he was.

Policeman Disarmed.

Then the little band broke down the cockpit door. Inside, with the four crew members, was the police agent. He drew his pistol, but Polyak disarmed him.

"Then a terrible fight started," Mrs. Iszak said. "The plane bounced up and down and rolled from side to side. I was thrown among other passengers and was hurt. The door flew open and objects like handbags fell out as the plane swayed. There was nobody to close it. All the men were fighting in the cockpit."

Eventually, she said, Polyak, blood streaming down from his head, teeth missing and clothes ripped, took over direction of the plane with the Communist pilot at the controls. Another student escapee, Gabor Kiss, held a pistol at the Communist's head.

At times they came down to 30 feet above ground. They feverishly sought a map they had lost in the debris in the plane.

"Finally we found it," Kiss said. "We were running very low on gas. We flew by compass and the radio was out of order. Over Ingolstadt, we saw what looked like an abandoned airfield and decided to land. We were still not sure if we were in East of West Germany."

DROUTH DISASTER AID FOR MISSOURI

Four Northern Counties Declared Eligible for Federal Relief.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 14—Missouri was designated a disaster area by President Eisenhower today because of the continuing drouth, thus becoming eligible for emergency assistance.

The designation enables the Secretary of Agriculture to determine which areas are immediately affected and in need of assistance. Secretary Ezra Taft Benson has designated four counties on the northern border for immediate relief. They are Gentry, Harrison, Mercer and Putnam counties.

Farmers in those counties will be permitted to graze livestock on acreage reserves set aside under the soil bank program, to enable their normal pastures to grow back.

Grazing on the soil bank reserve land is specifically prohibited under the soil bank plan except by emergency declaration such as this.

The grazing provision in those counties will continue through Aug. 31. Benson is wiring Missouri Gov. Phil M. Donnelly to this effect.

Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (Dem.), Missouri, had asked President Eisenhower several times this year to declare Missouri a disaster area. Last June 22, President Eisenhower did declare the drouth-stricken town of Bethany, in Harrison county, a disaster area.

Although there has been some rainfall in the northern part of the state in recent weeks, the drouth problem there has been aggravated by five consecutive years of subnormal rainfall.

The topsoil looks in fairly good condition, but the subsoil suffers from a lack of moisture, it was reported here by a recent visitor to that section of Missouri.

NASSER CALLS FOR MORE TRADE WITH YUGOSLAVS

Suggests Broad Exchange Between Two Nations—He and Tito Wait for Nehru.

BELGRADE, July 14 (AP)—President Nasser of Egypt tonight called for increased trade and economic co-operation between his country and Yugoslavia.

Nasser and his party conferred for three hours with Yugoslav economic leaders. Then he left for Sarajevo on a tour of Yugoslavia.

Informed sources said Nasser showed keen interest in Yugoslavia's economic and administrative system. He suggested a broad exchange of experiences between the two nations.

After Nasser suggested increased trade, it was agreed an Egyptian delegation would come here soon to discuss the question, the sources reported.

Nasser was host earlier tonight to President Tito and members of the diplomatic colony at a formal reception. Tito had put on a parade of Yugoslavia's military might for Nasser early in the day.

Tito and Nasser are awaiting the arrival of Prime Minister Nehru of India for a meeting of the three leading exponents of neutralism.

In this connection, the official newspaper Borba denied Tito, Nasser and Nehru plan to form a neutral bloc.

Borba said the objective of the three leaders' conversations will be "broad, active and rounded co-operation between all countries on the basis of democratic principles."

They will meet next Wednesday on the Adriatic island of Brioni. Those around them predict a brisk exchange of views rather than any far-reaching decisions.

These are topics diplomats believe will come up at Brioni:

How the three can ease East-West tensions.

How to persuade both East and West to funnel aid to such under-developed nations as India, Egypt and Yugoslavia through the United Nations so they will feel no political obligation to either side.

The Algerian revolt. Nasser hopes to win support for the Algerian nationalists, who are strongly backed by the Arab League.

A review of international affairs, with Tito reporting on his Russian trip and Nehru outlining Western views picked up during the commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London.

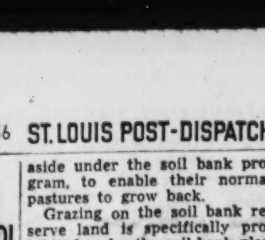

The Israel-Arab question. Nehru is expected to avoid any commitment on this issue on which Nasser feels so strongly.

NEW PAINLESS IODINE STOPS INFECTION FAST!

WON'T BURN OR STING THE WOUND! NO POISON LABEL! SAFE . . . EVEN IF SWALLOWED ACCIDENTALLY!

Revolutionary ISODINE, the full potency antiseptic . . . containing the new "complexed" iodine . . . soothes wounds, promotes healing like no other antiseptic does!

Laboratory-tested and proved up to 40 times faster than two leading antiseptics in killing germs.

Doctors hail ISODINE Antiseptic because:
1. ISODINE does not irritate or blister skin
2. You can safely bandage over ISODINE
3. ISODINE retains full potency.

Works continuously against infection! Applied as a liquid there is no pain. ISODINE forms a brown film over the injury. This ISODINE film protects continuously. Lasts as long as the color remains.

SO GENTLE THAT BANDAGING IS RECOMMENDED!
"My son, Brian, used to run screaming from iodine. Now he asks for non-burning ISODINE. Nothing like it—ever before." (J.A.—amazed mother)
"No tears! No flinching! Instead, just like putting water on." (M.K.—father of 4)
ISODINE has been tested in hospitals, under doctors' supervision, in babies' throat infections, in bone surgery, and on over 3,971 patients. A famous surgeon's report: "Effects were dramatic. We consider ISODINE the antiseptic of choice."

Why You Should Get ISODINE Today: Ordinary iodine loses germ-killing potency—deteriorates on the shelf. Other antiseptics fail to protect, so infection develops. ISODINE is full-potency when you buy it—gives full protection every time!

PROFESSORS COOL TO TV INSTRUCTION

It Can Supplement, but Not Replace Classroom Work, They Say.

Educational television can be a helpful supplement, but not a full substitute for classroom instruction, several university professors here told a reporter yesterday. Most do not believe a good television course can equal a good course taught in a classroom.

It was explained that such experiments as the announcement by Washington University last week that it would teach a basic freshman mathematics course on television have been prompted by two national educational problems: How to improve the quality of education, and how to give an education to the increasing number of persons demanding it.

Most teachers feel television hinders rather than helps good teachers. They do agree that televised education is better than no education for the many who will not be able to attend college as the demand for places increases faster than the ability of schools to satisfy it.

Adult Education Courses.

The primary use of educational television station KETC to date by Washington and St. Louis universities has been to provide adult education courses of the type now offered in their night school divisions. Officials at both schools also believe televising lectures in day school courses may, in a limited number of cases, ease or solve a shortage of faculty and classrooms.

A proposal was made last spring at Washington University to introduce a "College of the Air" in the four-year college of liberal arts and sciences. Under such a proposal students would have had the option of following required freshman-sophomore - lectures in class rooms or on television.

When faculty opposition developed, proponents of the plan agreed to alter it so that the "College of the Air" would develop as a separate division of the institution, like the night school. Plans are now being worked out for it to offer a junior college degree to persons unable to afford a day school education or unable to meet the day school's entrance requirements.

University professors regard televised education as still very much in the experimental stage, the survey showed.

"On television a professor cannot suit his lectures to each student audience and students lose the stimulation that can only be gained through campus associations," Prof. Thomas H. Eliot, of the Washington University political science department, pointed out.

Discussions Required.

All professors contacted agreed that any courses with televised lectures should also have small class-room discussions between the instructor and students if they are to approximate university standards.

The Rev. John F. Bannon S.J., a professor at St. Louis university, said he thought a minimum of one discussion meeting should be held for every five lectures. Disagreeing with other teachers, he said he believed most lectures could be presented as satisfactorily on television as in a classroom.

Prof. Eliot said he felt a television teacher may be forced to turn into a "ham" entertainer to hold the attention of students viewing programs at home. "They are not a captive audience, but one subject to all the normal home distractions. They also think of television as an entertainment medium."

"The real danger in televised education is that some people may jump to the conclusion it is a cheap panacea for the problems of our schools," Prof. Robert Sard, of Washington University, emphasized. "Experiments in the medium cannot substitute for efforts to secure higher teacher salaries, more school buildings and greater respect for the pursuit of knowledge in our society."

5 SALVATION ARMY CADETS FROM CITY GO TO LONDON

Five St. Louis teen-agers, cadets in the Salvation Army, were en route to London today to take part in an international youth conference which is to last from July 19 to Aug. 1.

They are Miss Sharon Graham, 4981A Columbia avenue; Miss Shirley Kennedy, 701 Bismark avenue, Webster Groves; Ronald Koch, 4057 McDonald avenue; Herbert Lodge, 4104 Hartford street, and John Wright, 4734 Labadie avenue.

They were to join other Salvation Army groups in Chicago and go by ship from Montreal. After the meeting, to be attended by young persons from the 85 countries and colonies in which the Salvation Army is represented, the cadets will tour Europe and Scandinavia.

FUN WORKSHOP AT COUNTY 'Y'

A "summer fun workshop" for country children from 7 to 14 years old will begin at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday at the County Branch Y.W.C.A., 140 North Brentwood boulevard, Clayton.

The workshop will meet at 9:30 a.m. each Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday for four weeks. Each Thursday will be excursion day. Registration is $8 plus a $1 Y.W.C.A. membership fee.

A New, Sparkling You in just 30 Days!

That's right! Why go through life looking prematurely old, fat, out of shape, out of style, and out of sorts with yourself? Why not reshape and rebuild yourself, inside and outside, this quick, easy way?

Wake up thirty days from now weighing less, looking younger, feeling much better and acting livelier than you have for years. Start now to feel younger again. Get back that handsome manly appearance, that beautiful feminine figure.

A short EXERCYCLE ride daily does wonders for you! It gives you positive weight control, increases body metabolism, improves your circulation and keeps your heart strong by making it pump more blood, more nourishment, to every organ and cell, gland and tissue of the body. It will benefit your lungs, improve your wind-power, stamina and endurance, sharpen your appetite, promote sound sleep and regularity, thus helping to normalize blood pressure and soothe your nerves.

Stop kidding yourself into believing that you can accomplish all this with just an occasional reducing diet, treatment, pill, or spurt of week-end activity. Any physiologist will tell you that to maintain a body beautiful, youthfulness, energy to spare and a sparkling personality requires daily exercise of the main body muscles and joints . . . exercise of the fat-consuming and heart-conditioning type such as EXERCYCLE provides.

OVER 60, AND STILL GOING STRONG!

"I'm past 60 and active in business every day. My doctor says I have the body and stamina of a young, healthy man of 35. I ride my Exercycle every morning at home. My doctor adds that it's this daily exercising of my main joints and muscles that helps to keep my weight down, my heart young, my circulation good, my blood pressure normal, my elimination regular, my lungs in top shape, my muscles firm and my joints flexible. As a result, I eat like the proverbial horse, sleep like a baby and feel like a youngster. A few minutes spent daily on my Exercycle is a small price indeed to pay for the way I feel. I strongly urge every man and woman who sits, rides or stands for the most part of each day without benefit of active muscular exercise, to send for additional information on this marvelous fully-automatic, self-propelled, motor-driven home Exercycle."

LET THIS FULLY-AUTOMATIC SELF-PROPELLED, MOTOR-DRIVEN

Exercycle

Keep You Slender, Young and Active!

Wonderful for Women

EXERCYCLE is so easy to ride, so gentle and silent in operation, and so effective in beautifying the figure and controlling weight that 40% of EXERCYCLE buyers are women.

Daily exercise is no longer the monotonous, time-consuming, tiring and back breaking chore of old when you own an EXERCYCLE. For EXERCYCLE does, automatically and speedily, what used to take hours of strenuous pushing, pulling, lifting, straining and puffing. Click a switch —and presto! you are rowing . . . cycling . . . swimming . . . horseback riding . . . doing calisthenics . . . all at one and the same time — and without lifting a finger yourself. In 15 minutes you're rested, relaxed, refreshed, and re-energized, ready for work, play, a night of gayety, or sound sleep. Gone are those vague aches and pains, and that tired, restless and dragged-out feeling that usually signals the need for better circulation and "muscle stretching." That's EXERCYCLING for you! Totally different! . . . completely modern!

PLANNED PROGRAM HELPS YOU

EXERCYCLE provides a scientifically planned body rebuilding and health maintenance plan which removes the guesswork, the stiffness, the soreness, the fatigue and the monotony from exercising. For EXERCYCLE is to exercise what taste is to eating—it makes it a pleasure! And with EXERCYCLE, you can listen to the radio, watch television, or even read, while improving yourself physically.

Let's face it! The old-fashioned push-ups, chin-ups, sit-ups, body rotations, and squatting exercises are too strenuous, too monotonous and too time-consuming for the average middle-aged person. EXERCYCLE changes all of this! For — after 35 — what the body needs mostly is not the muscular strain and fatigue that accompanies ordinary exercising, but rather a set of systematic, coordinated, rhythmic motions—smooth and gentle — such as EXERCYCLE provides . . . movements which automatically set into motion your main body muscles and joints, while you just sit and ride!

TERRIFIC FOR QUICK, SAFE RELIEF FROM NERVOUS TENSION!

There's probably nothing that can relieve that jittery, jumpy feeling, caused by overtaxed nerves, worry or overwork, more quickly, safely and effectively than a gentle, silent and completely automatic EXERCYCLE ride. By stepping up the circulation almost instantly, EXERCYCLE helps relieve congested tissues and organs, bringing quick relief to tired nerves, leaving you relaxed, soothed and rested.

U. S. RESERVED IN BACKING NEW PLAN FOR CYPRUS

State Department Welcomes Eden's Move for Liberalizing Constitution.

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP) —The United States gave an extremely cautious indorsement today to Britain's new efforts to solve the Cyprus problem.

Prime Minister Eden announced Thursday he was sending Lord Radcliffe, an outstanding British legal expert, to Cyprus for consultations looking toward the drafting of a new "liberal" constitution for the Mediterranean island.

In response to a question about the American attitude toward the new British move, the State Department said today:

"The United States welcomes the intention of the British government, as announced by Prime Minister Eden, to proceed with the development of self-government on the island of Cyprus."

Department officials said privately that Eden obviously was trying to get the problem off dead center and that the new move thus offers some hope of opening a way to settlement.

Eden made two points in defining policy in his Thursday report to the House of Commons which apparently found support in official quarters here, although they were not covered by the brief American statement.

He said a new constitution for Cyprus could not be put into effect before law and order had been restored. This was an invitation for the Greek Cypriot terrorists to consider what political gains they might make by giving up terrorism.

Eden also held open the possibility that under some circumstances his government would be willing to consult with Archbishop Makarios, the Greek Cypriot leader he banished from the island in March. Speaking of such consultation, Eden said that if the archbishop was to denounce terrorism "then a new situation would be created."

United States officials felt that the Eden government blundered in exiling Makarios and have contended that until some way could be found to reopen negotiations with him there was little chance of getting a Cyprus settlement.

CYPRIOTS WARN OF RETALIATION

NICOSIA, Cyprus, July 14 (AP)—Greek Cypriot rebels warned the British today that from now on their policy would be an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth.

Leaflets distributed in Nicosia said that for every Greek child killed by British security forces the rebels will kill a British child, for every Greek woman killed a British woman will be killed.

The leaflets bore the typed signature "Eoka, the leader Dighenis." Eoka is the underground of the movement fighting for union of the British island colony with Greece. The British say Dighenis is Greek Col. George Grivas.

2 Greek Children Killed.

Available records show two Greek children have been killed since violence erupted in April 1955. One child was shot at Larnaca last March. Children shouting for union with Greece had stoned two military vehicles. Police and British soldiers jumped out and tried to disperse them. Only one shot was fired. That hit a 7-year-old boy.

The second child was killed in the village of Koma Yialou. A Greek Cypriot extremist threw a bomb at a British motorized convoyed and killed the child, who happened to be on the scene. Two British soldiers were slightly injured.

Last December the Greek government officially protested to Britain against the death of a Greek woman on Cyprus. The Greeks charged she was shot when an automobile in which she was traveling failed to halt at a challenge from a British sentry.

In another leaflet mailed out today, Eoka claimed to have inflicted casualties on the British which exceed British figures. Eoka said 212 Britons have been killed. The British report 48 British dead, including 40 service men, in shootings and bombings. Total deaths attributed by the British to Eoka violence for all nationalities, British and Greek and Turkish Cypriots, are about 115.

The Eoka leaflet claimed 37 British soldiers were killed and 30 wounded in operations against the rebels in the Troodos mountains in June.

UNIVERSITY CITY SCHOOLS HAD $1,122,110 DEFICIT

University City school district expenditures exceeded revenue by $1,122,110 during the year ending June 30, it was reported yesterday.

Disbursements totaled $3,930,925 while revenue amounted to $2,808,815. The schools began the year with a cash balance of $2,590,674, which now has been reduced to $1,468,564.

There was a capital outlay of $1,007,974 in addition to expenditure of $1,929,481 for instruction salaries and supplies.

OPERA WORKSHOP AUDITIONS

Preliminary auditions for participation in the 1956-57 season of the Washington University opera workshop will be held Thursday at 6:30 p.m. in Brown Hall on the campus.

Singers will be expected to have an operatic aria and one song in English prepared. Accompaniment will be furnished.

SUPREME SOVIET BOOSTS PENSIONS OF RED WORKERS

MOSCOW, July 14 (AP) — The Supreme Soviet (parliament) voted unanimously today to increase retirement pensions for Russian workers.

Both houses registered their approval of a pension bill presented by Premier Buganin's government.

Pension outlays will be increased from 25 billion to 38 billion rubles under the government measure. (Officially the ruble is valued at 25 cents. In terms of purchasing power, Western authorities say, it is worth only five to 10 cents.)

The bill is designed to liberalize the Soviet pension system. A proposal to lower the retirement age to 50 was laughed down. Men now can retire at 60 after 35 years of labor and women at 55.

UNION BAR ON JOPPA STRIKE CHIEF UPHELD

Court Rules Board Had Right to Expel Official for Life.

CINCINNATI, July 14 (AP)—The United States court of appeals yesterday upheld a union's action in barring for life an officer who refused to stop picketing an atomic energy project at Joppa, Ill., in 1953.

W. B. Sanders, former business agent and secretary-treasurer of Local 595, Paducah, Ky., International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers, was removed from his posts and barred from the union for life by the organization's general executive board.

Sanders then sought an injunction and the union filed a counter claim. In yesterday's action, the Court of Appeals reversed a district court ruling enjoining the expulsion of Sanders. The court affirmed a portion of the lower court finding that upheld the officers appointed by the union in Sander's place.

"We concur in the determination of the district court except as to its holding that the expulsion of Sanders was not a reasonable exercise of the authority of the general executive board and that such action was, therefore, unlawful and must be set aside," the court ruled.

Turkish-Yugoslav Trade Pact.

BELGRADE, July 14 (AP)—Turkey and Yugoslavia today signed a $20,000,000 one-year trade agreement — $5,000,000 less than last year's pact. Turkey failed to meet its wheat and cotton export quotas under the previous $25,000,000 agreement, which expired in April.

CIVILIAN AGENCY SET UP TO HELP JUDGE WEAPONS

100 Scientists in Institute for Defense Analysis Will Strengthen U.S. Program.

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP) —The Defense Department is strengthening its weapons evaluation program with the creation of a civilian agency of 100 top scientists, set up at Government request by five leading engineering colleges.

The new group is the Institute for Defense Analysis, a non-profit Delaware corporation.

A Defense Department spokesman said it will work on a contract basis and in an advisory capacity to the Weapons System Evaluation Group, established eight years ago by James V. Forrestal, first Secretary of Defense.

Some of Problems.

Some of the problems that defense chiefs hope to be able to solve through the new group are:

Which is the best anti-aircraft guided missile — the Army's Nike B or the Air Force's Talos?

Which is the best long-range ballistic missile system, and when will it begin to replace manned strategic bombers?

How much emphasis should be placed on preparations for a "limited war," which Army chiefs say is more likely than an all-out thermonuclear attack?

The institute is being set up by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (M.I.T.), California Institute of Technology, Stanford University, Tulane University and the Case Institute of Technology.

Leaders of Group.

The group will be headed by Maj. Gen. James McCormack Jr., a West Pointer, Rhodes Scholar and M.I.T. graduate. McCormack was Air Force research chief from 1950 until his retirement last fall.

Dr. Albert G. Hill, physics professor at M.I.T. and former head of the famed Lincoln Laboratories, will be research director of the institute. He is recruiting the 100 scientists for the planned staff.

Directive control of the enlarged weapons evaluation group will come from Secretary of Defense Wilson, working with the joint chiefs of staff.

Hill said the new organization plans an active role in the development of weapons. Independent research units of the Army, Navy and Air Force will be asked to work closely with it.

RED CROSS WILL HONOR OVERLAND POLICEMAN

Harry Barnfeld, member of the Overland Police Department, will receive a Red Cross Certificate of Merit in recognition of his action in saving the life of 19-year-old Chaarles J. Incontro. He will be honored at a meeting of the County Council at 3 p.m. Wednesday in the courthouse at Clayton.

Presentation of the certificate, highest honor given by the Red Cross, will be made by Dr. Lloyd L. Tate, chairman of first aid for the St. Louis chapter. Barnfeld, a certified Red Cross first aid instructor, applied artificial respiration to Incontro and gave him first aid treatment after he had been injured in an automobile accident.

In a letter to the Red Cross, Dr. Curtis H. Lohr, superintendent of St. Louis County Hospital, said: "The members of our entire staff are convinced that if it had not been for the excellent first aid and especially the artificial respiration given the patient by Officer Barnfeld, the injured person would not have lived."

NEW BLAST FURNACE TO BE 'BLOWN IN' AT GRANITE CITY

The furnace, first to be built in the St. Louis area in 30 years, will be christened "Marian" in honor of Mrs. John N. Marshall, wife of the chairman of the board of the company. Mrs. Marshall, who lives at 410 North Newstead avenue, will apply a torch to kindling which will begin the firing process.

The furnace, which is 229 feet in heighth, represents an integral part of an expansion program scheduled to increase the company's capacity to 1,440,000 net tons of ingots a year by early 1958. When it is "blown in" the furnace will begin a period of continuous operation of five years before necessity of replacement of 725,000 bricks lining its interior.

TWO OFFICIALS QUIT PEOPLE'S HOSPITAL

Administrator and Head of Nurses Give Policy Conflicts as Reason.

William E. Lafayette, administrator at People's Hospital, and Mrs. Olivia Collins, superintendent of nurses there have submitted their resignations to the board of directors, it was airned yesterday. Both said they were ending their services at the hospital for Negroes, a United Fund agency, because of a conflict in administrative policies.

Lafayette, former administrative assistant at Freedman's Hospital, Washington, D.C., said he decided to leave the staff because his program was not being given "the proper support" by the board. He told the Post-Dispatch some of the members had suggested that he resign.

In her letter of resignation, Mrs. Collins said she was leaving the hospital because many of her duties had been curtailed and the job of superindent had been reduced to a subsidiary position. She added that this resulted in no apparent "improvements in the nursing condtions after two years of effort."

Herschel Davis, president of the board of directors, said he knew of no conflicts between hospital officials and the board. He said neither Lafayette nor Mrs. Collins followed the regular procedure for filing complaints or grievances. There were differences of opinions regarding hospital operations he added, but nothing serious enough to cause alarm. The nursing service, he added, comes directly under the hospital administrator and not the board.

Lafayette, 1157A Aubert avenue, last year succeeded William H. Andrews, who resigned after a year of service to accept another position. Mrs. Collins, 4535 Lexington avenue, is a graduate of the Homer G. Phillips Hospital School of Nursing, where she taught for 10 years. She has been on the staff of People's Hospital for the last two years.

In June 1954, Elmer V. Mosee was discharged as administrator of People's Hospital by the board of directors after 10 years of service. No reason was given. The board informed him by letter, however, that he "no longer functioned as its representative in management."

Mosee, a former deputy circuit clerk, was the hospital's representative in acquiring Federal funds for construction of a new hospital building.

2 BROTHERS BEATEN BY GANG OF YOUTHS

Assaulted While Waiting for Bus at California, Shenandoah Avenues.

Two brothers, Robert and Edward Hudson, 2727A Meramec street, were beaten by a gang of youths early yesterday at California and Shenandoah avenues, they reported to police. The victims were treated for minor injuries at City Hospital.

They said they were waiting for a bus en route home from a Veterans of Foreign Wars meeting when a pick-up truck occupied by six or seven young men about 18 to 21 years old halted at a stop sign and one of the persons in it shouted an insult at them.

Three youths got out of the truck and started toward the Hudsons. They were joined by three or four others who got out of an auotmobile that stopped immediately behind the truck.

The young men started a fight, the Hudsons said, and both brothers were knocked down. Robert Hudson, 36 years old, a machine operator, suffered face lacerations. Edward, 31, a hospital attendant, received a skull laceration.

FOUR WITNESSES DUE TOMORROW IN HODGE INQUIRY

Resigned Chicago Bank Head, 3 of Auditor's Employes to Appear on Opening Day.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 14 (AP)—A state grand jury investigating affairs of State Auditor Orville E. Hodge is expected to hear four witnesses at its first session Monday.

George P. Coutrakon, Sangamon county state's attorney conducting the inquiry, said the "principal witness" would be Edward A. Hintz, president, until his resignation yesterday, of the Southmoor Bank and Trust Co. of Chicago.

Hintz will be asked about circumstances under which 21 state warrants bearing unorthodox indorsements were cashed for a total of $269,568. He will also be asked about a $50,000 loan the bank made to Hodge.

The three others subpenaed are Lloyd E. Lane, director of personnel in Hodge's office; Tom Shannon, custodian of a Springfield warehouse where records of the state auditor are kept, and John J. Casper, caretaker at the Lake Springfield home of Auditor Hodge.

18 Others to Appear.

Curtrakon said that 18 other persons had been served with subpenas to appear July 23.

The Sangamon county investigation is one of several touched off by the disclosure of irregularities in the state auditor's office. And other repercussions have been numerous.

Perhaps the most jarring has been the effect upon the Republican state ticket of Gov. William G. Stratton in the Nov. 6 election. Hodge, who is a candidate for re-election, has been asked by Stratton to withdraw from the race and leave the choice of a successor to G.O.P. leaders.

The Governor also has demanded that Hodge double his $50,000 personal bond of office by Aug. 1 or have his office declared vacant.

Two formal investigations springing from the situation in the auditor's office will get under way Tuesday. In Chicago, a federal grand jury will open an investigation into Hodge's dealings with the Southmoor Bank and Trust Co.

Check by Commission.

The Illinois State Budgetary Commission, a legislative planning body, will begin a checkup on the auditor's affairs the same day.

Already under way are separate investigations by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., seeking to determine whether U.S. banking laws have been violated.

Coutrakon said that the Springfield grand jury investigation will seek to learn why a group of six working fund appropriations for Hodge's office, totaling $1,215,000, which were planned to cover expenditures over a two-year-period, had shrunk in less than one year to $14,378.

Most of the 42 state warrants under investigation involve more than half a million dollars.

HARRIMAN IN SOUTH, HITS AT SEGREGATION

Struggle Against Reds Is 'Great Issue,' He Says in North Carolina.

ASHEBORO, N.C., July 14 (AP)—Averell Harriman urged North and South alike tonight to end racial discrimination in order to meet "the great issue of our time — the struggle against Kremlin-led Communism."

He chided President Eisenhower for "failing to exercise his responsibility of leadership" in finding solutions to race problems.

The New York Governor, making his first appearance in the South since announcing as an active candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, said in a speech to a North Carolina Young Democratic clubs dinner:

"It is vital to our leadership in the world and to our national security that we live by the principles of the Declaration of Independence and move forward to eliminate the discrimination that remains in this country."

Segregation Bills Offered.

Only a few hours before Harriman spoke, North Carolinians got an advance look at legislation, proposed by their Governor's advisory committee on education, designed to preserve segregated public schools. The North Carolina General Assembly will meet July 23 to consider eight bills, backed by Gov. Luther H. Hodges. Two key one call for constitutional amendments to permit state tuition grants to private segregated schools and to allow closing of public schools in "intolerable" situations.

Hodges, an Adlai Stevenson supporter like most other North Carolina Democratic leaders, did not attend the dinner. Stevenson carried North Carolina in 1952 and seems assured of Tar Heel support at the national convention again this year.

Harriman made no direct reference to the North Carolina school proposals in his speech. But he said governmental authorities — federal, state and local—"have the obligation to go forward in accordance with" the Supreme Court's anti-segregation decisions.

Points to Responsibility.

Further, he said, the President has a responsibility and an opportunity to provide leadership to help work out solutions. This, he charged, Mr. Eisenhower has not done.

Harriman said "the present emotional atmosphere," which he blamed largely on Mr. Eisenhower, "has led to accusations that I am for using Federal troops to enforce the decisions (of the court)."

"Nothing could be further from the truth," Harriman declared. He added, "even to raise the question of using troops is irresponsible."

"But we must recognize," he continued, "that two-thirds of the free people have colored skins. The Communists are using racial discrimination in America as a basis for part of their campaign of hate against us. I have seen how they use it, and I know it works."

CANCELED ILLINOIS CHECKS DROPPED INTO DEPOSITORY

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 14 (AP) — Some canceled state checks were dropped into a bank depository at night, but investigators said today that, although mysterious, the incident was not important.

Six canceled state warrants, made out to contractors in a total amount of $156,644, and all indorsed as having been paid, turned up early Thursday in the night depository of the Springfield Marine Bank.

Investigators, already busy with sorting the circumstances under which 41 other warrants totaling more than $500,000 were issued and cashed under what State's Attorney Gtorge P. Coutrakon termed "suspicious circumstances," checked on the new find.

It was determined that the warrants, all issued July 2, were regular in every respect. One investigator guessed the incident might have been "the work of a state employe with an eye for a practical joke."

Prospects Brighten for Creation Of U.S. Advisory Council on Arts

Bill in Favorable Position Following Senate Approval—St. Louisans Among 318 Signers Urging Its Passage.

By SAM J. SHELTON JR.
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 14—Prospects for passage of legislation creating a federal advisory council on the arts have brightened considerably with Senate approval of a bill cosponsored by United States Senator Herbert H. Lehman (Dem.) of New York.

The proposed arts advisory council was one of two complementary pieces of legislation recommended by President Eisenhower in his State of the Union message to Congress Jan. 6, 1955. The other was to provide for an award to be known as the medal for distinguished civilian achievement.

Both measures, though they have many proponents in and out of Congress, are what could be called minor legislation and have been taken on a slow and uncertain congressional course. The first conclusive action on each came this month, with the advisory council bill passing the Senate July 5 and the House passing the civilian achievement award bill July 2.

Art Encouragement.

Mr. Eisenhower, in recommending the federal advisory group, said it would "advise the Federal Government on ways to encourage artistic endeavor and appreciation."

The apparent impetus for this bill came from Nelson A. Rockefeller when he was Under Secretary in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and was accepted readily by the President, an enthusiastic amateur oil painter. Rockefeller later served as executive assistant to the President for cultural affairs and psychological warfare before resigning.

When the federal advisory council bill was brought up in the Senate, Lehman introduced a statement from the National Council on the Arts and Government urging its enactment.

Among the 318 signers, all prominent men and women in the arts in the United States, were Vladimir Golschmann, director of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra; Harris Armstrong, architect, of Kirkwood; Charles Nagel, director of the St. Louis City Art Museum, and Perry T. Rathbone, former City Art Museum director in St. Louis, now director of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

The National Council on the Arts and Government stated in its petition, "We believe that the welfare of the nation's arts is a proper matter for the concern of its Government and that such legislation would serve the interests of the nation as well as those of the arts it would promote."

Art Representatives.

The signers, from 30 states, represented music, drama, dance, literatures, architecture, painting, sculpture, graphics, photography, motion pictures, radio, television and also art museum directors, patrons of the arts, art critics, universities and art schools.

The Senate bill would establish a federal advisory council on the arts within the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and would set up a 24-member group whose purpose would be to encourage artistic and cultural endeavors, both nationally and internationally, and to stimulate greater appreciation of the arts.

Twenty-one of the council members would be representative of seven major fields of art and three would be persons "who have been or are associated with organizations or institutions engaged in preserving, displaying, or advancing the arts, or promoting the creation or understanding of the arts."

All would be appointed by the President. The major art fields named were: music; drama and dance; literature; architecture and allied arts; painting, sculpture, graphic and craft arts, and photography; motion pictures, and radio and television. At least two council members would be representative of each of the seven fields, it was set out in the bill.

Several bills to create an arts advisory council have been introduced in the House, but, although a subcommittee of the Education and Labor Committee has held hearings on the matter none has been reported out.

Offers Similar Bills.

With passage of the Senate bill, however, hope was revived by proponents of the measure on the House side. Representative Frank Thompson Jr. (Dem.), New Jersey, who has been actively working for passage of advisory council legislation, introduced on July 6 a bill identical to the Senate-approved version.

Representative Lee Metcalf (Dem.), Montana, chairman of the subcommittee which heard testimony on earlier advisory council bills, has said the subcommittee is ready to report favorably on the new bill. But the question remaining is whether, in the rush of last-minute legislation in the few remaining days of the session, it will be shunted aside in the full House Committee on Education and Labor.

Congressional interest in both the bill for a medal for distinguished civilian achievement and for creation of the advisory council for the arts can be attributed in part at least to a resurgence of a belief there is need for cultural development in this country.

Senator Lehman observed at a hearing on his bill last April that in the last two years utilization of the arts had become an integral part of United States foreign policy.

"Since the end of World War II, there has been an increasing realization that the Federal Government gives less recognition to the role of the arts in our national life than any other major nation or even many smaller nations," Lehman said.

Augmenting Resources.

The purpose of the federal advisory council on the arts is to strengthen and augment our cultural resources at home, Lehman said.

"Unless this is done," he went on, "the benefits we anticipate from international cultural exchanges may fall short of expectations sooner than we think, and some of our arts may eventually fail us on the cultural battlefields of the cold war."

Testimony before House and Senate subcommittees by experts in the various fields of art was strongly in favor of the proposed council.

Of the few witnesses who spoke against the proposed council, the two main fears expressed were that it would provide for a Government subsidy of art and that the council would be dominated by one particular faction of art.

Most of the witnesses did not feel, however, that either of these suspected dangers was inherent in the bill. Harold Weston, president of the Federation of Modern Painters and Sculptors and vice chairman of the National Council on the Arts and Government, said, "the council believes the Government of the United States should recognize the importance of the arts to our national welfare and that it should turn to professional creative artists for advice in matters pertaining to the arts.

Help in Depression.

"This is a far cry from asking the Government to subsidize the arts generally, as it did temporarily during the depression."

The Senate bill itself sets out that "the growth and flourishing of the arts depend on freedom, imagination, and individual initiative."

Another observation in the Senate bill, "that as workdays shorten and life expectancy lengthens, the arts will play an ever more important role in the lives of our citizens," has won strong support from labor representatives appearing as witnesses at the hearings.

Just how the proposed council would undertake to "maintain and increase the cultural resources of the United States," and "to foster artistic and cultural endeavors and the use of the arts . . . and to stimulate greater appreciation of the arts by our citizens," as set forth in the bill, would, of course result from the council's study of the various problems.

One suggestion, however, was made by Nelson Rockfeller at the House subcommittee hearings.

"When the proposed appointment of a commission of the arts, the President expressed belief that the 'Federal Government should do more to give official recognition to the importance of the arts and other cultural activities,'" Rockefeller said. "One proposal to this end is the creation of a Government-sponsored national academy, an idea which I know has the President's support. It would appear to me that exploration of the merits and feasibility of this idea should be taken up among the early business of the council."

Rail Union May Join AFL-CIO.

CLEVELAND, July 14 (AP)—The Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen said today it may decide July 23 on whether to join the AFL-CIO. The brotherhood is the first major independent union to explore possible affiliation with the merged labor group.

CHARGES REVEAL HIJACKING RING IN STATE PRISON

JEFFERSON CITY, July 14 (AP)—James T. Riley, Cole county prosecuting attorney, filed armed robbery charges yesterday against two convicts and said it was the start of a drive to break up hi-jacking inside the State Penitentiary.

Kenneth Hood and Ray E. Warren, were charged in magistrate court with forcing another convict to give them his commissary card. Their preliminary hearing was set for July 26.

Hood, is serving 15 years from Jackson county for assault and attempt to kill, kidnaping and robbery. Warren, is serving 30 years from St. Louis for armed robbery.

Riley said hardened convicts have been shaking down newcomers to the prison at knife point and threatening reprisals if the victims "squeal" to prison authorities.

KEFAUVER CHARGES LACK OF LEADERSHIP

Says G.O.P. Indecision Is Undermining Nation's Prestige Abroad.

SALT LAKE CITY, July 14 (AP)—Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee said today the Administration's "appalling lack of leadership keeps us immobilized on dead center in domestic affairs and is seriously undermining our prestige abroad."

The candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination told a county convention the nation is suffering from "a bankruptcy of leadership on the part of this Administration, from the President on down."

Kefauver said recent evidence of "drift and indecision" on the part of the Eisenhower Administration includes: "With riots and bloodshed on Cyprus and war threatening in Morocco and on the Israeli-Arab border, we have still developed no clear policy to deal with this explosive area.

"Every day that passes we are falling behind Russia in the development of our guided missiles program, which is stalled by internal bickering among our armed forces. Our defense establishment requires firm guidance from the White house.

"We are behind Russia, England and France in our development of peacetime uses for atomic energy . . . but the Administration stubbornly resists every effort to provide the federal atomic power development."

On the subject of neutrality, Kefauver said Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has reversed both himself and the President in recent weeks and Vice President Richard M. Nixon "indulged in a feud" with Indian Prime Minister Nehru while on a good will mission.

"Is it not time," Kefauver asked, "that strong leadership from the White House put a halt to such ill-conceived shouting from the housetops?"

Kefauver said President Eisenhower 'is to blame for what he called the failure of Congress to act on portions of Mr. Eisenhower's proposed legislative program, and added: "He is responsible because he has not been able to marshal united support from his own party to pass legislation which clearly involves his personal prestige."

SEEKS TO AID PROPERTY OWNERS NEAR AIR BASES

WASHINGTON, July 14 (UP) — Representative Henderson Lanham (Dem.), Georgia, said today he hopes for prompt action on his resolution to investigate what can be done for property owners whose investment is jeopardized by noise and danger from nearby military airports.

Under the resolution which he dropped in the House hopper yesterday, the inquiry would be conducted by the House Armed Services Committee, helped by Representative Carl Vinson (Dem.), Georgia. The committee would report to the House by the end of the year.

Although the Air Force can compensate owners for actual damage, such as broken windows, it is unable to make any adjustment for other losses, such as depreciation. It also has said it cannot buy adjacent property around its fields, except where it actually needs the property. Lanham said one thing he assumes the committee will explore, if the inquiry is authorized, is whether the Armed Forces should be authorized to acquire buffer strips around air fields.

2 ROBBERS FOILED BY PISTOL-FIRING STORE OWNER

Pair Admits Holdup Attempt After Exchange of 12 Shots With Proprietor.

A robber and his intended victim traded 12 pistol shots yesterday morning in an attempted holdup of a liquor store at 1105 North Thirteenth street. Police said two men they arrested a few minutes later admitted trying to rob the store.

Morris Hoffman, proprietor, said he emptied his .38-caliber revolver in a pistol duel with one of two men who entered the store posing as customers. The robber also fired six shots. Nobody was reported hurt.

The men under arrest identified themselves as Steve Hassel, 21 years old, and John Walker, 24, both of the 2200 block of Spruce street. Hassel admitted having fired a revolver, which he later tossed away, officers said.

Hoffman, who is 52 years old and lives at 1297 Hamilton boulevard, said he was waiting on a customer when two men, Negroes, entered the store shortly after 7 o'clock. One ordered a half pint of whisky, the other a bottle of beer.

Proprietor Suspicious.

Suspicious, Hoffman acted on a hunch and got his revolver from a drawer as he went to the rear of the store for the beer. He put the weapon in his pocket. When he returned with the beer, one man had a revolver in his hand.

Hoffman dropped to the floor, drew his own pistol and opened fire. The holdup man also fired. Bullets smashed two fifths of whisky on the shelf. Other shots thudded into the ceiling.

"The bullets were whizzing around my head, and I had to keep ducking behind the cash register and the counter to keep from being hit," he said. The men ran out and went south on Thirteenth street.

Hoffman found a black mark on his left hand after the fusillade. He said it might have been caused by a bullet grazing the hand. He did not require medical attention.

Trips Holdup Alarm.

The tripping of a holdup alarm in the store by Hoffman brought officers to the scene from several directions. Hassel and Walker were seen as they were trying to enter an automobile, parked nearby, bearing an Illinois dealer's license.

Patrolman Fred Johanningsmeyer and Probationary Patrolman Charles Newman took the pair into custody at pistol point in the 800 block of North Fourteenth street. The officers drew their weapons after Walker made threatening gestures with a springback knife, it was reported.

Police said the automobile had been stolen last April. Walker had the key to the machine in his pocket. He told officers he and Hassel had borrowed it from a friend, police said.

In 1952 Hoffman fired five revolver shots at two robbers who held him up and stole more than $600 at his North Thirteenth street store. About two years later, he reported to police that he had been fired on by one of four men who apparently were lying in wait for him near his home at 1297 Hamilton.

A woman physician was assaulted and robbed of $8 early yesterday by a man who accosted her in the hallway of her apartment house, police reported.

The woman, 28, said she fainted after the man, a Negro, threatened to kill her and threw her to the floor. She regained consciousness as the man fled with her purse, she said. She was treated at a hospital for shock.

Man Beaten and Robbed.

James A. McManus, a steel worker living at 738 West Canterbury road, University City, told University City police he was beatetn and robbed of his automobile, more than $400 and most of his clothing by three men early yesterday on U. S. Highway 67 about a mile south of the Lewis bridge. He is 43 years old.

His wife said he was brought home by a man and woman who found him where he had been left wearing nothing but shorts. He was treated for minor injuries at St. Louis County Hospital.

Mrs. McManus told the police her husband had a cashier's check for $800 when he left home for work yesterday at Scullin Steel Co.

McManus told police he met three men in a tavern in the 7800 block of Olive boulevard Friday, drank with them for about an hour there and then all four made a round of several other bars. With one of the new acquaintances driving his car, he said, they drove to an open area near a railroad and he was struck on the head.

Out of the car, as he lay on the ground after a beating, one of them kicked him in the side, he said. Two ribs were broken. McManus said the men threatened to run over him with the machine but changed their minds.

EX-ST. LOUIS PAIR HUNTED

The St. Louis Chapter of the American Red Cross is attempting to find Mr. and Mrs. Rostislav Komarnitsky who formerly lived in the 4900 block of Pershing avenue. Their new address is sought by Komarnitsky's sister-in-law, Olga Rode. Anyone having knowledge of the whereabouts of the couple is asked to phone the chapter, FRanklin 1-4980.

RADFORD'S PLAN STIRS SERVICES TO RENEW FEUD

arisen in the minds of some of Radford's Pentagon critics is what his memorandum, apparently embodying some guidelines from higher levels in the Administration, will do to the new national strategy plan drawn up by the National Security Council only last spring.

This plan, it is understood, provided for a flexible strategy for using small or large forces, or small or large weapons, tailored to particular war or emergency problems. It was devised to soften the considerable criticism of the massive retaliation concept.

That plan in general (for all of these documents are top secret) laid out the policy that the United States would place it main reliance on nuclear and other airpower and would rely heavily on ground warfare on the manpower of its allies. It was essentially an elaboration of Gen. Eisenhower's famous 1952 campaign statement that "Asians should fight Asians."

Apprehension Among Chiefs.

There is growing apprehension among some responsible Pentagon officials that only lip service is intended for this flexible strategy plan. There is also apprehension that the deliberate joint planning of the service chiefs is sometimes slurred over in their presentation by Radford, despite the safeguards in the unification law against one-man military control.

This complaint against the admiral is vouched for by sources that have proved trustworthy in the past: Within recent months the National Security Council called for an emergency plan for dealing with a peripheral war, if it should occur, in one of the obvious Far East trouble spots.

It was understood the chiefs produced a plan involving the use of approximately eight divisions, which compares with the maximum of seven divisions employed at any one time in Korea, as well as sea and land elements.

Radford Disapproved.

A standard United States infantry division has 17,500 men, or 139,000 men for eight divisions. Paratroop and armored divisions are smaller, however, so that an eight-division force might total around 100,000 men, but a considerable additional number of supply and service troops would be needed to support eight divisions.

Radford, it was said, disapproved of it, announced he would offer his own ideas but would include the plan in his presentation. But it was said what he really discussed was his own plan suggesting only a small fraction of the proposed forces, but with very heavy emphasis on air forces. At this point President Eisenhower was reported to have cut in and said that that was the sort of planning he liked.

In the face of this apparent presidential approval, it was said, neither the service secretaries nor the military chiefs had enough gumption to protest.

Army Sees No Hope.

In the face of the express trend to stress technology and reduce manpower, Army leaders see no hope, with the present new look going into the works, to reverse the trend that began with the famous new look of 1953. Under the start made then the armed forces have been reduced from 3,450,000 in December, 1953, to 2,814,632, and now the expectation is that the Army, which has had to take the bulk of the reduction, will have to go down 80,000 to 100,000 men next year.

As the Army's proponents view the problem, however, the Administration is gambling between the alternatives of the all-out nuclear war concept and adequate forces for flexible strategy for a sum of somewhat less than $1,000,000,000 a year.

A Defense Department spokesman said it costs $103,423,000 a year to maintain an infantry division of 17,500 men. Taylor has said an optimum Army, if he had no budget worries, would be 27 or 28 divisions. The Army has 19 divisions and nine more would cost $930,807,000 extra a year.

One Army leader said a few days ago the Army could cope reasonably well with a limited war with the 19 divisions it now has. They would be committed while the general reserves in the United States would be rebuilt with National Guard and reserve units. He said such a war, if it got fairly bad, would call for the use of 38 or 40 divisions.

But this is obsolete thinking in the face of an expressed national policy of using small or tactical atomic weapons even in local aggressions. An Army general staff paper that reached the New York Times in May, entitled "United States and Allied Objectives in War," pleaded for the adoption, except of course where a general war is unavoidable, of a policy of war for limited objectives only so as to avoid thermo-nuclear wars.

UNIVERSITY CITY YOUTH WINS SOAP BOX DERBY ON 5TH TRY

Charles O'Neal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. O'Neal, 6924 Bartmer avenue, University City, won the annual Greater St. Louis Soap Box Derby yesterday. He is 15 years old, the maximum for derby entrants, and was making his fifth try for the top place here and a chance at the national title in races to be run later at Akron, O.

Runner-up in the St. Louis contest was Dick Peace, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Peace, 7509 Chandler avenue, Jennings, winner of the Class B competition. O'Neal's time for the final run was 33.56 seconds, compared with 33.79 for Pearce.

The derby course was downhill between Hampton and Tamm avenues on the Express Highway, and caused the road to be closed throughout the day. A large crowd attended the running.

COUNTY TO OFFER PETITION AGAINST WATER RATE RISE

State Hearing on Company Application for Increase to Open Tomorrow.

A petition opposing an application by the St. Louis County Water Co. for a rate increase has been prepared by St. Louis county for presentation tomorrow at the opening of a Public Service Commission hearing in Jefferson City.

Plans to oppose the application also have been made by several county municipalities and by the Associated Fire Fighters, an organization representing 36 county fire departments.

The water company's application, filed with the commission last Nov. 1, did not specify the amount of increase sought. It asked that the rise be sufficient for the company to "maintain its credit and attract capital" and alleged its gross operating income was less than permitted by law.

The county's petition, which includes a motion for leave to intervene in the case, contends that the utility "is receiving a fair rate of return on a reasonable valuation of its property."

Assistant County Counselor Herman Barken told the Post-Dispatch the water company's revenues have increased in recent years because of a rapid expansion in business.

Barken said the county will co-operate with municipalities and fire districts in opposing any water rate increase if it is given permission to enter the case.

Any rate increase that raised fire hydrant rentals would cause many fire departments to curtail service, Paul Taub, attorney for the Associated Fire Fighters of St. Louis County, said. Taub said he will ask tomorrow for permission to intervene and for time to prepare his case after the utility presents its arguments.

Taub estimated that members of the fire fighters association pay approximately $150,000 annually to the water company in fire hydrant rentals. The charge per hydrant is $36.

"Many of these hydrants are never used by the departments," he said. "The rental charge is pure profit for the company."

Some fire districts already are at or close to the legal limit in their tax levies, Taub said. As a result, they would have to absorb any rise in water charges and reduce their operations, he asserted.

The same is true of many volunteer and municipal departments, many of which are hard-pressed financially, Taub added.

Municipalities that have indicated their intention of opposing the water company's application include University City, Richmond Heights and Clayton. Others are expected to join also.

In its application the water company said its operating expenses and capital expenditures have increased more rapidly in recent years than its customers and revenue.

Capital outlay from the beginning of 1952 through last Aug. 31 was $18,012,290, the firm reported. This expenditure has increased the value of its properties without a corresponding increase in revenues, the company alleged.

Records of the commission show that in 1954 the water company had a net profit of $694,003. That amounted to 4.98 per cent on a depreciated rate base computed on company figures.

The commission in recent years has tended to allow similar public utilities a rate of return of about 6.5 per cent.

BLAIR, HENNINGS INDORSED BY AIRPORT TOWNSHIP CLUB

Lt. Gov. James T. Blair Jr. has been indorsed by the Airport Township Democratic Club, Inc., for the Democratic nomination for Governor in the Aug. 7 primary election, it was announced yesterday by Robert Young, committeeman of the township. The organization also indorsed United States Senator Thomas C. Hennings Jr., who is seeking re-election.

Other candidates for Democratic nominations indorsed by the club include State Senator Edward V. Long of Clarksville for Lieutenant Governor and John M. Dalton of Kennett, who is seeking re-nomination as State Attorney General.

Blair will make a major campaign speech here Wednesday at a dinner in his honor at 7 p.m. at Hotel Chase. Appointment of a 45-member executive committee to campaign for Blair's election was announced yesterday by Powell B. McHaney, chairman of the city-county Citizens' Blair-for-Governor Committee.

TWO KILLED, SEVEN INJURED IN ILLINOIS HIGHWAY CRASH

Two persons were killed and seven were injured yesterday when an automobile driven by Charles Nelson of Madison collided with another machine at Dwight, Ill.

The dead were John Scott Payne, 40 years old, of Minneapolis, and his son, Richard, 14. Mrs. Payne and her daughter, Nancy, were admitted to a Dwight hospital, where their condition was termed fair. Others injured were Nelson, his daughters, Alvina and Velma; Patty Jones, 10, and another girl who was riding with them.

Nelson was en route to Chicago on U. S. Highway 66. The Paynes were traveling south on Illinois Highway 47.

TORNADO DAMAGE THREE MILLION

No Time to Think

Quick Action Saves Furniture Store Employee and Family in Tornado

By Richard B. Childs

"At a time like that, you don't think—you act."

And those words of David Knoller, 6009 Sterling St., explain why he and his family are home and unhurt after living through the heart of Saturday's tornado in the Quality House Furniture Store, 1905 S. Dort Hwy. The store was wrecked.

Knoller's wife, Muriel, drove children, Randy, 3, and Kathy, 5, and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Ethel Knoller, to the basement of the building as the tornado struck.

TENSIONS CAUSE ARMS RACE, ITALY TELLS MOSCOW

ROME, July 14 (AP)—Italy tlod Russia today that a world armaments race is a result, not the cause, of international tensions.

Joining its western partners in rejecting a disarmament plea from Soviet Premier Bulganin, the Italian reply declared:

1. Disarmament would be made easier by solution of certain other world problems—"particularly reunification of Germany."

2. Italy hopes that Russia will work toward disarmament with "an efficacious system of controls."

3. Relaxation of tension is a prerequisite to a general disarmament agreement.

Italy's reply, approved unanimously by the cabinet, was in a letter from Premier Segni.

Bulganin's letter to Italy, sent June 6, was similar to notes addressed to the United States, Britain and France suggesting a reduction of western forces in Germany. He cited the announcement of a cut of 1,200,000 men in Soviet armed forces.

Under terms of a will filed earlier, Mrs. Hemenway set up two equal trust estates with the proceeds of both going to her husband during his life. In the case of one of the trusts, the husband will have the right to designate a beneficiary after his death. The second trust is to be divided on his death between two children, William D. III, 29 Picardy lane, Ladue, and Mrs. Stephen L. Kling, 8661 Delmar boulevard, University City.

CITY REGISTRATION IS 383,048 AS 1153 ENROLL FINAL DAY

A total of 1153 persons registered yesterday at the St. Louis Election Board to beat the deadline for the Aug. 7 primary. The day's registrants, added to those already on the books, brought the city's total number of registered voters to 383,048.

Joseph P. Uxa, chief clerk of the board, estimated 35,000 to 40,000 would be stricken from the lists in a city-wide canvas next Friday and Saturday.

Each of the last four days showed steadily rising totals of registrants, with 452 signing up on Wednesday, 744 on Thursday and 886 on Friday. Special evening hours extending to 9 o'clock were observed all three days.

This year's rush fell far short of the one preceding the last presidential primary in 1952, when 4040 persons jammed the office on the last day alone. Uxa attributed the unusual number of late registrants in 1952 to special interest in the races for governor and sheriff.

MAN SHOT, BOTH THIGHS BROKEN IN FIGHT OVER BEER

Leroy H. Roche, 5181A Cates avenue, was seriously wounded by a 16-gauge shotgun blast last night in a fight over a bottle of beer behind a liquor store at Taylor and Enright avenues, police reported. Roche, 53-year-old Negro, was taken to Homer G. Phillips Hospital with compound fractures of both thighs.

Officers arrested a man who said he was Bennie Bouie, of the 4400 block of Delmar boulevard. Witnesses said the fight developed when Bouie, also a Negro, was drinking beer and Roche demanded some, pulling a knifee. Bouie then went home, officers were told, and returned with a double-barreled shotgun.

At the hospital, Roche identified Bouie as his assailant, police said. Bouie was booked suspected of assault with intent to kill, discharging firearms and peace disturbance.

NAVY PLANNING ATOMIC MISSILE FOR SUBMARINES

Weapon of Future Could Hit Almost Any Target in Russia, Officer Claims.

WASHINGTON, July 14 (UP) —The Navy predicts that United States submarines will eventually be able to fire ballistic missiles with atomic warheads that can hit almost any target in the Soviet Union.

The Navy warns, however, that Russia, with its large unseas fleet, must be expected to develop the same ability to hit targets within the United States.

The prospect of missile-firing submarines rising from the seas and bombarding continents was portrayed by Navy officials in recent testimony before the Senate Armed Services subcommittee investigating air power. The testimony, censored by the Defense Department, was made public today.

Estimated 1500-Mile Range.

The Navy officials said it would be "some years" before an intermediate range ballistic missile (I.R.B.M.), which the Navy is developing in co-operation with the Army, will be in operation. They disclosed that the Navy has definite plans to fire the missile, with an estimated 1500-mile range, from submarines as well as surface ships.

Fired from submarines or surface ships 100 miles offshore, the officials said, the missile could hit targets in at least 90 per cent of the Russian land mass.

The testimony revealed that land targets presently assigned to naval air power by the Joint Chiefs of Staff are primarily naval installations such as submarine pens, shipyards and naval ports.

Vice Adm. Thomas C. Combs, deputy chief of naval operations for air, said "our target assignments are predicated on the hitting of targets of naval interest, the targets which will do damage to us if they are allowed to continue." Navy planes, he added, "would not required to penetrate very deeply into Russia."

Could Hit Other Targets.

If assigned, however, Combs said the Navy planes could hit other targets such as cities "within the capabilities of our range."

Under questioning by Senator Stuart Symington (Dem.), Missouri, subcommittee chairman, Combs said he has never heard any suggestion within the Defense Department that the Navy could handle the assigned missions of the Air Force or the Air Force could handle the Navy's assigned functions.

On over-all naval strength, Combs said the United States has maintained superiority over Russia but Russia has "closed the gap" since the end of World War II.

Rear Adm. C. D. Griffin, of the office of Chief of Naval Operations, said in view of growing Soviet naval strength the American Navy will require "considerably increased sums" in the years ahead to continue to be able to carry out its mission.

Naval Retaliation.

Griffin said if war should start with a surprise atomic attack "naval forces at sea will play a significant part in retaliating and may represent our remaining ability to take further action after the initial blows are struck by both sides."

The Navy testimony also brought out these points:

1. Russia now has about 430 submarines and is continuing to build them "at a very rapid rate."

2. The Navy has under development an atomic powered seaplane but its realization is "not anticipated for some years."

3. If the Soviet Union should seize control of such countries as Greece, Yugoslavia or Italy, it is "problematical" the United States Navy could continue to operate aircraft carrier forces in the Mediterranean.

MINIMUM STANDARD SET FOR POULTRY PIES BY U.S.

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP) —The Federal Government will not give its approval to chicken and turkey pies after Aug. 31 unless their contents include a minimum of 14 per cent cooked meat or 25 per cent deboned raw meat.

The Department of Agriculture set this standard yesterday under its poultry inspection and grading program. Processors of cooked and and frozen poultry pies who use the department's service must meet this standard.

Eisenhower Candidacy a Victory for His Advisers

Hall, Adams and Brownell Led a Small Group Which Put Hopes on Second Term

Question of Vice President's Fitness for the Highest Office, Should Health of President Break, Is Raised by the Democrats — Senator Knowland Thought President Would Not Be a Candidate.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 14.

THE announcement this week through Senator William F. Knowland of California that President Eisenhower would accept renomination was, like the President's own announcement in February, a victory for a small group of daring and astute politicians and business men who believed that Mr. Eisenhower could lead the Republicans to victory in November.

The second success of these intimate political and personal associates of the President will define rather than blur two major questions of the coming campaign —whether Mr. Eisenhower, because of his illnesses, has been and would be a "part-time President" and whether Vice President Richard Nixon is qualified by age, ability and viewpoint to advance to the presidency.

Other issues, of course, will be exhaustively debated. Republicans for the past year have stressed their principal themes: the President, peace, prosperity and progress. The Democrats, whoever the nominees, will criticize Republican conduct of foreign affairs and national security, the alleged influence of big business in the Eisenhower Administration, the divisions within the Republican party, the plight of the farmer and small business man, aids to education and medical research and taxes. They will also assert that whatever the Republicans have done or promised the Democrats could do it better.

The President's health and the continuing controversies over Nixon will not be obscured by these traditional campaign arguments, no matter how active the President becomes between now and the elections and how the Republicans build up or play down Nixon.

The seemingly casual but obviously calculated way in which the announcement was made at Gettysburg Tuesday clearly indicated that the Republican leaders will seek to minimize the Eisenhower-Nixon issues. The impression they sought to create was that there had not been any changes in previous plans that the ticket would be Eisenhower and Nixon and that the latest illness was a blessing in disguise because the President will be in better health now that he has had an operation to remedy an intestinal obstruction of many years.

Almost immediately after the President was stricken by a "moderate" coronary thrombosis in Denver last September, members of a small but influential unit began predicting that Mr. Eisenhower would be able and willing to run again. Under persistent questioning they would not discuss publicly or privately any other possibility. The questioning began again after the President's major operation last month for chronic ileitis and they continued their tactics that were successful after the heart attack.

The acknowledged spokesman for this group was Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall, former New York Representative, who staked his political fortune and reputation on the seemingly long-shot chance that the President would decide to try for four more years in the White House. He "went for broke" that his hunch would come true and when asked what he would do if the President decided that his heart attack would not permit him to carry the tremendous physical and mental burdens of the presidency, the ebullient Hall replied:

"I'll jump off that bridge when I come to it."

Others in this intimate circle were Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams, Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., White House Secretary James C. Hagerty, Gen. Lucius Clay, head of Continental Can Co., and Tom Stevens, New York lawyer and former White House appointments secretary. They were joined later by other influential persons, including Dr. Milton Eisenhower, the President's youngest brother, and Paul G. Hoffman, head of Studebaker Corp., and former Marshall Plan administrator.

President Vindicated Daring of His Associates.

By his announcement Feb. 29 that he was available for the Republican nomination and, if re-elected, would continue to serve the people under a "regime of ordered work activity," the President vindicated the daring of these close associates. Throughout the months of suspense some of these ardent supporters were lukewarm when not apparently hostile to the idea of Nixon for Mr. Eisenhower's running mate, although Chairman Hall, from the outset boldly asserted that the ticket would again be "Ike and Dick," and the national headquarters here made its plans on that assumption.

There was then—and still is—disagreement in the upper levels of the party about Nixon's fitness to succeed to the presidency and about the voters' reaction to his political activities and associates before and after his election to the vice presidency in 1952. One school of Republicans, mostly of the eastern and "liberal" varieties, regarded him as a distinct liability in the forthcoming election. He has had few outstanding public defenders and even the President put it up to him to "chart his own course," holding out a Cabinet appointment should he decide to disqualify himself in the 1956 race. When Nixon announced in April that he wanted the second place on the ticket, Mr. Eisenhower, following the logic of politics, announced through his press secretary that he was "delighted" by Nixon's decision.

Nixon explained it had taken him a long time to decide because he wanted to do what "was in the best interests of the President in the campaign for re-election and for the continued success of the President's Administration."

Republicans Not Agreed On Value of Richard Nixon.

The intra-party disagreement over Nixon continues and is likely to continue until the Republican National Convention convenes in San Francisco next month. The most outspoken critics and doubters of his candidacy have been Republican newspapers and magazines. The latest questioning was a signed editorial by John S. Knight, publisher of the Knight newspapers—the Chicago Daily News, Detroit Free Press, Miami Herald, Akron Beacon-Journal and the Charlotte Observer — a long time friend and political supporter of Mr. Eisenhower. The editorial was reprinted this week by the pro-Eisenhower Washington News of the Scripps-Howard chain, which said in a foreword that the Nixon candidacy was "one of the hottest political issues talked about, not only in our town but all over the country."

The Knight editorial, on balance friendly to Nixon, recounted that the 21 Republican Governors at the recent Atlantic City conference petitioned the President to run again "but pointedly left out any reference to Vice President Nixon"; that many people say, without giving valid reasons, "I just don't like Nixon"; and others say he "can't be trusted" that "he is an aggressive and resourceful campaigner who accepts the tough political chores which are so displeasing to the President"; that "Nixon was naive and uninformed when he told the Rotary International in Chicago that 'Geneva was the last hope for peace,'" and that "he has had some questionable associates, such as Murray Chotiner, who is presently under investigation for attempting to influence government contracts in behalf of clients."

Republican Knight concluded his editorial with these words:

"He (Nixon) has made fewer mistakes than most young men suddenly elevated to such high office and his record of accomplishment is one of which he and the country can be proud.

"My own view is that the Republicans are doing Dick Nixon a great injustice.

"Either he is a man of presidential caliber or he is not.

"Because the Republicans have staked everything on a second term for Eisenhower, this question becomes tremendously important.

"If the tergiversating Republicans, who are shying away from Nixon, feel he lacks the proper qualifications why don't they stand up in the meeting and say so?

"Do they have a better candidate?

"If not, the silent treatment they are giving Nixon is hurting the man who may be nominated for President if Ike doesn't run.

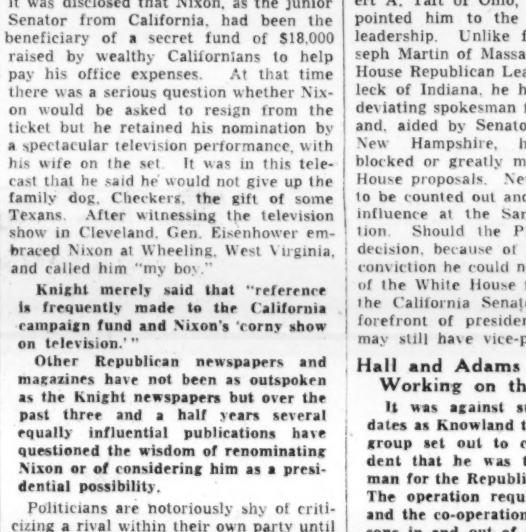

"No one is being fooled by the present Republican strategy except the strategists who say every day that Ike is better in every way.

"It is idle to pretend, and dishonest as well, to act as if Nixon did not exist.

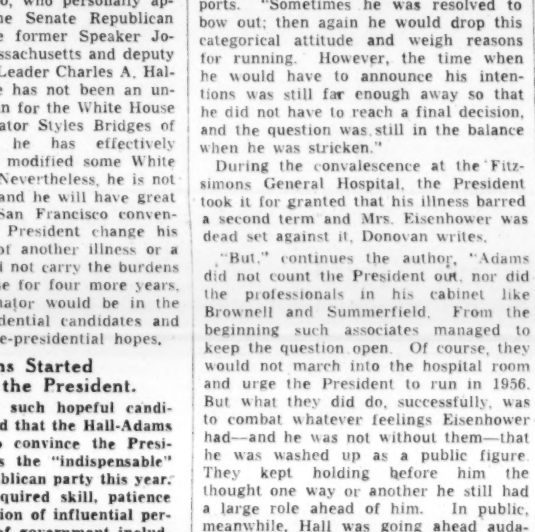

"It is incomparably stupid to brush him off or wish that he might go away.

"It is grossly unfair to Nixon, who has given such yeoman service to his country and to his chief, to backbite the Vice President without having the courage to speak out against him in public.

"For the Nixon problem, if that is what it can be called, is on their doorstep and the Republican leadership should come out of their dream house and face up to it."

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER Health . . .

VICE PRESIDENT NIXON
. . . And the 'Nixon problem.'

Knight, in his brief but balanced survey of Nixon's career, barely mentioned the furor which split the Eisenhower advisers on the 1952 campaign train when it was disclosed that Nixon, as the junior Senator from California, had been the beneficiary of a secret fund of $18,000 raised by wealthy Californians to help pay his office expenses. At that time there was a serious question whether Nixon would be asked to resign from the ticket but he retained his nomination by a spectacular television performance, with his wife on the set. It was in this telecast that he said he would not give up the family dog, Checkers, the gift of some Texans. After witnessing the television show in Cleveland, Gen. Eisenhower embraced Nixon at Wheeling, West Virginia, and called him "my boy."

Knight merely said that "reference is frequently made to the California campaign fund and Nixon's 'corny show on television.'"

Other Republican newspapers and magazines have not been as outspoken as the Knight newspapers but over the past three and a half years several equally influential publications have questioned the wisdom of renominating Nixon or of considering him as a presidential possibility.

Politicians are notoriously shy of criticizing a rival within their own party until the top official has spoken for fear the rival may win and be in a position to retaliate. Nevertheless, Knowland, as Republican leader of the Senate, made it clear he did not think much of Nixon as a 1956 vice presidential or presidential prospect and he was joined in this position by Gov. Goodwin Knight of the same state. In 1952, Gov. Earl Warren, now Chief Justice of the United States, took a similar contemptuous view of Nixon's qualifications to be on the national ticket.

Knowland Out on a Limb With His Own Announcement.

For his own political advancement, Knowland followed an exactly opposite direction from that of Chairman Hall and deputy president Adams. He played a hunch that the President would not be a candidate for re-election and he filed in several states for the nomination and allowed supporters to file in others. He was far out on a limb when the President cut it off by his announcement on February 29. Others who had hopes were Harold E. Stassen, White House adviser on peace plans, who has been a perennial candidate since 1944, and Gov. Christian Herter of Massachusetts. Those mentioned for presidential nomination if the President stepped down or for the vice-presidential spot with him included Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey, Senator Clifford P. Case of New Jersey and Dr. Milton Eisenhower.

These men would be considered if, as appears unlikely, serious opposition to Nixon develops at the San Francisco convention. Knowland, who is 48 years old, has his eyes set on the Presidency and his ambitions must be taken into account for the next 12 years. As Senate Republican Leader he has opposed the Eisenhower Administration on several important issues, such as Bricker and George amendments to the Constitution, for which he voted, and on Senator Joseph R. McCarthy of Wisconsin.

Knowland was closely identified with the conservative and "nationalist" faction of the party led by the late Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, who personally appointed him to the Senate Republican leadership. Unlike former Speaker Joseph Martin of Massachusetts and deputy House Republican Leader Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, he has not been an undeviating spokesman for the White House and, aided by Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire, he has effectively blocked or greatly modified some White House proposals. Nevertheless, he is not to be counted out and he will have great influence at the San Francisco convention. Should the President change his decision, because of another illness or a conviction he could not carry the burdens of the White House for four more years, the California Senator would be in the forefront of presidential candidates and may still have vice-presidential hopes.

Hall and Adams Started Working on the President.

It was against such hopeful candidates as Knowland that the Hall-Adams group set out to convince the President that he was the "indispensable" man for the Republican party this year. The operation required skill, patience and the co-operation of influential persons in and out of government including the President's doctors, particularly Dr. Paul Dudley White, the heart specialist. The theme of the persistent low-pressure persuasion was that the burdens of the White House could be so lightened that the President could carry out all of his "constitutional" duties despite the effects of his heart attack. The ceremonial appearances and administrative jobs could be delegated to others.

Some people in a position to know about the President's thinking are convinced not a great deal of "persuasion" was necessary to get the President to run again. They point out that frequently he has talked one way and acted another and that he had given unmistakable evidence that he was enjoying the unique power and the glory of the White House.

The whole story of how he came to make his decisions is not likely to be made public until he has left office and the disclosures cannot affect the political situation. As of now, the most detailed and apparently authentic account is in the recent book "Eisenhower, the Inside Story," by Robert J. Donovan of the Washington Bureau of the New York Herald Tribune, who was given access to many confidential White House documents and to whom many White House officials and other Eisenhower advocates spoke frankly.

Donovan writes that from the time Mr. Eisenhower entered the White House his "deep desire was to be a one-term President," and that over the years he expressed this wish many times in private. The 1955 Geneva Big Four conference, the author says, counter-balanced this somewhat because the President "sensed" he enjoyed a relationship no other American had with Khrushchev, Bulganin and Zhukov and that over a long period he had developed a special relationship with other European leaders, notably Prime Minister Eden of Great Britain.

"He was still grappling with the problem before his heart attack," Donovan reports. "Sometimes he was resolved to bow out; then again he would drop this categorical attitude and weigh reasons for running. However, the time when he would have to announce his intentions was still far enough away so that he did not have to reach a final decision, and the question was still in the balance when he was stricken."

During the convalescence at the Fitzsimons General Hospital, the President took it for granted that his illness barred a second term and Mrs. Eisenhower was dead set against it, Donovan writes.

"But," continues the author, "Adams did not count the President out, nor did the professionals in his cabinet like Brownell and Summerfield. From the beginning such associates managed to keep the question open. Of course, they would not march into the hospital room and urge the President to run in 1956. But what they did do, successfully, was to combat whatever feelings Eisenhower had—and he was not without them—that he was washed up as a public figure. They kept holding before him the thought one way or another he still had a large role ahead of him. In public, meanwhile, Hall was going ahead audaciously on his own proclaiming that he knew of no change in Republican plans for 1956 and that Eisenhower was still his candidate."

Donovan indicates that it was at Gettysburg, during the second stage of his recovery, that the President began making his decision:

"For Eisenhower, Gettysburg came close to being five weeks of torment. In Denver he had escaped the depression that often follows a coronary thrombosis. At Gettysburg it struck. His morale slumped. His spirts were low. He fretted over Government affairs. On top of this the weather turned bad and he was confined as he had never been in his life except in the hospital. Sometimes he would not go out at all, and when he did, the putting green on the farm as likely as not was frozen stiff. Unable to walk a great deal, he was sometimes forced to ride in a jeep for something to do. Indoors he was tense and nervous and stalked about the house with a golf club for a cane."

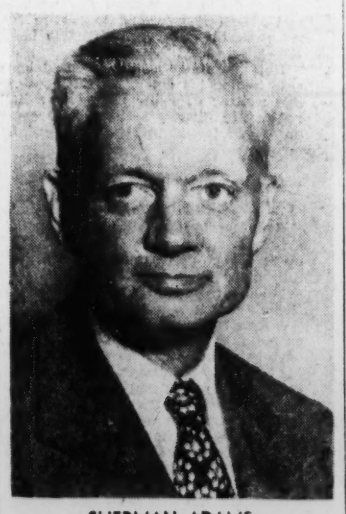

Donovan says that those best acquainted with the family believe "that in the gloomy November and December days at Gettysburg Mrs. Eisenhower had come to the conclusion that her husband was not ready for retirement."

It was on this fertile ground that the small band cultivated in the President's mind that it was his duty to the country and the party to accept renomination. Donovan asserts that "the President took very seriously" the expert opinion that he alone among the Republicans could win the election. Mr. Eisenhower did not restrain Gen. Clay in December when the head of Continental Can informed him that he intended to hold a series of meetings with politicians and business men to get their help in convincing the President that it was his duty to take a second term because otherwise the "old crowd" —meaning the Democrats—would return to the White House.

Meeting in New York At a Club of Rich Men.

Clay's first such meeting was at the Links Club in New York, one of the nation's most exclusive clubs of rich men. The other meetings were held in Brownell's Washington home on a secluded street. The first guests included former Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York, now a high priced corporation lawyer; Under Secretary of Commerce Walter Williams; former Gov. Dan Thornton of Colorado, who is said to have had vice presidential ambitions; Paul Hoffman; Tom Stephens; W. Alton Jones, board chairman of the City Service Co.; William Robinson, head of the Coca-Cola Co.; Charles S. Jones of the Richfield Oil Co.; and Fred G. Gurley, president of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad.

At the same time, Chairman Hall and John Clifford Folger, Washington investment banker and chairman of the Republican Finance Committee, were going ahead with elaborate plans for $100 a plate "salute to Eisenhower" dinners throughout the country. The purpose of the dinners were two-fold—to persuade the President to run again and to raise funds for the 1956 campaign. Up to the day of the dinners, the promoters had no positive assurance that Mr. Eisenhower would consent and he gave no tangible indication in his televised speech to the diners. The dinners were a triumphant success. They obviously helped him in coming to an early announcement and they raised $5,000,000 for the party organizations, national and local.

How President Was Persuaded To Run Again

The Donovan biography, because of its sources, is a decidedly friendly book and naturally tends to glorify the President. The author says that "Eisenhower did not feel that he owed the leaders of the Republican party any obligation to run again and he followed his own thoughts." These thoughts were, he writes, the result of advice and appeals he had received about what he alone could do in preserving peace.

This theme of peace was stressed at a White House meeting the President himself called on Jan. 13 to discuss a second term. At a dinner preceding the serious talk, Hall sat on the President's right, Brownell on his left. The other guests were Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, U.N. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., Treasury Secretary Humphrey, Postmaster General Summerfield, Adams and two of his deputies, Gen. Wilton B. Persons and former Gov. Howard Pyle of Arizona, Hagerty, Stephens and Dr. Milton Eisenhower.

Stephens had resigned as White House appointments secretary early in 1955 to organize Eisenhower support throughout the country. Pyle, a former advertising man and radio correspondent, was the President's liaison man for inter-governmental relations.

Mr. Eisenhower Told His Position Was Unique.

The meeting was stacked for a second term. Donovan gives this summary:

"His (Eisenhower's) place in the world was unique, he was told. No other American was in a position to exert such influence for peace—so long as he was in the White House. Eisenhower had made great strides toward unifying the Republican party and the American people, but the goal was not yet reached. Among Republicans, only Eisenhower was sure of victory in November. If a Democrat was elected, the trend which Eisenhower had started toward moderation and decentralization would be reversed.

"Dulles warned that nuclear war would threaten the very existence of mankind. The President had a God-given ability for reconciling differences among men and nations and, if his health permitted, he should go on using this talent.

"Others, like Lodge, emphasized Eisenhower's role at home. Lodge spoke with high praise for the President's work in healing divisions among the American people. This accomplishment was largely responsible, Lodge ventured, for the unparalleled prosperity the country was enjoying. The President's 'sensitivity' to world opinion and his experience in international affairs, he concluded, put him in a matchless position to lead the United States through the next four years.

"Summerfield told Eisenhower that his work was unfinished. He recalled that for 20 years Republicans had developed habits of thought which Eisenhower had been forced to reverse. He said the President had clarified the thinking of Republicans and had re-established the party as one of constructive action."

Milton Eisenhower Gave The Clinching Argument.

The clincher to the discussion was apparently applied by the President's brother. In summing up the pros and cons—although the pro opinion was unanimous—Dr. Eisenhower said that if the President was to work effectively for peace, it would have to be from the White House, not from retirement, because a Democratic President would resent his intrusion into foreign affairs.

It was a joking President who observed, "I didn't know you would all be against me."

Mr. Eisenhower got the green light to go ahead for a second term by his panel of doctors after a checkup at Walter Reed Hospital. Three days later, Dr. White, the Boston heart specialist, after conferring with the President, told a press conference:

"Medically, I think we (the doctors) would agree that his present condition and favorable chances in the future should enable him to be able to carry on his present active life satisfactorily for this period, as I have said, for five or 10 years, knowing full well, as we have just emphasized, the hazards and uncertainties of the future."

Asked if he would vote for Mr. Eisenhower should he run again, Dr. White said he would.

The President announced his decision at a press conference on February 29 and followed it up with a television report to the nation that night.

In his evening speech, Mr. Eisenhower said:

"As of this moment, there is not the slightest doubt that I can perform as I ever have all the important duties of the presidency.

"This I say because I am actually doing so and have been doing so for many weeks."

It is this assertion the Democratic spokesmen will emphatically challenge in their campaign charges that Mr. Eisen-

Politics in the Air

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Ike says he is disgusted with the way the Democratic-controlled Congress has handled his "program."

If the Republicans gain control and then proceed to continue as they have been, how will he fare? The Bricker-Bridges element will be heard from louder than ever, and the Jenner-McCarthy crowd will be back in the saddle again.

It is too bad that Ike urges the election of every rotten egg in his adopted party and fights the election of any Democrat, even those who have fought for the many things he wanted done. He is a hard man to please. J. W. MORGAN.
Piper, Kan.

If the news of President Eisenhower's decision to run for a second term was a surprise to anyone I would certainly like to meet them. Then I'd like to sell them the Brooklyn bridge. Who else have the Republicans got in their one-man party?
G. A. BROWN.

The record of the junior Senator from Missouri does not justify making him Missouri's "favorite son" candidate for the presidency. In the McCarthy-Army hearings he did not seem to understand the threat to civil liberties of the wild man from Wisconsin. As for his present hearings on air power, we may need more bombers, but we need a lot of other things to win the world to our side for a peaceful future.

We have heard very little from our junior Senator concerning civil liberties, public power, TVA, the Dixon-Yates steal, federal aid to education or foreign aid. It is a certainty that we cannot live by bombers alone. If the people of Missouri have a favorite son it is Senator Hennings. He has probably done as much as any man in the Senate to protect our Constitution and our basic American freedom.

If I must make a choice between Symington and Eisenhower, I'll take Ike. At least we are accustomed to him. Not an outstanding liberal in the United States has announced for Symington. Therefore we may assume that his supporters include reactionary men of wealth. The Democratic politicians in this state are fooling no one but themselves.
Clayton. W.M.

I didn't vote for President Eisenhower in 1952, but a Republican friend of mine who did said to me: "Prices will level off now."

They sure did. They met the ceiling, spread out and stayed right there. You can now be certain that prices will be every penny the law allows. Your budget worries are over because you just buy what you can and do without the rest.

Will the Webster Groves housewife who likes Ike so much inform the rest of us where she gets all those inexpensive groceries she mentioned?

Three years ago I paid 18 cents for bread that is now 22 cents; 19 cents for a two-pound sack of flour now 27; 29 cents for sugar now 49 cents; 59 cents for six cans of orange juice now 99 cents; 69 cents for coffee that is now $1.05. Even the lowly potato is something of a luxury.

If Webster Groves housewife has discovered a grocery gold mine she ought to help other housewives who are having such a struggle with their food budgets. MRS. V. KERMIT.

That was some picture (United Press photo) you printed showing Indian performer Gogia Pasha unveiling his sword stunt at Miami Beach. The underlines said "the girl was hypnotized, balanced on two swords and left in midair when one of the swords was removed, thus apparently defying gravity."

I'd say there should be a place on either the Democratic or Republican platform committee—or both—for this Mr. Pasha, turban, mustache, baggy pants and all!
Jefferson City. B. F. C.

In the 1952 campaign I listened to spot announcements on radio between the supposedly average housewife and candidate Eisenhower. The housewife would ask, "Is there any way to ease the burden of these high taxes?" and get the quick reply, "Of course there is a way and it shall be found."

I was tempted at times during the 1952 campaign to vote for the good general, but after looking over the last three years, I am glad I do not have that on my political conscience. I still prefer the man who tried to talk sense to the American people.
ANOTHER HOUSEWIFE.

Ike says of his decison to run again, "My doctors tell me that I am in better health now than before the operation." This is just one more thing that makes me wonder who has been running the country for the last few years. H. E. FIEHLER.
Columbia, Mo.

When a man allows himself to be talked into believing that this country cannot go on without him, as Eisenhower has done, he must be vain or unintelligent.

In the reams which have been written about him, I have never read anything indicating that he is an overly vain person. However, at an age when thousands of capable executives and officials are forced to retire and while saddled with heart and stomach trouble, he has been sold a bill of goods by Adams, Hall & Co., all for the sake of humanity.
Shall we say "naive"? A.M.C.

Seek the Common Ground

In making its own proposal for a European regional atoms-for-peace agency, the Soviet Union follows a well established pattern. Moscow moved just after the French National Assembly had approved French participation in negotiations to set up Euratom, the West's proposed atomic agency. Clearly, a leading objective of Moscow's new plan is to defeat and supplant Euratom.

Euratom would bring together for the peaceful development of atomic energy the same six nations which form the coal-steel pool of the Schuman plan—France, Luxembourg, Belgium, Italy, the Netherlands and West Germany. The Russians propose instead that the agency be open to any European nation wishing to join, and suggest that both the United States and Russia might also be members.

There are obvious objections to the Russian proposal, but it should be examined sympathetically in the hope of reconciling it with Western thinking. A great many people, and not only Europeans, will be given pause by one Russian criticism of Euratom—the claim that it might give the Germans a chance to manufacture atomic weapons. The memory of German militarism is still strong enough to require that any European atomic agency be amply safeguarded against diversion to military uses, especially by Germany.

The important thing is to get on with peaceful atomic development, and to do so on an international scale wherever possible.

A European regional organization, like the world-wide International Atomic Energy Agency which is also under negotiation, is entirely in the spirit of President Eisenhower's memorable address to the United Nations General Assembly, Dec. 8, 1953.

The President's proposal in that address was for an international pool for atomic research and development within the framework of the United Nations. Soviet Russia for many months declined to join this enterprise, but belatedly did so and a draft statute for the agency was agreed upon last spring. This draft is to be the subject of an international conference at the U.N. in the autumn.

Thus slowly but steadily, on both world-wide and regional levels, progress is being made. It is worth recalling President Eisenhower's words as he stood before the U.N. less than a year after he entered the White House. He said:

> It is with the book of history, and not with isolated pages, that the United States will ever wish to be identified. My country wants to be constructive, not destructive. It wants agreements, not wars, among nations. It wants itself to live in freedom and confidence that the people of every other nation enjoy equally the right of choosing their own way of life.
> So my country's purpose is to help us move out of this dark chamber of horrors into the light, to find a way by which the minds of man, the hopes of men, the souls of men everywhere, can move forward toward peace and happiness and well-being.
> In this question, I know that we must not lack patience. I know that many steps will have to be taken over many months. But I know, above all else, that we must start to take these steps—now.

The President's words are as pertinent today as when he spoke them in December, 1953. They make it imperative to examine all proposals in a spirit of seeing what can be done to reconcile them through an exploration of their common ground.

Why Did No One Know?

It is quite clear now that nothing but the most searching investigation of all aspects of the scandal in the office of Illinois State Auditor Orville E. Hodge of Granite City will satisfy the public interest. Every day adds something about which the voters of Illinois have a right to ask questions and reason to expect answers.

Take, for example, the matter of the bank which cashed most of the questionable warrants for the Auditor's office—the Southmoor Bank and Trust Co. of Chicago. This same bank is reported in a dispatch from Springfield as holding or having held "a mortgage on Hodge's home at Lake Springfield." The president of the bank has now resigned, a few days before he is scheduled to testify before the grand jury.

A natural question is this: Is there any connection between Auditor Hodge's private dealings with the Southmoor Bank and Trust Co. and the "official" dealings of his office? Illinois voters will not know the answer, but the question will be in the minds of many.

Gov. Stratton says that Auditor Hodge should get off the Republican ticket for the November election. Doubtless he ought to, but why is it that no one on the Stratton team at Springfield knew anything about the dubious financial practices of Auditor Hodge when he was renominated without opposition last April?

The American Bows Out

The American Magazine, suspending publication after its August issue, closes more than one era in publishing. It began life before the Muckraking Era of magazines like McClure's and survived beyond the Era of Semi-Detached Wit represented by magazines like The New Yorker. Its continuous publication traces back to the publication of Volume I, No. 1 of Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly, ninth in Leslie's stable of periodicals, January 1876. Bret Harte was a contributor, and John Greenleaf Whittier, Stephen Crane, Frank R. Stockton, and Emerson Hough.

In 1905 the publication was renamed The American Illustrated Magazine and a few months later the Illustrated was dropped. The editor of McClure's Magazine, John S. Phillips, and a group of famous contributors, smarting from the high hand of S. S. McClure, left that magazine and bought The American. Three of the new owners, Ida M. Tarbell, Lincoln Steffens and Ray Stannard Baker, were among the best-known muck-rakers of their day. Finley Peter Dunne, with his alter ego Mr. Dooley, and William Allen White, who later told Kansas what was the matter with it, were the other owner-contributors. The American became a muckraker like McClure's before it.

Ida M. Tarbell wrote about the tariff and Standard Oil, Steffens about the San Francisco graft prosecutions. Parts of Upton Sinclair's "The Metropolis" pilloried the "idle rich." A series of articles told of the Diaz regime's barbarities in Mexico. That vanished American published Robert LaFollette's autobiography, Jane Addams's "Twenty Years at Hull House," O. Henry, John G. Neihardt, and the first of Edna Ferber.

The Crowell Co., which then published Farm and Fireside and Woman's Home Companion, bought The American in 1915. Under John M. Siddall as editor it specialized in success stories like those of Horatio Alger, whose work Leslie's Monthly earlier had published. When Siddall died in 1923 Merle Crowell became editor, published S. S. Van Dine, Clarence Budington Kelland—and Calvin Coolidge at $3-plus a word. Sumner Blossom became editor in 1929.

The Crowell-Collier Publishing Co. will continue to publish Collier's and The Woman's Home Companion, but The American, after 80 years, will be missed in thousands of American homes. It was an outstanding example of journalistic vigor in a day when magazines reported and crusaded and paid as much attention to the tides of public life as to the eddies of entertainment.

A Tear for Adolphe

We are beginning to feel sorry for Adolphe H. Wenzell. Poor Adolphe has all the earmarks of a scapegoat. He resembles the luckless native who is thrown from the sled to keep the wolves at bay. He is the ballast dropped to keep the balloon up, the cargo jettisoned to save the ship, the sacrificial lamb offered on the altar.

Mr. Wenzell was the vice-president of First Boston Corp., who, as consultant to the government, helped work out the Dixon-Yates deal, which his own banking firm then undertook to help finance. The Dixon-Yates deal was the Eisenhower Administration's scheme for supplying Memphis with power while simultaneously striking a crippling blow at TVA. For a long time there in 1954 and 1955, the Administration poured ergs and ergs of energy into the drive to put Dixon-Yates across, and Adolphe H. Wenzell was in the thick of it all.

Alack, how fickle fortune can be! Under great pressure, President Eisenhower finally scuttled Dixon-Yates. Messrs. Dixon and Yates sued for their alleged expenses. Attorney General Brownell's Department of Justice, defending the suit, has now filed a reply which cites Mr. Wenzell's dual role as the main reason for repudiating any government obligation under the canceled contract. Mr. Brownell, in other words, is blandly agreeing with the very charges that were brought by critics of Dixon-Yates at the time he and other Administration officials were strenuously defending it.

Mr. Wenzell, as the architect of Dixon-Yates, was doing what Chairman Strauss of the Atomic Energy Commission wanted done. He was doing what the Bureau of the Budget, Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams and President Eisenhower wanted done.

Whether the Government which worked so closely with Mr. Wenzell in this enterprise can now escape legal responsibility by calling it unlawful and denouncing Mr. Wenzell for "conflict of interest" is a matter for the courts to decide. But we can't help shedding a tear for poor Adolphe. It's a sad thing to happen to one of the boys.

Now Test the Law

The overriding necessity for adequate judicial review of the King-Thompson public utility anti-strike law ought not to be overlooked in the ending of the 13-day gas workers' strike.

The act has been on the Missouri statute books since 1947. Among labor union leaders it is held to be unconstitutional. But until Circuit Judge Ivan Lee Holt Jr. granted the injunction under which the gas company employes returned to work no court had ruled on the law's constitutionality. The effect of Judge Holt's ruling was to uphold the act's validity, though he refrained from issuing a detailed and explicit ruling.

The public interest demands that the matter not be dropped at this point. The gas workers' union has indicated it would ask for a new trial and, if that is overruled, would then appeal to the Missouri Supreme Court.

Another possible test of the law could be instituted by Missouri Attorney General John M. Dalton. He could press the civil suits for financial penalties that are pending not only against the gas workers, but against the bus and streetcar union. The latter actions grew out of the transit stoppage of last fall, and they are still kicking around in the courts.

One way or another the public interest requires a full and final review of the King-Thompson Act, so that the public can know whether Missouri enjoys constitutionally valid protection against public utility strikes or not.

Trudeau: A Medical Landmark

If there is any place that symbolizes the long, hard fight against tuberculosis it is the Trudeau Sanatorium in Saranac Lake, N.Y. For 70 years it has been the general headquarters from which the medical profession spearheaded its battle against tuberculosis in this country. It has been closed and is now up for sale because sanatorium care has been outmoded by new drugs.

The institution acquired a world-wide reputation not long after it was founded by Dr. Edward Livingston Trudeau who contracted tuberculosis at 25, went to the Adirondacks to die but recovered. From his own experience he concluded that fresh air, which was presumed injurious to tuberculosis patients, was helpful along with rest and some exercise.

He went along with Robert Koch, discoverer of the tuberculosis germ, when other doctors were laughing at him. Establishment of the first tuberculosis laboratory added to his renown. Patients swarmed to Saranac. Among the thousands who were treated at his sanatorium was Robert Louis Stevenson who wrote part of "The Master of Ballantrae" while a patient there. In recent years, much expanded, it aided the research program which resulted in the wonder drugs of today.

It is to be hoped that the Trudeau Sanatorium, comprising 50 buildings on 90 landscaped acres, will not lose its identity as a famous medical landmark. It may be that it can aid in the fight against some other disease as it did in the fight against what used to be called the great white plague.

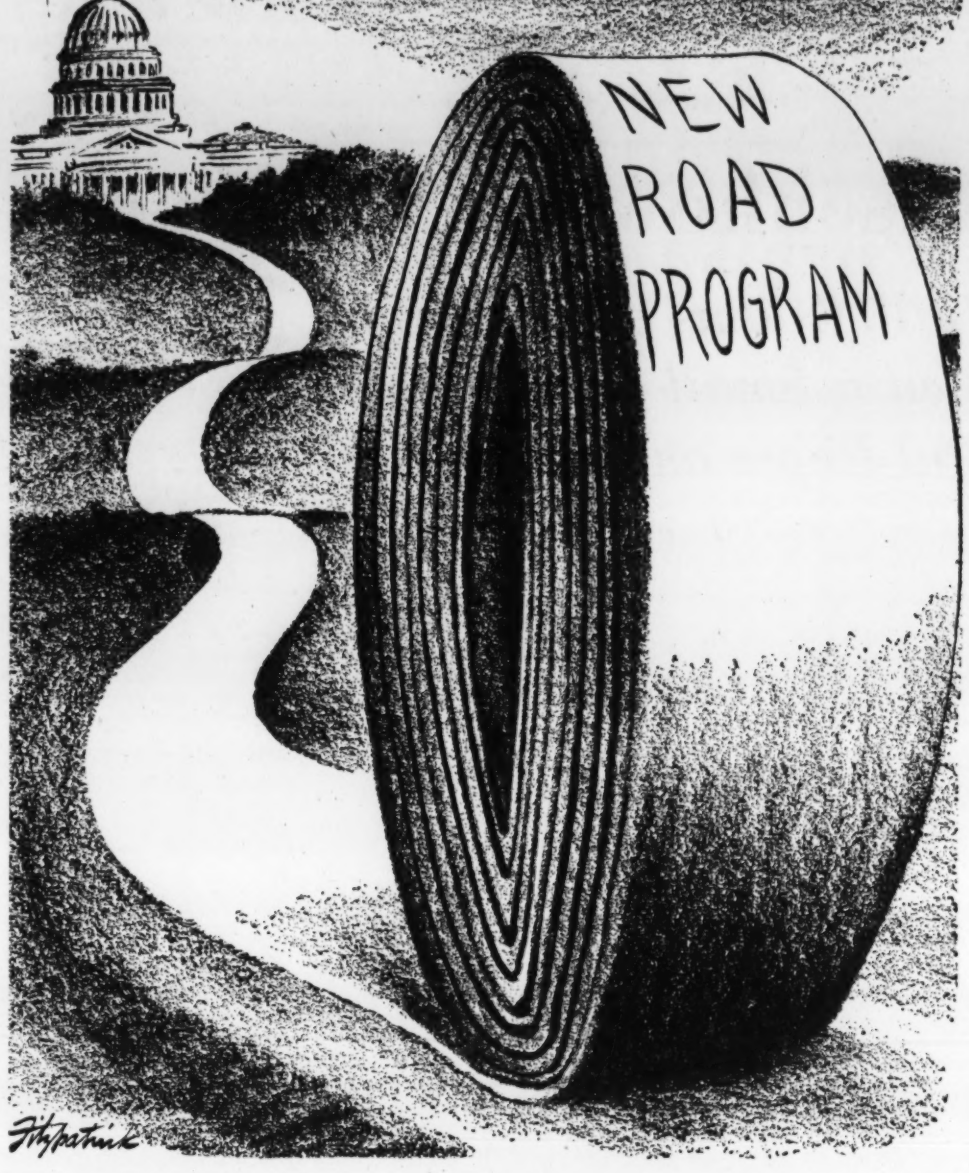

An Excellent Appointment

President Eisenhower deserves hearty commendation on his appointment of Paul G. Hoffman as a United States delegate to the approaching General Assembly of the United Nations. Mr. Hoffman is well qualified by reputation, experience and ability to serve his country in this important capacity.

An eminent automobile manufacturer, highly esteemed in the world of business, Mr. Hoffman performed a signal public service as the first administrator of the Marshall plan which was instrumental in halting the march of Communism across Europe. The wonder is not that he is appointed to this U.N. post in 1956 but that the Eisenhower Administration did not press him into its upper levels three years ago.

As for Senator McCarthy's diatribe that Mr. Hoffman has recently uttered statements that "could only be made by a fool or a Communist," such words measure the Wisconsin demagogue and not Mr. Hoffman. Countless citizens will welcome the White House's willingness to appoint Mr. Hoffman notwithstanding Senator McCarthy's intemperate denunciation. Surely only the Jenners and Welkers will pay any attention to the McCarthy spoutings.

We wish for Mr. Hoffman at the U.N. the outstanding public service which we are confident he can contribute.

Naughty Genius of the '20s

The Mirror of Public Opinion

James Branch Cabell looks back to era his 'Jurgen' shocked; now that it is in paperbacks and he is 77, readers search it in vain for spice; he thinks Mencken, Hergesheimer, Lewis, Van Vechten greatest contemporaries; has written 52 books.

Louis D. Rubin Jr., in The Baltimore Evening Sun

RICHMOND.

James Branch Cabell is 77 years old. He lives in the same big brick house on Monument avenue where he has resided these many years. Once the house was at the western edge of the city; now it is downtown.

Mr. Cabell comes to the door, and you recognize immediately the square, firm face that was so well known in the 1920s when "Jurgen" was all the rage.

He has been ill the last two years, following a bout with "wonder drugs" that failed to agree with him, but he seemed better.

"I'm rather hard of hearing now, so you had better sit close to me and speak loudly," he says.

He is dressed comfortably, in a smoking jacket, and he is wearing red tennis shoes. He places a cigarette in a long thin holder, and lights it.

Branch Cabell

What has Mr. Cabell been reading lately? Magazines, for the most part.

"My eyes are not too good any more, and many years ago I formed the unfortunate habit of reading while lying down, which makes it worse."

'Cult' Proved Embarrassing

Had Mr. Cabell read the recent essay on his work by Edmund Wilson, in The New Yorker? He certainly had read it, and he liked it.

"Of course, I don't agree with everything he says, especially the part about the South, but I thought it a very interesting article. You know that Mr. Wilson had been quite critical of my work for many years—just as he says in the article—but now he has changed his mind." Mr. Cabell smiles. "Besides—it's good advertising."

The thought of advertising immediately called to mind a book by Mr. Cabell that in its day had brought him much fame and notoriety. How did Mr. Cabell think "Jurgen" has stood the test of time?

He thought it a pretty good book, all things considered. Did he think that the "cult" that it inspired had done his contemporary reputation any harm?

Yes, he did. "The reception embarrassed me very much."

Mr. Cabell thought back to the 1920s, when the book had been denounced the country over as salacious writing, and had become a best seller overnight.

As to Mencken's Reputation

Mr. Cabell smiled wryly. Just to show how things had changed, he said, a recent paper-back edition of "Jurgen" had been brought out, and people searched its pages in vain for the pornography it was supposed to contain and then wrote to ask him whether it had been abridged or expurgated.

Which of Mr. Cabell's contemporaries did he most admire?

"Mencken," he said at once. "And Hergesheimer, Van Vechten, Sinclair Lewis."

What did Mr. Cabell think of the late Sage of Baltimore? Did he agree with one critic's statement that Mencken's eventual reputation would be as a humorist?

"Yes, that's quite possible. Have you ever read his 'Days' books? They are very fine work."

What of Sinclair Lewis? Mr. Cabell much preferred the earlier Lewis—"Main Street," "Dodsworth," "Babbitt." The later Lewis he could never abide.

How about another of Mr. Cabell's contemporaries, Theodore Dreiser?"

"He is awfully hard going, don't you think? I find him very tedious. I always liked him as a person very much, of course,' but his prose is so heavy."

"To tell the truth," Mr. Cabell said, "it's been years since I have read any of the books I most liked all the way through. I know them so well, and I prefer to dip into them, and to turn to scenes and passages I admire."

In his recent autobiography, "As I Remember It," Mr. Cabell had made extended comment on his fellow Richmonder, the late Ellen Glasgow, and had handled her own posthumously published autobiography, "The Woman Within," rather sharply.

Which of Miss Glasgow's novels did he most admire? "I think I like 'The Romantic Comedians' and 'They Stooped to Folly,' best, although 'Barren Ground' was probably her best book. I didn't enjoy it so much, myself."

Books Written Six Times

Which of Mr. Cabell's own books did he read nowadays? "Oh, goodness, none of them—except perhaps some of my verse, which I amuse myself with sometimes trying to improve. It's very painful for me to read my novels; I should have liked to have made them so much better than they are. I suppose my last book is my favorite; it always is."

How did Mr. Cabell write his books? Did he write in successive drafts, or did his first draft stand up pretty well?

"I wrote each book six or seven times. You see, I write in a very small hand, in pencil, and then I go over that and correct it a great deal, and typewrite the second draft, and then work on that in pencil, and so on."

Did he enjoy writing fiction or nonfiction the most? "The nonfiction, by all means."

You thought of what Mr. Cabell was saying, and how he said it. You had wondered whether in conversation he would talk the way he wrote—the involved, complex phrasing, with the nuances, the little ironies, the bittersweet jests. For the most part he did not speak that way; his answers had been direct, simple.

End of His Creative Work

"Words are the only thing we have to work with," he had remarked earlier.

The Cabell of the books was the real Cabell, not merely a facet or an attitude of the author. There was no element whatsoever of a pose in them. He had communicated himself in his style as best he could, and his books contained the man.

What was Mr. Cabell working on nowadays? "Nothing," he said, shaking his head, "My eyes have become quite bad, and I'm not getting any younger, and I find it very sad to realize that it's probably all over. Fifty-two books are quite a lot."

He gestured to a glass-inclosed bookcase behind his chair. All the books he had written over the course of a half-century of literary activity were there, uniformly bound in red, with gold lettering.

GOOD WORD FOR DRAGSTERS

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

Bob Hermann's description of drag racing in the Courier-Journal does not make it sound attractive. The heat, the dust, the tire-squealing are all problems from which most of us are fleeing throughout the summer.

But more than 3000 people found the ordeal fun, and if cars must be raced, obviously they are less dangerous racing off the highways, on a policed track and under supervision. While we're inclined to agree with the pessimistic patrolman who says that the trouble-making hot-rodders will still prefer to do their speeding on the highways, the more responsible type of youth, who loves to tinker with automobile engines and then test his skill, probably finds the new drag strip an answer to prayer. We wish him well with it.

From Far-Off Isles

With the help of the Ford Foundation, The Atlantic Monthly, after publishing supplements on the culture, literature and arts of India, Holland, Belgium, Japan, Greece and Brazil, has now issued such a 74-page supplement on Indonesia. The following poems, by Indonesian writers, are reprinted from the Atlantic supplement, as prepared by Intercultural Publications, Inc., N.Y.

Meeting

Standing beside the grave
With the morning sun glistening pink on the earth,
My soul bends down
Seeking your face,
And my senses swell and flood.
Confronting you,
Piercing the thick ground,
I let my eyes wander
To the rows of graves, hundreds of stones
In red earth, in thick grass,
Mossy wood and singing marble,
And like lightning it flashes in my heart:
So many sorrows well up,
So often sadness sluices tears
Onto the earth.
Oh, brother in white,
You're not alone in the ground!

S. TAKDIR ALISJAHBANA.

Parting

Together we braid flowers
Into a delicate, fragrant bouquet,
Returning home, happy,
As the red ball drops down from the sky.
At the side-road we part.
The bouquet trembles in our hands,
Falls, and breaks in two.
I take one half, you the other
And, holding it firmly, you are gone . . .
I walk alone in the dusk,
You run away with only the flower
Sending its scent to me.

WALUJATI.

Between Two Worlds

That morning, when I heard the news,
I went into the street:
vendors and passersby walked close to the walls for tanks and trucks will not wait for anyone.
And some who were armed strolled in twos, between them a void of still humanity,
all things frozen:
men and objects, even the air . . . and yet they were alive.

I went to friends; the words were lost in darkness.
News: Jogja has fallen, Maguwo . . .
Sukarno arrested, Hatta, Sjahrir . . .
We talked and talked and visited more friends;
we talked, discussed and looked into the future that flowed from the word Freedom and flowed for Freedom.

In the evening full of news and possibilities
I was welcomed home by my unextinguished self and the open book as yet unread, and the unfinished book that had to be read.

It is for this I have left both father and brother . . .
And I remembered only one meal had been cooked that day.
The rice pan lay uncovered, and I buried myself in the grave dug out of the gloom by the light of the lamp.

And on that night stampeding boots had echoed in the dark, and when they had gone, the women had cried, wives and mothers.
There is no need to say what they took away.
I could batter my head against the wood,
my head whirling with the one word
Freedom, unfulfilled, reaching toward as yet an unborn world.

Task of Halting Dissolution Of NATO Power Facing Norstad When He Takes Over Command

He Must Convince Allies That Ground Forces Should Be Strong Enough to Contain Surprise Attack Until Nuclear Retaliation Is Effected.

By BRIG. GEN. THOMAS R. PHILLIPS, U.S.A. (Ret.)
Military Analyst of the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, July 14.

THIS is Bastille day, the French Fourth of July, and at daybreak this morning the first of thousands of French men and women were already in place along the Champs-Elysee to see the parade to boost French morale in France's time of troubles. The most spectacular parade since Bastille day in 1945 is being put on.

Out at Supreme Allied Military Headquarters of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization at Roquencourt outside Paris, where the American Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther commands, no parade is taking place to cheer the 15 member states of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization. NATO also faces a time of trouble. The relaxation of international tension that has followed the new Soviet line has taken away the feeling of danger that so far has induced the Western European members of NATO to make the sacrifices to maintain the military establishment that is required.

Problem Is Norstad's.

On the slight shoulders of the graying American Air Force Gen. Lauris Norstad, who is to succeed Gruenther in the supreme allied command, rests the problem of finding the new rationale and the new inspiration to keep the allied military effort going. Norstad's task is much more difficult than that faced by Gen. Eisenhower when he assumed command of the nonexistent NATO forces.

Gen. Eisenhower had worldwide prestige. Heads of state humbly accepted his suggestions about the military effort required and did their best within their internal political systems to meet his demands.

His leadership was reinforced by the aggressive policies of the Soviet Union at that time. The danger was obvious to everyone. But Norstad is faced with maintaining and increasing the NATO military establishment at a time when the same European people no longer can see any danger coming from the Soviet Union.

Military Prodigy.

Norstad is without any doubt the most brilliant senior officer wearing the American uniform. He has been a military prodigy throughout his career, reaching high rank when very young and looking with his blond slimness younger than he was. His sheer intellectual brilliance won the respect of the older Army and Navy planners with whom he was associated in the Pentagon during World War II. No one who worked with him failed to respect and admire him.

Added to his intellectual brilliance was a quietness in presenting his position, a calmness that never aroused the animosity and resistance of his colleagues as he convinced them of the validity of what seemed to them his radical ideas. At Supreme Allied Headquarters where he is now air deputy to Gruenther, he has been the major educational influence. He has slowly, calmly and by force of reason, without arousing resistance, convinced Gruenther, Gruenther's Chief-of-Staff Gen. Courland Schuyler and Gruenther's deputy commander, the stiff but brilliant Field Marshal Bernard Montgomery, of the validity of the U.S. air nuclear strategy.

The adoption by SHAPE in 1954 of a forward strategy based on atomic weapons is due to the never-pressing never-excited logic of Norstad.

Growing Dissolutions.

The military side of NATO now is facing a crisis. The allied forces of West Central Europe can become a shell, not even a plate glass window—under the impact of new Soviet policies—that will provide no deterrence and no defense for Europe. It will soon be the responsibility of Norstad—and he has no such prestige as Eisenhower outside military circles—to halt the growing dissolution of NATO military power.

Although an advocate of the air atomic deterrent strategy, Norstad also makes the most lucid case the writer has heard for sufficient ground forces in Western Europe to provide a shield against a Soviet surprise attack and a shield of sufficient strength to save Western Germany and Europe from being overrun before the retaliatory counter-offensive takes effect. In the past, the big argument used to impress our own and other peoples has been an enumeration of the vastness of the Soviet Armaments—the 175 divisions, the 375 or 450 submarines and the 20,000 aircraft in combat formation. The case for counter-armament was based on the massive Soviet military potential and its obvious aggressive intentions. Wherever a weak spot could be found, the Soviet military potential was habitually exaggerated, sometimes from conviction by intelligence officers too close to their data to exercise good judgment and sometimes by the individual American military services to convince the Congress of their needs.

No Longer Convincing.

The cry of wolf has been raised too many times even without the Soviet reductions made and announced to be made it no longer is convincing. Now that the Soviet Union is reducing its armed forces to approximately the level of the United States forces, now that it is adopting the United States deterrent and defensive strategy, now that it is succeeding in convincing most of the world that its intentions at least for the time being are pacific, the enumeration and exaggerated enumeration of Soviet capabilities will fail to convince.

But all the cries of wolf have not succeeded in giving NATO the minimum ground forces required for its defensive and deterrent strategy. According to Norstad, a strategic air planner, the deterrent strategy is no deterrent unless an adequate ground force is ready on the West's frontiers. The ground force shield, Norstad declares, is an essential part of the deterrent strategy, just as important as the air nuclear retaliatory force.

His argument is that without a sufficient shield of ground forces the Russians could overrun most of Western Germany in 24 hours by a surprise move, or they could work up some justification for moving into Western Germany, such as riots endangering the peace, and present the West with a fait accompli. The West would then be faced with the decision to resort to all-out nuclear war or to accept the Soviet advance.

Dangerous Possibility.

This today is considered in SHAPE the most dangerous possibility the West faces. Soviet forces, even after they are reduced, still will be ample for such an operation. In other words, a pure retaliatory air nuclear strategy founded on peripheral bases could turn out to have no deterrence at all.

How strong should the shield be? About 30 divisions is considered close to both the maximum needed and the minimum required. It could vary 10 or 15 per cent either way, but not much more.

The reasons for this figure are complex and involve geographical force and readiness studies too complicated to go into. Gruenther and Norstad believe the requirements for the ground force shield can be met, that they are within the practical capabilities of the Western powers; but if they are to be met, the full German contribution is essential. The British and Americans cannot withdraw any divisions, the Belgians and the Dutch must maintain their contribution and the French must restore as soon as possible the forces they have pledged to NATO. Otherwise the deterrent strategy will be without effect.

A Political Problem.

The problem that Norstad faces is political and not military. He must convince the NATO powers that the air nuclear deterrent strategy by itself is no deterrent without the irreducible minimum of ground forces on the frontier.

Norstad has to overcome the universal desire to reduce taxes and military service. He has to convince all of our European allies that adequate ground forces for a shield that can prevent a surprise march over Western Europe and hold until the air nuclear retaliatory attack becomes effective are as essential as American air nuclear power for their defense. He has to turn back the idea that there is an easy and painless military solution to the defense of Europe.

If he succeeds, it will be more of a miracle than Eisenhower accomplished when he put the NATO military show on the road and made a reality of the allied forces of Europe.

Grand Canyon Tragedy Spurs Search For Jet-Age Safety in Crowded Skies

One Phase Is CAA 5-Year Radar Program to Blanket U.S. Air Space.

By EDWARD F. WOODS
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 14.

THE consensus among experts is that there never will be a fool-proof air safety system because neither machines nor men can be counted on to function perfectly. But the demand in and out of Government for co-ordinated regulations and traffic control realistically geared to current requirements and those of the coming jet age in commercial flying is getting action. The present system basically dates back to 1936.

The Civil Aeronautics Administration, under prodding by Democratic Senators, is embarking on a five-year safety program costing $246,000,000 which will be the greatest federal airway project in history. The uproar caused by the collision of two airliners over the Grand Canyon with a loss of 128 lives has spurred CAA officials to predict they might get the work done in three years.

Trying Out New Rules.

The Civil Aeronautics Board, which promulgates regulations under which civilian aviation functions, is experimenting with new rules intended to reduce the hazards around such flying density points as New York, Chicago and Washington.

Then there are the air coordinating committee, the air navigation development board, a co-ordinating agency of CAA and CAB, and numerous subcommittees and panels which are conducting studies and making reports on safety needs throughout the country.

In addition, Edward P. Curtis, special assistant to the President for aviation facilities planning, has launched an 18-month project to determine the nation's over-all needs for the next 20 years, including airport expansion.

The Army is being pushed to share its technological secrets with the commercial airlines and Congress is certain to be asked for more funds for advanced research in air safety devices.

Moreover, Cornell University aeronautical laboratory has in recent days announced development of an aerial collision warning device which, it is claimed by some, would have prevented the Grand Canyon disaster.

Defying Law of Averages.

The Grand Canyon crash focused the nation's attention on the crowded skies and the frightful possibilities inherent in flying more aircraft faster, higher and more and more often without commensurate development of the air safety system, thereby defying the law of averages.

Since 1950, there have been 66 midair collisions with heavy loss of life. Commercial airliners, however, were involved in only the one, at Grand Canyon. Airline pilots have been reporting, on the average, four near-collisions daily involving their craft. Jet airliners with speeds up to 600 miles an hour, twice those of the propeller-driven craft, will be going into operation in 1958 and 1959.

Only 33 of the nation's airports are equipped with radar, and experts claim that such equipment should be in use at 50 others, at least. There are air traffic jams of dangerous density over the metropolitan centers. In the New York area, for example, there are 1216 airline landings and take-offs daily, an average of one every 1.2 minutes.

Increase Since 1948.

Since 1948, total United States flying hours have more than doubled, and air carriers have boosted their passenger miles from about 6 billion to 20 billion. Military operations have increased and so have those in the category of general aviation. Aviation's rate of growth and the load it puts on existing facilities have constantly been underestimated in planning the future. For example, in 1951, CAA predicted that air passenger miles would reach 20 billion in 1960. That figure was reached five years ahead of schedule.

The air traffic control system basically dates back to 1936 when it was established to handle craft with a top cruising speed of 160 miles an hour. Improvements in the system, as planes got faster, bigger and more numerous, have been on a piece-meal basis. As far back as 1948, the radio technical commission for aeronautics, a government-industry advisory group, reported that "every citizen having any acquaintance with flying knows well the inability of the existing techniques of traffic control to handle the present volume of air traffic, particularly under adverse weather conditions."

Two Sets of Rules.

Men who fly the planes along with the companies which own them have long protested against the air traffic control system, which imposes two sets of traffic rules on the highways of the air. Some blame the system, itself, for the Grand Canyon tragedy.

As the system operates, in clear weather a pilot usually elects to depend upon his own eyesight to keep him out of trouble. When the weather closes in or a congested air space must be traversed, however, he switches to an alternate system which connects him with an air control center. In this operation, radar and other navigational aids are used to keep the aircraft at a carefully prescribed course, speed and altitude.

However, a pilot can switch from visual flight to instrument flight and back again at any time. This is often done as the pilot looks for optimum speed and safety for his plane. And visual and instrument flights can be in the same area at the same time.

Both pilots and the scheduled airlines want all aircraft to be required to fly on instruments, making for complete ground control of the nation's airlines. This could become an outgrowth of the mammoth $246,000,000 program for expanded flight facilities.

Pilot's Difficulties.

Experts recognize that it is impossible for a pilot to fly a modern high-speed airplane effectively without almost continuous reference to his cockpit instruments. Hence, under the best conditions, a pilot may not be looking out of his plane when a mid-air collision is imminent. Furthermore, he can see only a small part of the sky around him and he may not see crossing, overtaking or descending aircraft.

Time and motion studies show that it takes about seven seconds for a pilot to change the direction of his airplane after he sees an object he must avoid. It has been demonstrated that when the pilot of a jet plane sees a speck on his windshield, which is another oncoming jet one mile away, it is already too late to take evasive action because in four seconds the oncoming plane will be upon him. That would be the situation in clear weather. Under marginal visibility during haze, smog or at high altitudes, the approaching aircraft might be almost invisible.

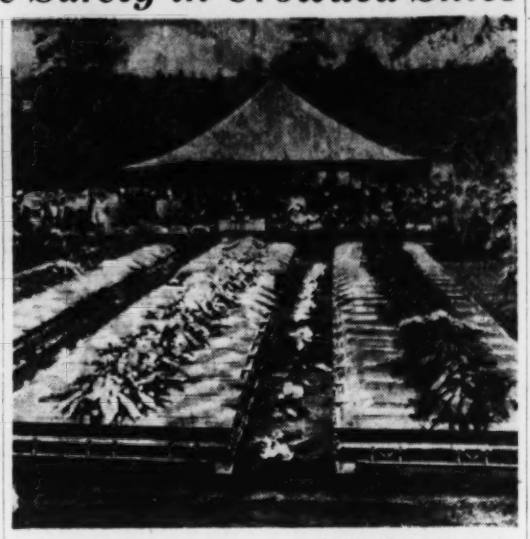

Why then is there not traffic control at all times—in good weather or bad?

System Inadequate.

The principal reason is that the present traffic control system is incapable of handling all the traffic that operates in good weather and any attempt to require all traffic to fly at all times under positive control with the tools now available to the CAA would be chaotic.

A consideration of great importance in the air safety picture is improvement of airports. These include longer and stronger runways, clear approach zones, high speed taxi turnoffs, high intensity lighting and enlarged utility systems.

The projected $246,000,000 CAA program envisages blanketing high-altitude air space in the United States with "radar eyes" which will keep even the high-speed jets and the advanced piston-engined planes under positive control at all times.

Eisenhower Candidacy Victory for Advisers

hower, if re-elected would be a "part-time President." Former President Truman has gone beyond this and claimed that his successor has been a "part-time President" ever since he entered the White House.

Aside from the campaign charges, there can be no question about Mr. Eisenhower's reorganization of the White House work so that he has been relieved of many of the burdens and decisions for which his predecessors took full responsibility. He set up a military chain-of-command, with Adams in a position comparable to a commander's chief-of-staff, and greatly increased the number of highly paid assistants, advisers and consultants for continuing and special assignments.

Adams is the boss of the White House staff and makes it a full time job. He doubles in brass on domestic affairs and political maneuvering and he increased his powers immediately after the President's heart attack and the ileitis operation. The result has been that the ordinary administrative affairs of Government have been efficiently handled, considering the circumstances, but many of the larger issues, notably in foreign affairs, have been bumbled or left to drift.

After the heart attack in September, Adams, Brownell and Nixon quickly insisted that the Cabinet members and agency heads arrange their work so that a minimum of decisions would have to be made by the White House. Before the heart attack, Adams was the channel through which many of the most important domestic projects reached the President and, according to Donovan, by the time many of these projects reached the President they had already been shaped in part by Adams himself.

Adams, Hall and Brownell are the President's political advisers and in the efforts to persuade the President to run again they had in mind the Republican objective to regain control of Congress. Several prospective senatorial candidates had refused to seek election unless assured Mr. Eisenhower would be nominated. Among these were the late Gov. Paul Patterson of Oregon, who did not want to try to unseat Democratic Senator Wayne Morse. He was assured the President would run again but he died three days after announcing his candidacy. In his place, the Washington group persuaded Interior Secretary Douglas McKay to come out as Morse's opponent, thus assuring an Oregon vote on the private-versus-public-power issue. Similar Administration pressure was brought on Gov. Arthur B. Langlie of Washington to run against Democratic Senator Warren G. Magnuson. As a boost to Langlie, he was named keynoter of the San Francisco convention.

White House Pressure.

The most dramatic use of White House pressure was the forcing of John Sherman Cooper, American Ambassador to India to accept the Republican senatorial nomination to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky.

Cooper, a former Senator, was reluctant to leave his post in New Delhi, believing that he was making real progress in bettering relations between this country and Prime Minister Nehru. During an hour long White House conference with Adams, Cooper talked by telephone with President Eisenhow in Gettysburg. Mr. Eisenhower, as head of the Republican party, backed up Adams that Cooper should resign his ambassadorial post and help the party get control of Congress. Since Ambassadors serve "at the pleasure of the President," Cooper reluctantly agreed to accept the senatorial nomination, which had also been arranged by Washington.

Wiley Left Dangling.

On the other hand, Mr. Eisenhower refused to indorse the candidacy of Senator Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin, perhaps his most ardent foreign policy supporter in Congress, whose renomination is being seriously opposed by Representative Glenn R. Davis with the support of Senator McCarthy and others opposed to the President's international programs. In the McCarthy-Army controversy, Adams generally sided with those who were afraid to tangle with the Wisconsin Senator, a position reflected by the President.

The White House attitudes toward Cooper and Wiley symbolized the greater emphasis of the presidential advisers on domestic politics over international affairs. Secretary Dulles did not intervene—if he ever had an opportunity to do so—to stop the resignation of Ambassador Cooper. Instead, he agreed to the sending of Vice President Nixon on a quick trip to Asia, during which the Vice President got into a direct controversy with Prime Minister Nehru over the conflicting American views on neutral nations. The President and his Secretary of State have made seemingly contradictory statements about "neutralism," particularly that of India, and Nixon added to the confusion by making what Nehru took as a personal criticism of himself. Nixon continued the controversy at Karachi, in Pakistan—a rival of India—causing Democratic Senator Hubert Humphrey of Minnesota to tell the Senate yesterday that the Nixon speech was "the wrong place to say the wrong thing at the wrong time."

Foreign Aid Cuts.

The cutting down of the Administration's foreign aid appropriations in Congress this week can be at least partly attributed to the President's treatment of Senator Wiley, a firm supporter of the program. When the President declined to speak up publicly for Wiley, less ardent Republican Senators and Representatives naturally wondered whether their own votes for Administration recommendations would be recognized or passively repudiated.

Although the Democratic presidential aspirants have asserted they would not make the President's health an issue in the coming campaign, all have said they would emphasize that he has been and would continue to be a part-time President. There is no way, of course, to make this part time President charge a corollary of the proposition that Nixon has a chance of succeeding to the highest office, without bringing in the health issue and the influence of Mr. Eisenhower's official and unofficial advisers.

The Democratic spokesmen will relate these charges to foreign affairs, especially the lack of an American policy to meet the changed Kremlin dictatorship, to the erosion of NATO as a collective security shield, the squabbles in the Defense Department and a whole list of domestic issues, such as the failure of the school aid bill and the divisions within the Republican party.

Personalities are more easily understood by the voters than generalities, and while the Republicans have a great personality in the President, the Democrats are hoping that vigorous criticisms of those around him and their influence will counteract the potency of the Republican slogan of peace, prosperity and progress.

Austria-Soviet Navigation Pact.

VIENNA, July 14 (AP)—Austrian ships soon will be able to sail all the way down the Danube to the Black Sea. Austria is about to sign a navigation agreement with Russia. Agreements already have been reached with Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Romania.

"L'Amour" Was Theme of This French Writer

By THOMAS B. SHERMAN
Book Editor of the Post-Dispatch

"THE Ripening Seed" by Colette is now available in a new English translation and for those who are not familiar with the works of this distinguished French novelist it should provide a most agreeable introduction. Colette was a specialist in love, or perhaps I should say "l'amour" since the French word is much more specifically applicable to what the French mean by love.

In any case the "Ripening Seed" is a love story and though the principals are a boy of 16 and a girl of 15 there is little in their relationship that corresponds to what we speak of as "puppy love." On the contrary it is a deep, subtle attraction into which many other ingredients —companionship, benevolence, a shared interest in nature and a youthful idealism—are mixed.

Phillipe, the boy, and Vinca have known each other since childhood and their mutual attachment has grown in proportion to their years together. Now comes another summer when Phillipe and Vinca feel the stirrings of a more mature passion; and to each of them the five or six years that will intervene before they can be married seems a distressingly long time.

THEN Phillipe meets Mme. Dalleray, a woman of the world who occupies a nearby villa at the seaside resort in Brittany where his family and Vinca's have spent their summers for many years. Phillipe's entanglement with Mme. Dalleray is purely extra-curricular. Vinca is still his beloved one, but his awakening manhood, together with the magnetism that Mme. Dalleray exercises by reason of her sophistication, is enough to make him temporarily unfaithful to his true love.

COLETTE

What he gets out of it, for the most part, is a wholly new and unpleasant sensation — a feeling of guilt. Vinca's perceptiveness is such that she quickly notes the change in Phillipe; and she meets the situation by promptly bringing into play her feminine wisdom and instinct.

AS may be seen, "The Ripening Seed" has a simple line of action, but the play of feeling between Phillipe and Vinca is as complicated and as rich in nuance as a novel by Henry James. The American reader, I imagine, will regard Phillipe and Vinca as extraordinarily advanced for their years in the quality of their thought. When allowances are made for their precocity, the situation seems plausible enough and certainly it is treated with great delicacy. The writing too has a charming and muted lyricism which is effectively conveyed in the translation by Roger Senhouse.

Open Season on Aunts

Reviewed by FAY PROFILET

WE HAVEN'T SEEN HER LATELY, by E. X. Ferrars. (Doubleday, 186 pgs., $2.75.)

THIS seems to be an open season on aunts. No one has seen Aunt Violet lately. When her niece, Helen, learns that her aunt has not been seen in her village for more than a year she begins to search for her. When she reaches Aunt Violet's home she is shocked at the condition of the garden "with thistles six feet high and docks and brambles." She finds the house occupied by Aunt Violet's husband, his sister, cats that leap at one from dark rooms and a snake slithering in the shadows. Helen finds her aunt who is staying at a nearby town, but she again vanishes. Finally Helen traces her to a little house, only to discover an empty cottage with Aunt Violet's needle work and glasses on the table and one of her slippers on the floor. A chilling story by a past master in mystery writing.

DEATH IN RETIREMENT, by Josephine Bell. (Macmillan, 208 pgs., $2.75.)

ALL that Dr. Olive Clayton asks in her declining years is peace and quiet. She returns from India where she has practiced medicine for four decades, and settles in Brambles cottage with her niece, Gillian Clayton. Dr. Clayton finds her retirement pleasant until Gillian tells her she is going to be married. A middle-aged couple is found to share the cottage and expenses with Dr. Clayton and with them comes hatred and finally murder. Josephine Bell, one of the top mystery writers of Britain, will be remembered in this country for her novel, "Bones in the Barrow," which was an instant success. Her latest story, artfully plotted and expertly written, is something special.

Portrait of Eisenhower As President

EISENHOWER: THE INSIDE STORY, by Robert J. Donovan. (Harper & Bros., 423 pgs., $4.95.)

Reviewed by
ROBERT LASCH

THE dominant impression one gets from this "inside story" is of an amiable, well-intentioned, moderately liberal President presiding over but never really controlling his Administration, moving in a realm of hazy abstractions and generalizations, with his subordinates making the translations into specific action according to their bent.

Usually his instincts were right, but they did not always govern. He could suggest to Secretary Benson that price supports ought to be eased down more gradually than Mr. Benson wished, but Mr. Benson did not agree, and Mr. Benson prevailed. He could suggest to Secretary Humphrey that controls on consumer credit should be retained for a while, but Mr. Humphrey did not agree, and Mr. Humphrey prevailed. He could speak out against book-burning, but retract his words when Secretary Dulles patiently explained the necessity for burning a few books.

The President's views as he expressed them at Cabinet meetings were often so broad that almost any interpretation could be placed upon them. As to TVA, for example, he once told the Cabinet that the Government "should build some steam plants to supplement hydroelectric power, but the process should not be perpetuated to extend the TVA monopoly on power." Regarding the loyalty-security program he said that "in security cases the welfare of the country must be paramount."

THE Donovan record supports what was generally known, that the President is basically a man of peace, but not the partisan claim that he is the sole architect of such peace as we now have. Undoubtedly his sunny disposition and transparently peaceable temperament made a strong and favorable impression on the Russians at Geneva, and it may be true that he enjoys a special status with them which another President might not inherit.

But he originated no great policy at Geneva. The famous "open skies" plan was handed to him by a "psychological warfare" committee of which Adm. Radford was a prominent member.

In effect, Dwight D. Eisenhower is revealed as a good man, friendly and likable, amazingly lucky, possessed of a strong instinct for popularity, and superb at delegating (some would say evading) responsibility, but not as a man of ideas.

She Played in Seven Languages

MODJESKA, HER LIFE AND LOVES, by Antoni Gronowicz. (Thomas Yoseloff, Inc., 254 pgs., $5.00.)

Reviewed by
NELL CONVERSE PUTZEL

THIS tempestuous and discerning story of the beautiful girl from Poland who became a great actress for many nations makes an exciting book. Everyone has heard of Modjeska, some fortunate ones have really seen her, but her young countryman, Antoni Gronowicz, who has other books to his credit, may be the one who understands her marvelous personality and talent.

He writes flamboyantly, as she lived. He starts his story with the actress, shortly before her death, pacing her beautiful rooms alone, looking at all the portraits of herself, as Rosalind, as Lady Macbeth, as Ophelia, as Cleopatra, as Camille, putting on one costume after another, remembering all her parts and her triumphs and her loves, and searching among the many pictures for herself.

From this spectacular beginning, her biographer writes simply of her childhood in a beautiful house in Warsaw until the great fire. He tells of the young Jewish artist, son of a great doctor, for whom Helena left the convent where she lived, on the night of the festival of St. John's Eve. This part of the story is as simple as Romeo and Juliet, and this was the boy she was thinking of at the end of her life.

BETWEEN the beginning and end of her story, there is a most compelling account of the beauty, courage and magnetism of a woman who could and did play Shakespeare in seven languages, whose patriotism was intense, whose generosity was unfailing in every cause she believed in.

This was the woman who, challenged by Bernhardt to a contest, before a party of rival actresses, in which each would play several parts without any clothes on, accepted the challenge and won the contest by the modesty of her appearance and the sincerity of her interpretation of the roles.

On May 2, 1905, there was a great celebration in her honor in New York. Guests from all over the world were there, though her great friend, Ignace Paderewski, was injured and delayed. Ada Rehan, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, James O'Neill and many others were present.

SHE spoke first of a younger actress, Eleonora Duse, and of her great talent. Then she said, of herself, ". . . to throw my whole soul into the assumed character, to lead its life, to be moved by its emotions, thrilled by its passions, to suffer or rejoice—in one word, to identify myself with it and reincarnate another soul and body—this became my ideal, the goal of all my aspirations, and at the same time, the enchantment and attraction of my work."

"The more I give, the more I have," says Juliet—and Helena Modjeska. What she gave was almost overwhelming to her audiences and, finally, to herself. At least, this is how Gronowicz interprets her, and I believe his story of a woman whose personal grief and capacity for happiness gave a great artist to the world.

Books for Young People

JEANNE-MARIE IN GAY PARIS. Written and illustrated by Francoise. (Charles Scribner's Sons, $2.75.)

JEANNE-MARIE, the little French girl who is well known to American children from three earlier books, leaves the farm for a visit to her Aunt Rose in Paris. Every day brings new adventures and lots of fun, but she remembers to buy presents for her friend Jean-Pierre and Patapon, her white sheep back home. Everything in Paris is gay, gay, gay. The charming illustrations in two and four colors reflect the author-artist's love of the city in which she lives.

ODYSSEUS THE WANDERER, by Aubrey De Selincourt. Illustrated by Norman Meredith. (Criterion Books, $3.)

THE color, the vigor and the excitement of the Iliad and the Odyssey are retained and even heightened in this retelling of the adventures of Odysseus. The raconteur—a Greek farmer of today — admires and envies Odysseus, yet knows him for the blend of rogue and hero that he was. Less poetic than the Paraic Colum version and less in the classical tradition than either the Colum or the Church versions, "Odysseus the Wanderer" yet merits inclusion in their good company.

One Family's Quest for the Simple Life

CANARY ISLAND ADVENTURE, by Richard Walter. (E. P. Dutton and Co., 255 pgs., $3.95.)

Reviewed by
EMILY L. NORCROSS

A COUPLE of years ago a successful advertising man and his wife decided that their life in and out of a Philadelphia suburb had become so active, so stimulating, so complicated that it had passed the point of being complete! The American embellishments upon life's basic needs "had grown a la Frankenstein—like too many crystal buttons on a lace blouse."

When they had been married in 1945 they had promised each other they would never let living problems kill the sparkle of their champagne wedding. Nine anniversaries, four houses and four children later they kept that promise, and the Walter family went to the Canary Islands for a year, so they could catch their breath with a change of pace.

THE Canary Island adventure was a quiet, peaceful adventure, the type of adventure which would appeal to most American families whose lives are cluttered by self-inflicted busyness, and filled with tensions generated by our over-civilized civilization. Mr. Walter suggests that our great lack in America is perhaps free time between our stimuli, time to savor and appreciate our experiences. On Gran Canario they found that time and spent a happy, full year at a slowed-down pace.

They chose the island because they wanted to get away, but not away from it all. They made friends and their children found playmates. They learned Spanish and how to take a siesta. They read, wrote, swam and explored. There were few doors to close! They kept house without benefit of electricity.

This book is sheer delight. The reader shares with the Walter family the quest for the simple life.

How Reds coerce Iron Curtain refugees

Michael Ivankov-Nikolov, a Russian sailor who refused repatriation to his homeland, shown testifying at a Senate Internal Security subcommittee hearing last April.

Communist pressure tactics to make Iron Curtain refugees return home have been condemned by President Eisenhower and the Internal Security subcommittee. The story of how the Reds apply that pressure is told in a revealing two-part series beginning in the Everyday Magazine of today's St. Louis Post-Dispatch. These articles are based on research and interviews with refugees and others who have been intimidated by the Reds.

Monday's article cites several shocking examples of how Red agents have forced refugees to return home by physical means or by threats of harming their loved ones still in Communist dominated countries . . . including the case of the five Russian sailors who were "voluntarily" repatriated last April. The Senate Internal Security subcommittee flatly labeled their departure "kidnapping."

STOCK PRICES PUSHED UP FOR FIFTH STRAIGHT WEEK

More Interest in Political and Business Developments Than Potential Economic Effect of Steel Walkout.

By JOHN G. FORREST
Financial Editor, The New York Times.
(Copyright, 1956, by The New York Times Co.)

NEW YORK, July 14.

THROUGH midweek Wall Street followed the old adage, "don't sell on strike news." Traders appeared to be more interested in political and business developments of a favorable nature than in the potential economic effect of the steel walkout, and pushed stocks, as measured by the averages, to new high levels.

It was the fifth consecutive weekly rise in prices, and trading expanded on the advance. Wednesday's volume on the big board was the greatest in a month. But on Thursday—after a fairly strong opening—the list appeared to have run out of steam. The advance resumed quietly on Friday.

Highly Favorable Reports.

In quick succession there were highly favorable reports on employment, building and retail sales. Even in the steel situation there appeared a ray of hope as Government mediators managed to get the opposing sides together on Thursday to renew negotiations. But there was little indication that a quick settlement would be forthcoming in the two-week-old strike.

Employment in June set a record, with 66,500,000 persons at work, according to the Commerce and Labor Departments. This represents a gain of 1,300,000 over the previous month and 2,500,000 more than a year ago. Nearly all segments of the economy showed gains; only the manufacturing area rose less than usual, due largely to layoffs in the automobile industry. Unemployment also gained with an influx of students into the labor market. The total on June 15 was 2,900,000, or an increase of 300,000 from the preceding month.

Good First Quarter.

Some of the misgivings about the first quarter results of business were dispelled by a report issued by the Securities and Exchange Commission during the week. It disclosed that manufacturers' earnings were higher than in any first quarter in history. Profits of industrial organizations before taxes aggregated $7,400,000,000, compared six billions and a half in the same period of 1955. The total, however, was $200,000,000 below the final quarter of 1955.

Most business men expect that sales and earnings in the final quarter of 1956 will compare favorably with a year ago, according to a survey made by Dun & Bradstreet. This forecast, however, was based on opinions obtained before the steel strike started. Some of those interviewed said they might have to change their views if the strike occurred. Of the 1499 officials interviewed, 64 per cent expected higher sales for manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers; 28 per cent could see no change in the quarter and 8 per cent expected lower profits.

Farm Problem Reports.

Two reports on the farm problem showed that cotton acreage on July 1 dropped to an estimated 16,962,000 acres, a reduction of 3 per cent from a year ago and the smallest plantings since the early 1880s. The Department of Agriculture said that because of poor weather, inadequate moisture in certain areas and a small reduction in total acreage, this year's over-all crop production might be cut about 2 per cent below a year ago.

Steel output in June set a record, with production running at a rate of 9,758,000 tons monthly, compared with 9,746,467 tons in the corresponding period of 1955. Production in the first half-year also set a record of 62,644,175 tons, compared with 57,206,302 tons in the first half of 1955. These records of abundance contrast with a scheduled production of 12.3 per cent of rated capacity for this week.

U.S. TREASURY ISSUES SHOW LOWER DRIFT

Corporates Also Lose Ground in Week's Slow Trading.

NEW YORK, July 14 (AP)—Both corporate and United States Government bonds drifted lower for the week in desultory trading. Market experts said the same reasoning was responsible for both trends.

In the view of many analysts, strength in the stock market showed this week stemmed from a belief that the steel strike would not last beyond Aug. 1 and that its settlement would be an inflationary influence. Widespread acceptance by investors of this view is responsible for the weakness in both corporate and Government bonds, particularly the long-range governments.

Corporate trading volume for the week amounted only to $16,563,000 par value, compared to $12,319,000 the previous four-day-week, and to $20,417,000 for the same week in 1955.

Government bond dealers reported transactions as "among the lightest in the year." Weakness was evident, particularly in the long-range bonds.

For the week, the Treasury 2½s of 1963 were off 8-32 at 96 22-32 bid. The Victory 2½s of December, 1972-67, gave up 6-32 at 94 10-32. The 30-year 3¼s dropped 14-32 at 103 28-32 and the 40-year 3s lost 12-32 at 99 4-32 bid.

At these prices, the 2½s of 1963 yield 3 per cent, the Victory 2½s 2.92 per cent, the 30-year 3¼s 2.99 per cent, and the 3s yield 3.03 per cent.

RYE IS WEEK'S STRONG GRAIN, RISING 10 CENTS

CHICAGO, July 14 (AP)—All grains except soybeans advanced in fairly active dealings on the board of trade this week. Wheat closed the period 1¾ to 2⅜ higher, corn ⅝s to 3⅜s higher, oats 1⅜s to 3⅞s higher, rye 9½ to 10 cents higher and soybeans 2¼ to 12 cents lower. Lard gained 10 to 30 cents.

Sharpest gains for the week were scored in rye. Buying was inspired in part by an Agriculture Department report forecasting a 21,986,000 bushel crop, which would be off considerably from last year's harvest.

A steamer which brought Canadian rye to Chicago put only a temporary restraint on the grain's strength. Imports of rye are limited to 3,300,000 bushels for the year which began July 1, 1956.

Only losses for the week were in soybeans. Heavy liquidation continued in July beans, which fell 12 cents and closed the week 77¾ cents under the seasonal high set April 2. Large deliveries of cash soybeans helped depress the July price.

In new crop soybeans losses ran from 2¼ to 4 cents. This partly reflected beneficial moisture in the midwest, particularly Illinois, and partly the Government's estimate farmers had planted 20,953,000 acres.

While oats did not advance as much as rye they turned in the best comparative performance of all grains. New seasonal highs were registered on most days of the week. Oats have advanced in six of the last seven weeks in a bull market of their own.

Behind the gains were additional reports of clipping of oats under the soil bank. But the main impetus came from a Government crop report estimating oats production at 1,143,929,000 bushels, a steep cut from last year's big harvest.

HOGS AND LAMBS LOWER ON WEEK, CATTLE MOSTLY STEADY

NATIONAL STOCK YARDS, Ill., July 14 — Hogs and lambs closed lower for the week, while cattle received effective support at generally steady prices, according to the Producers Live Stock Marketing Association. Receipts were of good volume in all departments.

DENIES HE LIKENED M'CARTHY TO BERIA

Ambassador Riddleberger Questioned About Wishing Him Similar Fate.

WASHINGTON, July 14 (AP)—James W. Riddleberger, United States ambassador to Yugoslavia, has denied he ever told Communist Party Boss Nikita S. Krushchev it was "too bad" Senator McCarthy (Rep.), Wisconsin, could not be liquidated as was Lavrenti P. Beria.

Beria, former head of the Soviet secret police, was executed in 1953 for alleged treason to Russia.

McCarthy produced at a closed meeting Thursday of the Senate Appropriations Committee, called to consider the foreign aid bill, what he said was a news story quoting Riddleberger as having said:

"We have our McCarthy, you had your Beria. It is too bad we cannot take care of McCarthy in the same fashion you took care of Beria."

The Wisconsin Senator demanded to know if this was a correct quotation.

Riddleberger said McCarthy must be alluding to an incident in Belgrade in May, 1955, when he said "Mr. Krushchev and I got into what might be characterized as a slight argument."

The Ambassador said that in the conversation, which lasted for two hours, Krushchev attacked President Eisenhower and several Senators. Riddleberger did not name the Senators. He said Krushchev argued that Americans did not understand the viewpoint of working men.

McCarthy interrupted to say that Riddleberger was getting a long way from the point. Did the Ambassador ever say what he was quoted as saying, McCarthy demanded.

"I never compared McCarthy to Beria," Riddleberger replied.

The Wisconsin Senator wanted to know if Riddleberger ever had repudiated the statement, which the Ambassador said must have been written after a news conference he held following the meeting with Khrushchev. Why didn't he wire the Senator if it was untrue, McCarthy pressed.

Riddleberger said he never saw a second story about the matter and just let it drop.

AID'S DAUGHTER RODE IN OFFICIAL PLANES

Father Is Immigration Commissioner Whose Hunting Trips Are Under Study.

WASHINGTON, July 14 (UP)—House investigators revealed today that Mrs. Mary Ann Mitchell, daughter of Immigration Commissioner Joseph M. Swing, was listed as a passenger on two Immigration Service plane flights to Mexico.

They said records at the Brownsville (Tex.) airport manager's office listed her on a flight from Brownsville to Monterrey, Mexico, on Dec. 9, 1955, and on a flight to Mexico City last April 3.

Mrs. Mitchell is employed as a secretary to the Immigration Service incentive awards committee and as an "administrative analyst" at $4500 a year.

Her name cropped up when investigators for the House Government Operations Committee headed by Representative Robert M. Mollohan (Dem.), West Virginia, tried to trace hunting trips Swing made into Mexico and Canada with service conveyances.

A spokesman for the Immigration Service here told a United Press reporter "our records show that she was on duty at the central office" in Washington on those dates.

Swing, a retired lieutenant general and West Point classmate of President Eisenhower, acknowledged that he used a Government plane, jeeps and an air-conditioned trailer, complete with a truck-hauled power generator, on his hunting trips.

But he said hunting was only "incidental" on the five trips, three to Mexico and two to Canada in the last two years.

Swing said the trips were intended for personal contact with Mexican and Canadian officials to promote better co-operation on border problems.

Subcommittee investigators, trying to turn up what use Swing has made of the Immigration Service's planes, including a C-147, found that the service's plane logs did not always jibe with records at the Brownsville airport.

They said they found Mrs. Mitchell listed as a passenger at Brownsville on two of the C-47 flights. The flights, one of them listed for "recreation," had nothing to do with the general's hunting trips, the investigators said.

3 TEEN-AGE BOYS TRY TO CLIMB UP 1042-FOOT TOWER

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 14 (AP) — Three teen-age boys climbed part way up a 1042-foot television tower last night.

Two of them climbed to 900 feet. The youngest, 15-year-old Phillip Keene of Kansas City, apparently got a bit woozy at the 300-foot mark and lay down on a catwalk there.

Meantime about 20 policemen gathered at the base of the tower. Patrolman Bob Sawtell climbed up and helped young Keene down. The other boys, Jerry Gypins, 17, of Independence, Mo., and Jack Roberts, 16, of Kansas City, descended without help.

"We decided to see how it looked looking down," young Gypins explained. He was booked for creating a public disturbance. His friends were turned over to their parents but summoned to appear before a police official.

American Visits Khrushchev.

MOSCOW, July 14 (INS)—G. V. Morgan, an American engineer who helped plan the Moscow subway system, paid a call today on Soviet Communist Party Chief Nikita S. Khrushchev. The Tass news agency said Morgan, in the Soviet Union on a visit, had a "warm and friendly conversation" with Khrushchev.

POPE CHEERED BY PILGRIMS ON WAY TO SUMMER PALACE

VATICAN CITY, July 14 (AP)—Pope Pius XII, cheered by crowds of pilgrims, left the heat of Vatican City by car today for his summer palace at Castel Gandolfo in the nearby Alban hills.

His departure this year was about two weeks earlier than usual. The Pope's physicians urged an early shift this year to give him more rest.

The 80-year-old pontiff's big American car, presented by United States Roman Catholics, was escorted through the streets of Rome and up into the hills on his 18-mile trip by 10 special motorcycle guards who usually accompany the president of Italy.

GENERAL ELECTRIC ANNOUNCES
On-Site Graduate Program in Cincinnati
BY ARRANGEMENT BETWEEN UNIVERSITY OF CINCINNATI AND GENERAL ELECTRIC Courses Start in September

We believe that this new graduate program is the first of its kind to be given in Cincinnati. It was sparked by the growing need in our country's economy for professional men with advanced training.

Engineers at the Aircraft Gas Turbine Division of GE can now study for an MS&ME degree on an extremely convenient and time-saving basis. Classes are scheduled from 3:30 to 5:30 P.M. Held right at the AGT plant. Expenses covered by General Electric's Full Tuition Refund Plan.

Program opens in the Fall with three courses: Advanced Mathematics, Engineering Analysis and Advanced Engineering Thermodynamics. Plans call for an enlarged curriculum at a later date. The University of Cincinnati will control the program and academic credits.

Of course, this is only one of many high points of an engineering career at the Aircraft Gas Turbine Division of G.E. in Cincinnati. You work on advanced flight propulsion systems: jet and rocket engines, atomic applications. You're handed concrete professional responsibilities. Work on a small design team of 7 men or less. Receive many benefits.

WHY NOT ARRANGE NOW FOR AN INTERVIEW ABOUT AN AGT CAREER so you can take advantage of the new on-site graduate program, if you so desire?

HOUSE HUNTING?

ADEQUATE WIRING Certified — KEY TO MODERN LIVING

Look for this key of CERTIFIED ADEQUATE WIRING before you buy

Don't guess... be sure the home you buy has a wiring system planned for the future, for the electrical servants you'll need and want.

How to tell? Just look for the Certified Adequate Wiring Key on the electrical "Servants' Entrance"!

Certified Adequate Wiring Provides . . .

A 100-ampere, or larger, electrical "Servants' Entrance" containing—

Two 240-volt circuits—one to kitchen for a flameless electric range . . . the other to provide for future installation of an electric dryer or room air conditioner.

Eight, or more, 120-volt circuits—for present lighting and appliances plus spares for future freezer circuit, bathroom heater and other new appliance circuits.

Three 20-ampere 120-volt "heavy duty" circuits—to kitchen, dining area and the laundry. Your electric iron, frypan will heat faster... and your washer will operate more efficiently!

DARK BRIGHTENS MIZELL'S PITCHING AS CARDS WIN, 5-2

PARNELL PITCHES NO-HITTER AGAINST WHITE SOX

ALVIN BATS IN THREE RUNS, BIRDS SWEEP GIANT SERIES; FIVE-HITTER FOR VINEGAR

By Jack Rice

For a man who says he liked life with the New York Giants, Alvin Dark went out of his way the past 72 hours to make their life miserable with him now. They owned him a long time, and now he acts like he owns them, and the Cardinals benefit from the switch as they have benefited from few things this season.

Shortstop Dark, his flannel knickers hitched old-fashionably high at the knees and using his bat with a dexterity that is among modern marvels, yesterday at Busch Stadium led the Cardinals to a 5-to-2 victory over the Giants. It was the final in a three-game series, and the Cardinals won them all, the easy way. They just followed Dark.

Among people happiest with Dark was Vinegar Bend Mizell. He was the winning pitcher yesterday, and he made a complete game of it. It was a departure from recent routine. The Cardinals hadn't had a complete game pitched for them since June 29, and that one was Mizell's, too, against Cincinnati. There had been 12 successive games with piecemeal pitching and until the Giants came along to delight Dark and the Cardinals, the Redbirds had won only twice in 10 games, since Mizell's last complete effort.

Vinegar now has a 9-7 record. The loss was charged to Al Worthington, who is 4-10 for the season.

Cardinal General Manager Frank Lane got Dark from the Giants June 14, in a deal that sent Red Schoendienst to the Giants. The move at the time was generally as popular as measles in kiddie-land. Yesterday, after Dark's efforts for the series were totaled, Lane piously passed the opportunity to gloat. Enough would be done for him anyway.

Lane chose, instead, to recall his earlier days as a prophet this season: "I'll stick with what I said this spring—we still need pitching," he said.

Both Runs Unearned

Mizell's pitching held the Giants to five hits, and the runs against him were not earned. With men on second and third, and two out, in the Giants fourth, Don Mueller hit a high fly ball into short left. Rip Repulski raced with it and had it but dropped it for a two-run error.

Mizell allowed only two hits thereafter. Both were made in the sixth inning, a single by Schoendienst as first man at bat in the inning, and a double by Daryl Spencer. But trouble was spared the cotton-country boy because another deep-South gentleman, Dark, spent the time between No. 2 man Shoendienst's hit and No. 4 man Spencer's by dashing to retrieve a ball hit by fleet Willie Mays and starting a double play with it. That is a seldom sight to Willie.

That trouble-stopper with his glove was worthy, but Dark's batting performance for the series was spectacular. He is noted for his ability as a hit-and-run operator, a man who can place a ball better with a bat than some can with a throwing arm.

Dark Three-For-Three.

Dark was three-for-three yesterday, and had hits in his last seven official at-bats. He struck out his first time up Friday night, and that was the last peaceful moment his former friends had from him. He had nine hits in 11 at-bats during the series, batted in seven of the 17 runs the Cardinals scored, and scored twice.

Dark has had a running mate, fast Don Blasingame. Leadoff man Blasingame's role has been to get on base, and then start moving. Dark's certain to do something that will make the trip official. Their act began yesterday in the first inning. Blasingame hit to starting pitcher Al Worthington, who may have been aiming at first base but threw the ball into the bullpen instead. Blasingame went to third, and scored on Dark's sacrifice fly.

Ken Boyer's bunt hit, Wally Moon's line single, and Repulski's sacrifice fly scored a Cardinal run in the fourth and it was official enough for a 2-2 tie, even though Blasingame and Dark didn't have a part in scoring it. They returned to the act in the fifth and sixth innings.

Blasingame led off the fifth with a ground single into center and went to third on Dark's single to right. Musial singled home Blasingame for 3-2 lead but Dark was out at third, on a losing gamble against Mueller's arm. The margin was made a secure one after two were out, and Mizell was on third, and Blasingame was on second with a double. Dark, observing no limits on the places or the number of times one man's lightning can strike, lined a single into center that scored Mizell and Blasingame.

Dick Littlefield relieved Worthington and struck out Musial, but it didn't matter. Old home week was over, for Mizell retired nine successive Giants to make the closing three innings most uneventful, and the Giants brought in Marv Grisson to pitch. The combination at least prevented them from having to look at Dark with a bat in his hand again, belaboring them as only an old friend of the family can do it.

Neat! Cool!

MEL PARNELL, southpaw pitcher of the Boston Red Sox, holds the ball with which he made the final out in his no-hit, no-run game against the Chicago White Sox. Parnell took Dropo's smash and beat the White Sox first baseman in a race to first for the final out of the game which the Red Sox won, 4-0. With Parnell is Catcher SAMMY WHITE.

BOSTON, July 14 (AP)—Mel Parnell, one of the greatest southpaws ever to hurl for the Boston Red Sox, gained a niche among baseball's immortals today with a no-hit 4-0 triumph over the Chicago White Sox.

In a game delayed by rain an hour and eight minutes, and for which he warmed up twice, Marvelous Mel faced only 28 batters, one over the regulation distance.

He walked two batters and another reached base on an error.

Four of the White Sox struck out and only five of them hit balls to the outfield, so well did Parnell pitch.

Parnell made no bones about knowing he had a no-hitter as was plainly evident on the last play of the game.

Big Walt Dropo, an erstwhile teammate, was the final batter, pinch hitting for Jim Rivera, a left handed swinger. Walt swung and banged a hard bouncer right at Parnell who grabbed it and beat Dropo in a race for the bag for the final putout.

As he raced for the bag the Red Sox on the bench swarmed onto the field and those on the field ran to surround him and congratulate him.

Among the first to greet him in the clubhouse was Owner Tom Yawkey and Joe Cronin, Sox general manager.

$500 Present.

Big Joe, a Hall of Famer himself, expressed the club's feelings in a most concrete way—a $500 bonus with the explanation that, to meet baseball law, Mel would have to sign a new contract to accept it.

Parnell's no-hitter was the first by a left hander for the Red Sox since Dutch Leonard beat the St. Louis Browns 4-0 Aug. 16, 1916.

It was the first by a Red Sox hurler since Howard Ehmke pitched a 4-0 hitless game against the Athletics in Philadelphia Sept. 7, 1923.

It was the first by a Boston pitcher in Fenway Park since June 23, 1917, when Ernie Shore blanked Washington 4-0, June 23, 1917.

That last game caused much

Expert Observer Asks If Cards Were Overrated.

IT HAS been a long time since there was as much controversial and inquisitive conversation about the Cardinals as can be heard these days. How good is the club? Was it playing over its head during the upward surge to a .684 winning percentage in early May? Was water finding its level when the club slumped to a low of two games under the .500 mark at All-Star time?

Expert observers — managers, coaches, players—were to assemble at Washington for the All-Star game and we asked Bob Broeg of the Post-Dispatch staff to conduct a poll, to see how those experts sized up the situation and the Redbirds.

Many dodged the question with a "that's baseball," or "I got problems of my own." But one manager, extremely articulate and highly respected for his judgments, had some ideas. And when assured that he could remain anonymous, he spoke freely.

"It may be the Cardinals were over-rated," the manager began. "Actually, as I see the club, the roster includes only four players, besides Musial, who can be rated as big leaguers in every sense of the word. Stan, of course has been a big leaguer and he'll continue to be as long as he stays in the game. When he isn't, he'll know it and quit."

Would the manager name the four big leaguers?

"Certainly. They are Alvin Dark, Don Blasingame, Wally Moon and Hal Smith. Blasingame and Smith still have things to learn. But they have the talent and they're always trying. They're big leaguers and they'll be better ones."

Talent Is Necessary, But Not Sufficient.

THIS was interesting, but it also was shocking. How about Ken Boyer? We considered him a standout on the squad. And how about Rip Repulski, whose swishing bat played such a big part in the early season success?

"You asked for it and I'll give you the answer — my answer," the manager replied. "Boyer is a standout. He probably has more ability than anybody else you can name on the club. But talent isn't enough. You have to have a little tiger in you. You have to try every day. You can't be satisfied. You can't let a batting slump interfere with your fielding. If the big leaguer can't beat you with his bat he'll try all the harder to choke you with his glove. Boyer just doesn't have that every-day, fierce, competitive instinct. One day he'll be great. He'll get base hits, like he did in today's game (the All-Star) and he'll field spectacularly. But to be a real big leaguer you gotta fight for those base hits and those good stops every day.

"In contrast, Moon will fight you day in and day out. He was having a rough time trying to play first base, a strange position, but he didn't let that get him down. He kept on fighting and battled for a base hit every time at bat. Yes, he's a big leaguer, despite a less-than-great arm and a weakness against left-handed pitchers.

"Dark's the same stripe. He's a winner. Sure, everybody slows up and loses a step on a hit or in going after a grounder as the years pile up, but Dark never will lose that competitive spirit that makes a big leaguer what he is."

You Can't Play Safety And Be a Major Leaguer.

AND how about Repulski? He seems to be eager to help. And his bat was good this season.

"I'll give you one incident to explain why I don't rate Rip along with the others. Your club was playing another western club and was a run or two behind in a medium late inning, with a man on first, two out and Repulski batting against a lefthanded pitcher. Moon, as you know not at his best against lefties, was to be the next hitter. Repulski's big bat, his ability to hit a long ball, was the Cardinals' big hope. And what did Rip do? He tried to bunt. What if he did catch the third baseman playing deep and beat out a bunt? That still would leave the Cards trailing and put it all up to Moon. That in my book is protecting your batting average, rather than going all out to help your ball club every minute, every time at bat. You can't be a safety-first player and a big leaguer."

How about the pitching? There has been more talk about that being weak than about any other defects.

"Let's put it this way," the manager concluded. "Perhaps the club was over-rated. It did finish seventh last year. The defense has not been major league consistently, especially in the outfield, where you have only one man who can throw as well as roam wide. And when your defense is inadequate, the pitchers, to win, must be backed by a better-than-average attack. You had that while you were climbing. When the attack subsided to what you might expect as normal there was bound to be a downward trend."

Well, if the club was over-rated, it was done officially, by Cardinal officials, past and present. Eddie Stanky, when he got the first real information that he was about to be fired last summer, said "Next year, with young talent coming up, I'd manage this club for nothing."

And when Frank Lane started his trading in May, he explained that he thought the club, with a little help, could win the pennant. So, fans are to be excused if they got the idea that the Cardinals could go far this season.

NASHUA, SWOON'S SON, SWAPS WIN

ArcaroHas Breeze at Monmouth

OCEANPORT, N. J., July 14 (UP)—Nashua breezed to an easy three and a half length victory in the twenty-first running of the $114,400 Monmouth Handicap today with Jockey Eddie Arcaro looking back over his shoulder in the stretch for a threat which never came.

The Castle Rock Farm's Mr. First gamely tried to overhaul Nashua in the stretch, but he was no match for Nashua. In winning his ninth race carrying at least $100,000 in added money, Nashua now has earned $291,550 for his new owners, the Leslie B. Combs syndicate, who paid $1,251,200 for him last December.

While Mr. First was unable to menace Nashua, the gelding had little trouble taking the place by five lengths over Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Markus's Mielleux.

The field was spread out almost half the length of the stretch as Nashua won his second race under 129 pounds. Twice, however, he has failed to win under 130 pounds.

Seven Chances was fourth, a length behind Mielleux. Then came Impasse, Manotick, the lone filly in the race, Flying Chief and Cedar Hill, which was 31 lengths behind the winning Nashua. Cavort was scratched.

A crowd of 38,893, largest crowd at Monmouth Park this season, bet on Nashua almost exclusively and the strapping son of Nasrullah returned only $2.60, $2.60 and $2.20 across the board as he scored his twenty-first victory in 28 races since first going to the post in the Belair Stud silks in 1954. Mr. First paid $8.00 and $4.20, while Mielleux returned $3.20.

"This was one of the easiest races Nashua has ever won," Arcaro, who refuses to stamp Nashua great, said after the

Erb Pilots Victor to $102,000

CHICAGO, July 14 (AP)—Swoon's Son fortified his bid for 3-year-old racing honors today with a sizzling stretch drive for a length-and-a-half triumph in the $158,825 Arlington Classic.

The E. Gay Drake's sensational bay colt remained unbeaten for the season in registering his fifth straight victory under the expert handling of Jockey Dave Erb.

Second place went to a 50-1 shot, Ben A. Jones, with Job Dean Jessop aboard. A neck behind in third place was the only filly in the field of eight Clairborne Farm's Doubledogdare who set the early pace and led by as much as 4½ lengths at the five eights pole in the mile classic.

A neck behind her in the bunched rush to the wire was the second choice of the Arlington Park crowd of 29,374 was Calumet Farm's Fabius ridden by the nation's leading jockey, William Hartack.

Swoon's Son covered the distance on a fast track in 1:36 4-5, the slowest time for the classic in the last three years. The son of the Doge-Swoon posted his fourth straight stakes victory and maintained a fantastic record of never losing a race at Arlington and Washington Park in nine starts in the last two years.

He paid $3.60, $3.20 and $2.60. Henry D. Maggio's and J. J. Gregory's Ben A. Jones returned $19.60 and $7.60 while Doubledogdare, piloted by Steve Brooks, paid $3.80.

Swoon's Son, 4-5 favorite, won $102,000 to hike his two-year earnings to $403,330. Last year he took seven of 13 starts including the Arlington and Washington Parks futurities for juvenile winnings of $263,705.

Ben A. Jones got $30,000 for place and Doubledogdare picked up $15,000 and Fabius $10,000.

The other 3-year-olds finished the Classic in this order: The Warrior, Head Man, Royal Sting and Flight History.

Jockey Erb declared that Swoon's Son "is the best 3-year-old I've ridden this year."

Bartzen Upset, Moylan to Play Seixas in Final

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 14 (UP)—Third-seeded Eddie Moylan of Trenton, N.J., upset second-seeded and defending champion Bernard Bartzen of San Angelo, Tex., today in four sets of the semifinals of the Western tennis championship of the Woodstock Courts here.

First-seeded Vic Seixas of Philadelphia rallied to beat NCAA champ Alex Olmedo of Southern California in five hard-fought sets, 10-12, 1-6, 6-1, 9-7, 6-1.

Moylan ousted Bartzen more easily, 3-6, 6-4, 6-1, 6-0. Moylan had defeated Bartzen just before the Western in the Tri-State finals.

Thus Moylan plays Seixas in the final tomorrow.

In the women's group, Mary Ann Mitchell of San Leandro, Calif., ousted Yola Ramierez of Mexico City with surprising ease, 6-2, 6-4. Miss Ramierez had eliminated first-seeded Janet Hopps of Seattle in the quarterfinals.

Third-seeded Barbara Green of Los Angeles gained the final against Miss Mitchell by ousting second-seeded Karol Fageros of Miami, 6-4, 3-6, 6-4.

Three Ozark Swimmers Gain Way to Detroit

Two women and one man qualified for the national swim championships in Detroit, Aug. 7-10, as a result of trials held by the Ozark A.A.U. at the Webster Groves pool.

The girl swimmers are Lita Cole of St. Louis Country Club, the 100-yard backstroke artist, who won her specialty in 1:10.6 and Alice Ogle of Shaw Park, winner of the 250-yard breast stroke in 3:50.7. Jack Shasserre of Downtown Y.M.C.A., qualifield in the men's 100-yard butterfly event.

Shasserre, with 21 points, helped his team score the most points, 96. Dennis Breen, also of Downtown Y.M.C.A., and Rex Aubrey of the New Haven Swim Club tied for second.

Miss Ogle was one of three Shaw Park contestants who gathered 212 points for top honors in the women's competition. She had 21 points, Joy Fehlig 19 and Pat Hatch 17.

Altogether seven Ozark records were broken. The best mark of the meet, however, was turned in by Miss Cole in the preliminaries. She swam 100 yards in 1:09.7, an unofficial American backstroke record.

Umps 'Jammed Up' on Ball Hit by Boyer

Referring to the great umpiring debate of Friday night, wherein many decisions were called on one play and at one time or another all were used, senior Umpire Lee Ballanfant said the umpires "just got jammed up." It was the closest thing to an official comment at Busch Stadium yesterday.

Ballanfant mildly called attention to the fact that umpires aren't to discuss "any decision that is the subject of controversy, which caused the ejection of any manager, player or coach, until after the report of such incident is received by the league office." To quote the league instructions to umpires.

Giants Manager Bill Rigney said he tried to contact National League President Warren Giles at his Cincinnati office yesterday morning and failed. Rigney filed a protest over his club's 7-5 loss to the Cardinals Friday night. The Giants manager said he would see Giles today or tomorrow, when the New York club plays at Cincinnati.

The dispute arose when with men on first and second and one out in the fifth inning, Ken Boyer hit a ball to left. Third base Umpire Art Gore signed it was a trapped ball, second base Umpire Shag Crawford signaled it was caught.

The Cardinal runners had held their bases, and two of them were holding first base. The Giants went through the mechanics of a double play in the confusion and left the field. The umpires met to see if they couldn't salvage some justice out of the thing, and wound up affronting both clubs. First, the Cardinals were given the hit, and allowed to have the bases filled. Rigney filed notice of protest. Then the Cardinals were told it was two out, and men on first and second. They protested, and Grady Hatton was ejected for inquiring from the bench, "How come?"

The Cardinal protest, of course, was forgotten, due to the victory. As a reasonable footnote, though, General Manager Frank Lane of the Cardinals said, "I can see where both managers had a right to protest."

Lindy McDaniel, Cardinal bonus pitcher who has earned a 4-2 record, and has been outstanding in relief work, will start the second game of today's doubleheader against the Phils. The Cardinal starter for the first game will be either Murry Dickson (6 and 7), knocked out in the first inning against the Giants Friday night, or Willard Schmidt (4 and 4). The Phil's starters are to be men Frank Lane traded, in one league or another, Saul (4-4) Rogovin, one-time White Sox pitcher, and former Cardinal Stu (4-6) Miller.

Boys between the ages of 17 and 23 have been invited to attend the Cardinals' annual tryout camp at Busch Stadium, July 23 through July 27. Workouts will start at 10 a.m. each day. The boys should bring their own shoes and gloves and wear a uniform—J. R.

Braves Top Brooklyn Again in 10th, 3 to 2, and Increase Lead

Roberts Shuts Out Reds, 2-0

The Milwaukee Braves increased their National League lead yesterday, after sweeping a series from the defending champion Brooklyn Dodgers, and the New York Yankees added to their sizeable advantage in the American League by beating the Cleveland Indians a third straight time.

Milwaukee moved two full games ahead of Cincinnati by going 10 innings to defeat the Dodgers, 3 to 2, while the Redlegs ran into a shutout performance at the hands of the Phillies' Robin Roberts, 2 to 0.

In the American League twin first division attractions, the Yankees prevailed in the tenth over the Indians, 5 to 4, increasing their lead to nine and one-half games. And (as related in detail on Page 1-F) Boston's Mel Parnell hurled a no-hitter in a 4-0 victory over the second-place Chicago White Sox.

Bucs Skid Twice.

In other big league action, the Chicago Cubs took a doubleheader from the Pittsburgh Pirates, 6 to 2 and 6 to 5, Detroit downed Washington, 6 to 5, and the Baltimore Orioles nosed out Kansas City, 1 to 0, as Hoot Evers, veteran outfielder from Collinsville, Ill., singled in the first inning, stole second and rode home on George Kell's safety to reward Mike Fornieles with a victory for a three-hit performance.

Milwaukee's victory, its fourth straight in a sweep over Brooklyn, resulted from a tenth inning double by Johnny Logan off reliefer Don Bessent and Henry Aaron's fouurth single of the contest. The Braves won, however, because of the continued heavy hitting of Joe Adcock against the Brooks.

Adcock's homer, his 16th of the season, eighth off the Dodgers and sixth in the last five games, tied the contest in the seventh off starter Sal (The Barber) Maglie after a single by Bill Bruton. The Brooks' runs had come on Duke Snider's 20th homer and Carl Furillo's ninth, both off Gene Conley, Milwaukee starter.

Bob Feller Tagged.

The Yankees' eighth straight triumph and third in succession over Cleveland resulted from a single in the 10th by Billy Martin with the bases loaded. The winning blow came on the first pitch thrown by veteran Bob Feller, who replaced southpaw Don Mossi.

Elston Howard led off the New York 10th with a single and after Yogi Berra walked, Bill Skowron sacrificed. Joe Collins was safe on a fielder's choice, filling the bases, before Martin greeted Feller with his game-winning hit.

Mickey Mantle hit his 30th homer in the fourth inning, tagging young Herb Score. The winner, after replacing Don Larsen, was southpaw, Tommy Byrne, who held the Indians to three hits the final six-plus innings. Sam Mele's homer in the ninth tied the score and sent the game into overtime.

At Cincinnati, Roberts used only 81 pitches while waltzing through the Redlegs in just one hour and 38 minutes, giving the Phillies a three-game sweep over the former National League leaders. The game was the fastest of the season in the National League.

Closing in on .500.

Roberts went "3 and 2" on only one hitter, permitted four hits and just one player (Gus Bell on a first-inning double) to pass first base. Robin now has a 9-10 record.

Philadelphia's two runs came off Johnny Klippstein in the fourth, a result of a walk, Stan Lopata's single, a force out and a single by Willie Jones.

At Chicago, where Ernie Banks set a major league record for uninterrupted service by a newcomer, playing his 396th straight game since he entered the big league, Bob Rush kept alive a personal Wrigley Field winning streak. The big Chicago righthander, backed by an 11-hit attack, minimized 10 enemy hits in the opener to score his eighth straight at home since last September.

In the nightcap Jim King, Chicago outfielder who had homered in the opener, drove in the tying and winning runs in the first overtime inning after lefty Jim Davis had blown a 4-0 lead in the ninth. With two runs in, Bob Skinner's pinch homer with one on tied the score.

Bill Virdon Delivers.

The Pirates went ahead in the 10th, scoring a run on singles by Bill Virdon, Frank Thomas and Dale Long, but Dee Fondy's homer in the home half off Elroy Face tied the score and Banks, Moose Moryn and King then delivered consecutive one-out singles to end the game.

At Washington, ninth-inning home-team homers by Eddie Yost and Jim Lamon threw a scare into Detroit, but Bucky Harris' Tigers staggered through as Walt Masterson came out of the bullpen to retire the side.

Bill Tuttle, Al Kaline and Bob Kennedy slammed homers for Detroit while Dorrel Herzog also homered for the Senators.

South African Wins Birmingham Tennis

BIRMINGHAM, Eng., July 14 (UP)—Trevor Fancutt of South Africa scored a 7-5, 6-3, 6-4 triumph over British Davis Cup player Mike Davies today to win the Midland Counties lawn tennis championship.

Fancutt, celebrating his 22nd birthday, had too much power for Davies, who upset Wimbledon Singles Champion Lew Hoad of Australia in Friday's semifinals. Fancutt also reached the final round via an upset when he downed former titleholder Jaroslav Drobny of Egypt in his semifinal match.

Parnell's No-Hit Game Blanks White Sox, 4-0

debate. Shore replaced Babe Ruth who had walked the first batter and was thrown out of the game by Umpire Brick Owens.

Shore picked off the runner and then proceeded to pitch a hitless game.

Parnell's no-hitter is the first in the American League since May 6, 1953, when Bobo Holloman of the Browns set down the Philadelphia Athletics in a night game—his first major league start.

Through the first eight innings Parnell, aided by two double plays, faced only 24 batters.

Sam Esposito was safe on an error by Don Buddin to start the second inning.

Jim Piersall then made the defensive play of the game. He raced far to his left and one-handed a sinking liner by Lu Aparicio. Esposito went out stealing, second out of a double play, as starting pitcher, Jim McDonald, struck out.

Aparicio made another bid for a hit in the ninth which Esposito began by drawing a walk.

Aparicio belted a bouncer toward center. Billy Goodman dived to his right, smothered it, and flipped to Buddin just in time to force Esposito.

Bubba Phillips, batting for reliever Ralph LaPalme, then forced Aparicio and Dropo, as noted, ended the game by grounding to Parnell.

The victory was the 119th for Parnell who has lost 71 in his major league career. It was his first over Chicago since May 5, 1953. Since then the midwesterners have beaten him eight times.

The game was a double no-hit affair through the first three innings as McDonald, making his first start since being brought back from Vancouver matched Parnell out for out.

But Billy Klaus started the home fourth by doubling off the wall in left center, moved to third as Ted Williams lined a single through the shift—which started against him 10 years ago today—and scored on Mickey Vernon's line single to right.

Williams went to third on that hit and scored as Jackie Jensen hit into a double play.

Other Red Sox Runs.

Goodman's double to the left field corner and a center field single by Klaus gave the Boston Sox their third run in the sixth.

They added their other tally in the seventh, off Ralph Lapalme on a Piersall two-bagger to left, an infield out and Buddin's line single to left.

The 14,542 fans were well aware of the Boston hurler's efforts, cheering each putout louder as the game lasted. When Mel made the final putout they sent up a tremendous roar.

The victory also was the sixth in a row for the Boston Sox, their longest streak of the season.

U. City Cyclist Second in U.S. Junior Event

ORLANDO, Fla., July 14 (UP) — Defending Champion Jack Disney of Altadena, Calif., and James Rossi of Chicago fought to a tie today in opening races of the two-day nation cycle championships.

Each collected a total of 12 points as Disney won the five-mile race with Rossi second. Rossi took the two-mile event with Disney second.

The pair will battle it out for the 1956 championship Sunday in the one-mile race and the 10-mile point race in which each rider has a chance to collect points with sprint competition every two miles.

David Staub of San Francisco took a commanding 14-point lead in competition among the juniors by winning both the half-mile and five-mile events. A three-way tie for second, with five points each, developed among Ed Reusing of University City, Mo., and William Boyd, of Chicago and Glenn Lee of Kenosha, Wis.

Nancy Neiman, the 1953 and 1954 champion, beat defending titleholder, Jeanne Robinson, in the half-mile run for the women.

ODESSA, Tex., July 14 (UP)—Such "name" pros as E. J. (Dutch) Harrison, Billy Maxwell, Bo Wininger, Don January and Ernie Vossler, along with defending Champion Chuck Klein of San Antonio, will be in the field for the $7,500 Odessa pro-amateur tournament next week.

The field was expected to number more than 80 teams by tee-off time Thursday, when they open firing in the 72-hole affair which carries a $1,500 top prize.

Harrison will team with amateur Jim Tom Blair of Jefferson City, Mo.

British Schoolboy Runs 100 Yards in 9.9

LONDON, July 14 (UP) — John Young, an 18-year-old schoolboy, ran his way on to Britain's Olympic games hopeful list today by winning the 100-yard national championship in 9.9 seconds on a rain-soaked track.

Young, a muscled 174 pounder with the build of a weightlifter rather than that of a sprinter, beat Nigeria's T. Erinle and defending British Champion Eric Sandstrom. He was first out of the blocks and led all the way to the tape, although Erinle was also given a 9.9 seconds finishing time.

In October, Young goes to Oxford university and today he told Amateur Athletic Association official Jack Crump, "If you want to consider me for Melbourne, I'll give up playing rugby."

That's a big decision for John Young to make. Already he has been tapped six times for England's schoolboy rugger team and was hoping for more honors when the new season starts.

Mallorys Win Two.

Swaps Sets Track Record.

INGLEWOOD, Calif., July 14 (AP)—Swaps continued his record wrecking running today but had to be content with a new track standard as he ran off from the field in the $162,100 Gold Cup Handicap.

Racing over the classic mile and one quarter route for the first time since his match race with Nashua last summer, the big California 4-year-old with never a touch of the whip from Jockey Willie Shoemaker ran a distance clocked at 1.58 3-5.

He led Llangollen Farm's Mister Gus and Porterhouse across the finish line and did it with consummnate ease for a new Gold Cup record. But he was shy of the world record of 1.58 1-5 set by the late Charles H. Howard's great Irish horse, Noor, at Golden Gate field in 1950.

The track and Gold Cup record was 1.59 3-5, set last year by the King Ranch's now retired Rejected.

A roaring turnout of around 55,000 spectators gave California's candidate for horse of the year honors a tremendous ovation as he stepped into the winner's circle.

Pays $2.30 for $2.

The victory meant $100,000 net to Swaps's owner, Rex C. Ellsworth, the ex-Arizona cowman, and sent Swaps from eighth to sixth place in the turf's all-time money winners with a total of $698,750.

For the betting public, however, which poured in $181,028 on Swaps's nose, the pickings were slim. He returned only $2.30 for a $2 win ticket. Betting again was limited to winning tickets.

Chataway, Out A Year, Loses 3-Mile Race

LONDON, July 14 (AP) — Chris Chataway, British hope in the distance races at the Melbourne Olympics, lost his first race after a year's retirement today although he was given the same time as the winner.

He was defeated by a fraction of an inch in the three-mile run at the annual British track championships by Derek Ibbotson. Both were timed in 13 minutes, 32.6 seconds. Some 30,000 spectators watched the thrilling race in White City Stadium.

Chataway said he was satisfied with his condition this far in advance of the opening of the Games on Nov. 22.

Ken Wood, 23-year-old paint salesman, won the mile run in 4:06.8 after the talent-laden field loafed past the three-quarter mark in 3:12.

Ion Soeter of Romania, won the high jump with a leap of 6 feet, 4 inches. Brendan O'Reilly, University of Michigan athlete representing his native Ireland, was third with 6-2.

Ilie Savel, another Romanian, took the 440-yard hurdles in :52.2.

'Green' Dutch Team Winner

ROME, July 14 (AP)—Holland defeated defending champion Spain, 6-4, today in the European baseball championships, virtually assuring the little Dutch team the title and a trip to the Milwaukee (Wis.) amateur baseball world series.

The Dutch team, almost unknown in European baseball circles, already had beaten Italy and Belgium to remain the only undefeated team in the race.

Holland plays a weak German team tomorrow in its final game.

The Spanish defending champions already have been beaten by Belgium, and have defeated Germany.

Ohio State Winner.

MANSFIELD, Ohio, July 14 (AP)—Bob McCall, 27-year-old Cleveland sporting goods dealer, sank a five-foot birdie putt on the 37th hole today to defeat Bob Shave Jr. of Cleveland in the golden anniversary Ohio Amateur golf championship.

Johnson of UCLA Takes Decathlon Trials Despite Injury

BETWEEN ROUNDS

By W. J. McGoogan

Heavyweight Division Shows Signs of Life.

JUST when everybody had about given up on the heavyweight division of boxing, convinced that it was mired down in a sea of mediocrity, three young men have punched their way into the picture to put new life into a sleeping giant.

Pat McMurtry, 24 years old, of Tacoma, Wash., defeated Ezzard Charles decisively to join Eddie Machen, 23 years old of San Francisco and Floyd Patterson of Brooklyn, 21 years old, in the chase for the championship vacated by the retirement of Rocky Marciano.

McMurtry, in his first scheduled 10-round fight, outpointed the slipping former champion. It was the first victory for Pat over an opponent that anyone had ever heard of. Previously, Bob Albright held McMurtry to a draw, otherwise Pat had won 20 victories, 17 of them by knockouts but none of his opponents was a boxer of any note.

True, in beating Charles McMurtry didn't add much later to his reputation because Ezzard, far from the Charles of old, would do well to heed the advice which has been so freely given him from many quarters to hang up his gloves and forget it.

But McMurtry showed that he could, at least, go 10 rounds to a triumph over an experienced opponent and thus will be accorded more recognition in the future, if he takes on better men than he has met in the past.

Patterson, of course, is at the top just behind Archie Moore, due to his victory over Tommy Jackson, but Machen, it would seem from this corner, made the greatest impression of all when he knocked out the Cuban giant, Nino Valdes, in Miami.

Machen had outpointed Valdes previously and is unbeaten in 15 professional bouts. He won 12 by knockouts and three by decision and you can't beat a perfect record.

Fifteen contests are very few upon which to build into championship material, but Machen seems to qualify by other standards. He appears to be a good boxer, he can hit and his size is far more impressive than either Patterson or McMurtry. Eddie weighed 192 pounds for Valdes while McMurtry was at 183 for Charles and Patterson weighed only 178 for Jackson.

So it would appear that, physically, Machen is more nearly the natural heavyweight.

He is fast with his hands, too, like Patterson, but packs a more solid punch than Floyd or McMurtry.

Machen Should Move Up.

MACHEN was rated tenth before the knockout of Valdes but probably will advance in rating.

McMurtry had not been in the top 10 and whether his victory over Charles will be considered enough to boost him into the top rankings is a question.

Patterson is rated No. 2 and Moore No. 1 among the contenders while the man Archie meets July 25 in Toronto, James J. Parker, is not among the top 10.

The promoters are trying hard to boost the Moore-Parker fight into a match for the heavyweight championship but are not having much luck because none of the official boxing organizations will recognize it as being for the title. The National Boxing Association, the New York State Athletic Commission and the Canadian Boxing Federation have all refused to sanction the match as for the title.

It is still believed that if Moore defeats Parker, as expected, a match between Archie and Patterson, maybe in September, will be generally recognized as for the vacant throne.

And perhaps Patterson had some inside information on Machen which accounts for his speed in wanting to meet Moore.

Why the Rush, Now?

WHEN Floyd broke a bone in his hand in defeating Jackson, there seemed no reason why he couldn't wait until next June to oppose Moore. But he, and his manager, Cus D'Amato, who previously had been an example of caution, insisted that if the bone healed he would want a fight with Moore in September.

Well, they took the cast off Patterson's hand the other day and his physician announced that the break had healed perfectly and that he would be able to box in September.

So Floyd stated he would go into light training immediately and be ready to start boxing at an early date.

Machen, after he flattened Valdes, started a campaign for a match with Patterson before Floyd meets Moore. And that would seem to be a natural elimination bout—Patterson vs. Machen — the winner to get a crack at Moore for the title.

But Patterson has been at his campaign longer and probably deserves the first chance. Should he beat Moore he will have a fine opponent ready for the first defense of the championship and that is Machen with McMurtry climbing up, if he continues his present pace.

Johnny Holman was turned down by the Illinois Athletic Commission as a foe for Willie Pastrano in Chicago next Wednesday night because of a cyst over his eye. No new bout has been announced.

Falls 231 Points Off Own Mark

CRAWFORDSVILLE, Ind., July 14 (UP)—Twenty-year-old Rafer Johnson of U.C.L.A. won the thirty-eighth National AAU and Olympic decathlon trials tonight despite a bad leg but missed his own world record by 231 points.

The 6-foot-3-inch Negro athlete from Kingsburg, Calif., totaled 7754 points in the 10 events, beating Champion Milt Campbell of Indiana and the Navy, by 199. Campbell finished with 7555 points.

Johnson's performance was the fourth best in world decathlon history, and Campbell's the sixth best.

Johnson was given a good chance to crack his own record of 7985 points. He was 98 markers ahead of his 1955 pace after Friday's night competition. He skimmed over the 110-meter high hurdles, the opening event today, in :14.4 seconds, and although it was only the third best time he collected 383 points, 30 more than last year.

Limps in Action.

But already in the next event, the discus, a knee injury he suffered in yesterday's high jump began to take its toll. Elvin Drake, his coach, said the knee was sore from jumping, and the star athlete began to limp.

All his subsequent events fell short of last year's pace, presumably because of the injury.

Campbell and Bob Lawson, of Southern California, joined Johnson as members of the United States Olympic decathlon team.

Lawson, runnerup last year, actually finished fourth with 6885 points, but could move into the olympic picture should third-place Bob Richards, defending meet champion of Los Angeles, withdraw from the grueling competition at Melbourne, as he has indicated.

Richards, who grabbed 1122 points in winning the pole vault at a height of 15 feet, one-eighth inch, compiled 7054 points. Officials said it was the first time in world decathlon history that three men exceeded 7000 points each.

Richards on Team.

Richards, who topped 15 feet for the ninety-eighth time in his career, already is a member of Uncle Sam's Olympic team in his specialty. And Johnson likewise already was assured of a trip to Australia, finishing third in the broad jump finals last month.

Campbell, runnerup to Bob Mathias in the 1952 Olympics and United States decathlon champion the following year, copped the 110-meter high hurdles in :14.1 seconds, tying the world record for this event in a decathlon by Bill Albins, of North Carolina, in 1950.

Johnson won the discus with a toss of 149 feet, 5 inches. It was the third event he has won outright. Yesterday he also tied for first in the 400-meter dash.

San Adams, Santa Barbara (Calif.), Athletic Club, took the javelin throw with a toss of 219 feet, 4 inches.

Vejar Married, Then Leaves for Fuentes Bout

STAMFORD, Conn., July 14 (AP)—Chico Vejar, middleweight boxer, took time out today from his training—and just barely enough—to get married.

His bride was 21-year-old Caryl Cognetta, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. James J. Cognetta.

Vejar, 24, was to leave alone immediately after the reception for Los Angeles, where he fights Ramon Fuentes, July 24.

His wife, accompanied by a girl friend, will motor to Los Angeles and plans to join him there the day of the fight. Vejar said his wedding date was fixed before he knew he was to fight Fuentes.

Hockey Player Injured.

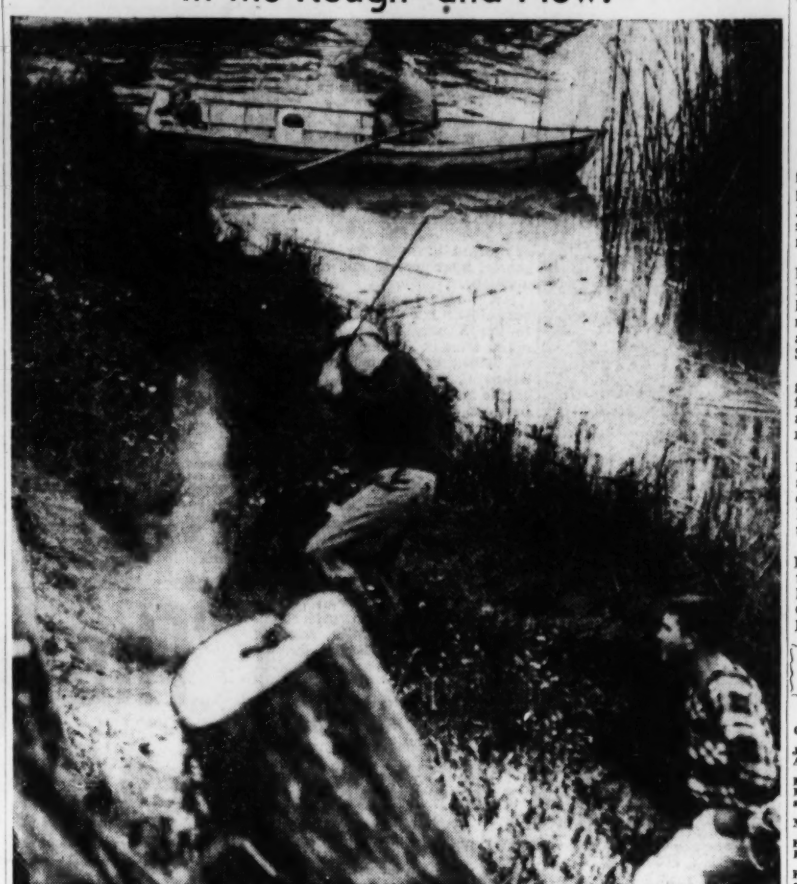

CONSTANCE BAY, Ontario, July 14 (AP)—Bill Dineen, 24-year-old leftwing of the Detroit Red Wings, was slightly injured in an auto accident early today. He suffered minor cuts and bruises. A companion, Gloria Thompson, 20, required treatment of an injured left elbow and knee.

Manager of Fighter Suspended 'For Life' For Assaulting Writer

TACOMA, Wash., July 14 (AP)—Charles (Chuck) Woods, uncle and handler of Bobby Woods, Spokane lightweight, drew a life suspension from boxing in this state at a meeting of the Washington State Athletic Commission.

"The commissioners studied the case carefully and concluded that Chuck Woods made an entirely unprovoked attack upon Bob Johnson, sports writer for the Spokane Chronicle, some time ago," Howard R. Smith of Tacoma, chairman of the board, declared. "We feel that his conduct has been unbecoming and a detriment to boxing. A copy of our action has been forwarded to the National Boxing Association," Smith said.

Bobby Woods, sidelined by approaching blindness, is reported washed up as a boxer at 21. He started professional fighting under his uncle's management at 16.

Jockey Saves Another From Fairmount Spill

By Herman Wecke

A timely and helping hand from Jockey John Delahoussaye prevented possible serious injury to another rider in the second race last night at Fairmount Park.

Elmer G. Smith was aboard Little Hostess in that race and lost his stirrups at the start. Delahoussaye, riding the horse next to Smith, saw the mishap and reached over and lifted Smith back in the saddle.

With that help Smith regained his stirrups and finished fifth in the race, three places ahead of Delahoussaye who was riding Leon Moore.

The winner of the second race was Miss Burke, which scored the first victory of the evening for Clarence Meaux. Meaux came back in the sixth to win with Western Knight.

The victory for Western Knight was its fourth straight triumph. The F. O. Akin-owned horse had just arrived from Omaha where it had won its last three starts.

United States Auto Club Title Won After Foe's Miscalculation

ATLANTA, July 14 (AP)—Eddie Sachs of Greensboro, N.C., won the 100-mile United States Auto Club race at Lakewood Park today, thanks to a costly miscalculation by Al Keller of West Palm Beach, Fla.

Going into the 99th lap on Lakewood's one-mile dirt oval, big Bob Veith of Oakland, Calif., was leading by 500 yards. But he slammed into the first turn wall, flipped and landed upright, his Bob Estes special a wreck.

Keller, in second place and thinking he had lapped Sachs, waved the 29-year-old, balding North Carolinian past him. Sachs jockeyed his Glessner Special across the finish line as the red warning flag went out for Veith's crash.

Sachs picked up $2800 for the victory. Keller, in the Sam Traylor Special, got $2000.

Leading Teams in Four Muny Leagues to Meet Each Other Today

Carondelets And Villas At Meine's

By Neal Russo

The Nos. 1 and 2 teams meet in four of the five Muny senior baseball leagues today, which is the deadline for signing new players.

The spotlight is on the Heine Meine League with Carondelet Sunday Morning Club No. 2 (8-3) facing Red Villas (7-3) in the 3:30 contest at Heine Meine Field. Manager Johnny Tobin's Villas have downed Manager Charley Helsinger's Carondelet team twice in three previous meetings. Carondelet's Dave Lauck probably will be opposed by former Brownie Eddie Albrecht.

In the North and South Side Leagues, the leaders will be trying to stretch two-game margins at the two-thirds mark of the season. At Fairground Park No. 1, old rivals Borbein-Young (7-1) and Kutis North (5-3) will meet at 12:45.

Kutis Coach Resigns.

Borbein, which has taken two out of two from Kutis this season, could all but nail down the North Side pennant by beating Kutis today and again Wednesday night under the Fairground lights in a make-up game. Joe Brady, Kutis coach who was ousted by Umpire Charley Ullenberg in the recent forfeited contest awarded to Borbein over Kutis, has resigned.

Manager Eddie Moran's amazing Union Printers, who knocked off Kutis two weeks ago, then handed Borbein its first loss last Sunday and followed up with a 16-6 rout of Polish Falcons Friday night, goes against the Falcons today at 3:30.

Carondelet Sunday Morning Club No. 1, defending Muny champion, tries to improve on its 7-1 mark against Kutis South (5-3), the only team to beat Carondelet, in the 12:45 South Side League contest at Carondelet Park. The league leaders got a big lift last week in a 12-0 rout of usually tough Kimacks. Arv Liberton tossed the brilliant two-hitter.

Art Rogers Circuit.

In the Art Rogers circuit at Titanium Field, Broadway at Horn, Bill Kindle (7-1) will be on the mound for the Jokers A. C. against Broadway Merchants (6-2) at 3:30. Don Breihan will hurl for the Merchants.

Wilson Aces, who pulled 2½ games in front in the Berkeley league by beating Overland, 7-1 and 9-8 in two evening games last week, face Carter at 12:30 at Jackson Park. Schmersahls kept their hopes alive by downing Carter, 3-2, behind Jim Krebs' three-hitter, in a make-up game.

Wilsons are 8-2, Schmersahls 8-4, Carter 4-5.

Muny Seniors.

North Side League—Borbein-Young vs. Kutis North, 12:45; Polish Falcons vs. Union Printers, 3:30.

South Side League—Carondelet Sunday Morning Club No. 1 vs. Kutis South, 12:45; Gravois vs. Kimacks, 3:30.

Heine Meine League—Meine Field—Hoffmeisters vs. Simpkins, 12:45; Carondelet No. 2 vs. Red Villas, 3:30.

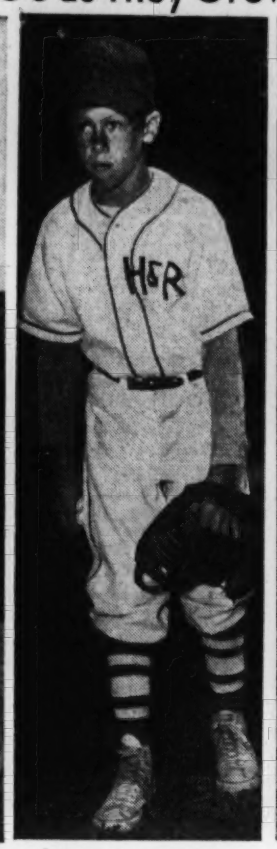

Berkeley League—Jackson Park-Wilson Aces vs. Carter, 12:30; Schmersahls vs. Overland, 3:30.

Art Rogers League — Titanium Field, Broadway at Horn, Fischers vs. Titanium, 12:30; Jokers vs. Broadway Merchants, 3:30.

They Go, Go, Go as They Grow, Grow, Grow

JERRY MUELLER

KENNY RUTLEDGE

KENNY HOLTZMAN

—By a Post-Dispatch Photographer.

The St. Louis area's pitching delegation in the majors, including Frank Baumann, Bob Wiesler and Bob Turley, has had rough going, but things may be much better about 10 years from now.

The reason? Pocket editions of Spahn, Roberts and Friend are doing all right on the district sandlots.

Here are a few samples:

KEN RUTLEDGE, righthander, 11 year old, H. & R. team in Khoury bantam division, no-hit, no-run games in his last THREE games. In the first game in that string he fanned 16, walked one; in the second, it was 17 strikeouts, two walks; in the third, 18 whiffs, two walks.

KENNY HOLTZMAN, lefthander, 10 years old, Lapps in Khoury bantam division, eight no-hitters this season.

JERRY MUELLER, righthander, 12 years old, Immaculate Heart of Mary Crusader division, C.Y.C., two no-hitters sandwiched around one-hitter in last three starts.

Rutledge's father, Kenneth Sr., was a righthander out of McKinley and Roosevelt who toiled in the Dodger and Cardinal chains six years, going as far as Columbus, O., under Burt Shotton.

"I was a thrower," said the elder Rutledge. "I'm trying to teach Kenny that you have to think out there on the mound."

Mueller also has a qualified adviser in his father, none other than Emmett Mueller, the scrappy former infielder of the Philadelphia Phillies who was playing pro ball at 16 and hit a home run on his first time up in the majors. Young Mueller already is as tall as Pop, five feet six inches.

Although he gained his fame as an infielder, little Emmett Mueller can tell tall stories about his hurling prowess. But he did actually average 17 strikeouts a game and hurled four no-hitters in grade school, besides going 4-and-0 while managing Muskogee.

In the string of two no-hitters and one one-hitter, Jerry Mueller walked a total of one batter and fanned 40.

Hank Holtzman, Kenny's father, has been an outstanding set-shot in basketball at Soldan and in Muny and A.A.U. competition.

In three seasons with the Lapps, Lefty Holtzman has an 88-2 record, including 24 no-hitters. He pitched all of his team's games except the last one.

Besides the three no-hitters, young Rutledge has pitched a one-hitter and a two-hitter. His catcher, who made the Khoury All-Star team with him three straight years, is Jim Hoehle. Also unbeaten on the H & R mound staff is Vic Clever.—N.R.

Ballwin Seeks Ninth in Row

Riding an eight-game winning streak that has the team off and running in the second half after taking the first-half pennant, Ballwin is at home to longtime rival Creve Coeur today in the American Division of the County Baseball League.

In two starts in the second half, Ballwin has beaten Olivette, 8-3, and Twin City, 3-0. Manager George Arft's team has been unbeaten since breaking even in its first four games.

Glencoe, first-half champion in the National Division and a 6-1 victim of Twin City in its first game of the second half, visits Chesterfield today. Florissant, defending over-all County champion, opens its second-half campaign at Bridgeton.

Johnny Mize, one-time Cardinal first baseman, was the No. 1 circuit clouter on the 1947 New York team. He hit 51, beating out Willard Marshall, who had 36. Third, with 35, was Walker Cooper, former St. Louis catcher, while Brother Mort contributed one to the Giants' total. Mort Cooper also pitched for the Cards.

Khoury All-Star Games Set for Busch, Ballwin

The annual Khoury All-Star baseball games this year will be divided between Busch Stadium (day) and Ballwin Park (night). The dates are July 28-29, Aug. 4-5 at Busch Stadium for the atoms, bantams, midgets and juveniles, and Aug. 6-7-8 at Ballwin, in that order, for the junior, intermediate and senior divisions.

All votes for infielders and outfielders must be submitted to the Khoury office by midnight tonight. Batterymen will be picked by members of the All-Star committee and major league scouts. Final tryouts will be next Saturday at 1 p.m. at Forest Park No. 1 for the atom, bantam, midget and juvenile divisions.

The Teamsters Local 682 were the first to clinch a Khoury senior title, clinching the Sam Breadon Memorial League crown with a victory over Forrest Friday night at Carondelet Park.

The all-brother Orlando team leads the U.City race with 7-1. The Clowns (7-1), who suffered their first loss last week, bowing to the Ballwin Eagles, are far in front in the St. Louis circuit.

Second Ward Democrats (7-1) have a one-game lead over the Vets A.C. in the Missouri League. They meet today at 1 at Fairground No. 6.

Two Youthful Stars Meet Today For Municipal Tennis Crown

Holtmann, Buchholz In Final

Youth will be served with Alphonse Holtmann, age 19, playing Earl (Butch) Buchholz, age 15, in the men's singles championship of the forty-third annual Municipal tennis tournament at 1 p.m. today on Forest Park's Jefferson Memorial courts.

They are probably the youngest players ever to compete in the Muny senior singles final. Ted Drewes, the player who won the championship 15 times, was 19 years of age when winning his first title in 1916.

Holtmann, winner of the 1954 Muny event at the age of 17, came through with a 3-6, 6-4, 6-0, 6-3 victory over Neil Drury, Country Day's No. 1 player last school season, and Buchholz did a fine job to best Ralph Hart, the defending champion, 6-2, 6-4, 6-3 in the semifinals on yesterday's schedule.

Drury worked hard to win in the first set. He had his opponent making errors frequently. Holtmann came back strong in the second set with his drives growing steadier and his drop shot working well.

Holtmann's Other Victories.

Holtmann won both the Kennedy invitational and the St. Louis District titles last year. He also won numerous Missouri Valley, district and Muny junior events. Al is a sophomore at Illinois U. now.

Buchholz has climbed the tennis ladder of success rapidly. He will be bidding for his fifth men's singles title. He won the 1953 Washington U. tourney and then captured the district indoor, Clayton Open and Missouri Valley singles events this season. Butch paired with Ned Neely to win the 1955 National boys' doubles title. He has won the Orange Bowl event four times and was the winner in other numerous local and Valley competition.

Mrs. Parker After No. 15.

Mrs. Merceina Parker will be striving for her fifteenth women's singles championship when she plays Erika Puetz in the final at 2 o'clock. Miss Puetz, reigning district junior champion, upset the second seeded Carole Boshard in the semifinals, 7-5, 6-1.

Mrs. Parker had Mrs. Jean Zacny for her partner to defeat Lois Weinstein and Miss Boshard in the women's doubles finals, 6-2, 6-3. Mrs. Zacny and Bunny Wall won the 1955 event.

Buchholz and Drury, a familiar team in the junior activity for the past two years, defeated Bob Ziervogel and Holtmann, 4-6, 6-1, 7-5, 6-4, in an excellent men's semifinal doubles match. Ward Parker and Hart, doubles winners for the past five straight years, eliminated Wayne C. Smith and Don Dippold, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2. Winning teams meet at 3:30 for the title.

Merceina and Ward Parker beat Marilyn Mueller and Don Dippold, 4-6, 6-0, 9-7, to win their thirteenth Muny mixed doubles championship since 1940. The losers almost upset the cart. Miss Mueller and Dippold had match point six times in the final set.

Winners in the tourney will be certified for the National Public Parks tourney, scheduled to start Aug. 20 at Cincinnati.

There was supposed to be a paid admission fee to witness yesterday's matches but one of the officials forgot to bring the tickets and cash for the ticket seller. About 125 fans saw the matches free. But it will not be that way today. An admission of 25 cents will be charged for children and 50 cents for adults.

Everything's Lovely as Ever in Casting -- Distance Title His

By John J. Archibald

Bill Lovely, who proves over and over again that he is one of the country's best distance casters, was asked about how much time he spent on practice, but he didn't get a chance to reply.

"Bill did his practicing years ago," one of his competitors volunteered. "He doesn't have to practice any more."

Actually, Lovely, the only surviving charter member of the Carondelet Fly and Bait Casting Club founded in 1934, said he spends about two hours a week working out with his reel. As proof that his friend was right about not requiring much rehearsing of his act, Lovely won the all-distance title yesterday in the Missouri Valley Casting Association tournament at Forest Park.

Move to Carondelet.

The meet will move to Carondelet Park for the accuracy events. They start at 8 a.m. today.

Lovely has dominated these distance events in the Valley meet since 1940. During this time he won the 3/8-ounce 14 times and the 5/8-ounce 10 times. His other titles include the distance baits championship in the national casting event held in St. Louis last summer.

"I got interested in casting around 1934, and we formed the Carondelet Club that year," said Lovely. The other charter members, now deceased, were Otis Murty, Harry Schoelmeyer and Fred Pavitt.

"Within a year the club grew to about 60 members," Lovely said, "and now it is about 120. A number of these are juniors, and that is encouraging."

Junior Caster.

One of the top junior casters in St. Louis is Ollie Sweeney, center fielder for the Stockham Post team that won the district American Legion junior baseball title last week. Sweeney was also a member of Beaumont's state championship basketball and baseball teams. He'll compete in the Valley's accuracy events.

Five St. Louisans are expected to represent St. Louis in this year's national casting championships at San Francisco on Aug. 8-12. They are Clem Forcade, Len Williams, Jim Venable (of Roxana, Ill.), Lovely, and 17-year-old Mel Gavin, who dominated the women's events in the United States meet here.

Distance Bait.

Lovely won in the 3/8-ounce with an average of 326½ feet for his three best casts, while his winning 5/8-ounce average was 382⅔.

The double victory made Lovely automatic winner of the combined distance bait title with a total for his six casts of 2139 feet.

Jim Venable of Roxana, Ill., was first in the trout fly distance event held on Post-Dispatch Lake, with an average of 154 feet. Clem Forcade was runner-up with 143½. Lovely stayed in competition for the all-distance trophy with a fourth-best average of 137.

In yesterday's final event, the salmon fly distance, Troy Sharp of the St. Louis Fly and Bait Club won with 180½ feet. Venable took the combined distance flies title with 975 feet.

The wide margin that Lovely had built up in the morning events, plus his good work with flies, gave him the all-distance honors with 3053 feet.

Forsyth (Mo.) Athlete To Go to St. Louis U.

Jerry Anderson, who played high school basketball at Forsyth, Mo., and was leading scorer in the Missouri Class M championship tournament, will enroll at St. Louis University, it was announced yesterday.

Anderson totaled 97 points in four Class M tourney games. He had scored 100 points in prior regional tourney play. He averaged 20.6 points per game during the season.

Belleville Is 3-2 Loser; Out Of Legion Play

The Belleville Hilgards yesterday were eliminated from American Legion Junior baseball play when they bowed to Murphysboro, 3-2, in a rain-shortened game at Breese, Ill.

Only eight innings were played officially. Murphysboro had just finished its turn in the first of the ninth when the rain came and halted play.

Murphysboro will play Metropolis today for the Fifth Division championship. Metropolis survived by winning yesterday's first game from Effingham, 8 to 6.

Score of the Belleville-Murphysboro game:

Innings:	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	R.	H.	E.
Murphysboro—	1	2	0	0	0	0	0	0	3	5	1
Belleville—	—	—	0	0	2	0	0	0	2	8	2

(Called after eight innings; rain.)

Batteries: Murphysboro—Casleton and Pierson; Belleville—Mueller, Schiebal (2), Winter (8) and Watland.

Doctors Say Operation On Babe Zaharias Eased Pain in Legs

GALVESTON, Tex., July 14 (AP)—Babe Zaharias, the famous woman athlete, spent a restless night and still feels discomfort from an operation to relieve cancer pains, a hospital bulletin said today.

"The operation was a success from an anatomical standpoint because she can move her legs now without the previously suffered pain," the bulletin said.

It said she is now taking liquid nourishment.

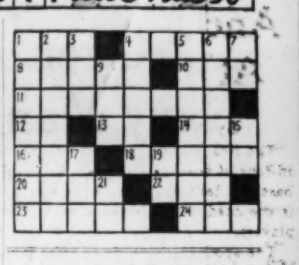

Knowing that the operation might cause paralysis and that she might never walk again, Mrs. Zaharias voluntarily chose to undergo the operation at John Sealy Hospital yesterday.

Dominic Ruma, vice president of the Metropolitan St. Louis umpires' division of the Amateur Softball Association, will be one of the men in blue at the men's "world" tournament in Sacramento, Calif., Sept. 17 to Sept. 23.

Bernie Ebert, who used to be field announcer for Brown's games, will umpire in the girls' western regional tournament at Topeka, Kan., Aug. 24-26.

Mikel Stable to Front.

A STABLE without a handicap star is making a runaway race of owners' money winning honors at the Fairmount Park meeting, which comes to a close next Friday night, after which Cahokia Downs will begin a 60-day-and-night meeting.

The stable is Illinois-owned Mikel Farms . . . until Friday night, when Clicker finished first in the $2000 Illinois Breeders Stake for earnings of $1400, no winning purse of better than $850 had been accounted for by the stable's representatives.

However, J. D. Mikel and his trainer, C. C. Lemons, have a lot of horses able to grab some portion of the purse. . . . For instance, in gaining 23 firsts, 24 seconds and a like number of thirds, 21 horses have earned from $150 for Hypostyle to the $2550 earned by Ekin.

Signal Code, London and Ekin have each accounted for three firsts, while Osage Chief, Almenow, Hurbane and Ziggity have each been in the winner's circle twice. . . . Just A'Foot, Pats Valentine, Wisenheimer, Picturema n, Old Booty and Clicker have each accounted for the long end of one purse.

Besides Ekin, only three others have won as much as $2000. . . . They are Signal Code, $2450; London, $2300, and Ziggity, $2250.

The Mikel Stable money winners:

Memphis Golfer Captures Parks Crown

Wins by 3-2 Over Navy Man

SAN FRANCISCO, July 14 (AP)—Dapper Junie Buxbaum, a 128-pound businessman from Memphis, Tenn., today won the National Public Links golf championship with a 3 and 2 victory over Navy Man Bill Scarbrough.

For 29 holes it was a close match, then Big Bill's game began to fall apart. Junie, 37, a former pro who regained amateur standing in 1953, took advantage of his opponents' mistakes.

Trailing one down, Scarbrough, 32, was trapped at the thirtieth hole and lost it with a one-over-par six.

Junie then won the next hole by dropping a 25-foot putt after which Scarbrough won a hole through official decision.

Buxbaum had marked his ball with a coin a club-head's length from its actual position, so the Navy man's putt would not be stymied. When Junie replaced his ball, he didn't put it in its original place but rather at the point of the coin. That made it two up through 32 holes.

After halving the next hole, the 195-pound Scarbrough, a Chief Petty Officer on leave from the Naval Air Station at Jacksonville, Fla., hooked a drive down a sandy bank, missed a shot coming back up and three strokes later conceded the match.

Play over the par 36-36—72 Harding Park municipal course was hampered during the morning by a misty drizzle, but it quit during the afternoon although skies remained overcast.

Class A Tennis Meet Saturday

The annual Municipal Class A tennis tournament will be held July 21-29 on the Jefferson Memorial courts in Forest Park. Entries for the event should be mailed to Joe Karl, 2344 Virginia avenue, PRospect 2-9755. Winners of the Class A event for the past five years are not eligible for the event, also the top 10 ranking men and five top ranking women players for the 1955 season.

The Muny organization's junior tourney for boys and girls has been postponed until the latter part of August.

Handball Final.

Joe Stein and Ed Rosen will oppose Bill Adler and Nick Riggio in the Class B doubles final of the Forest Park Handball Club tourney at Forest Park this afternoon. In an exhibition, starting at 1:30 o'clock, Harry Dreyfus and Harry Miller will meet Les Peressin and Bill McGreevey.

Golf 'Ideal'

MRS. ALFRED GOLDMAN, of Westwood Country Club, St. Louis, who received the Women's Missouri Golf Association's Edlund Award during the tournament at Excelsior Springs, Mo. The award is given the contestant judged the "Ideal Golfer" by reason of outstanding qualities of character and sportsmanship.

Negro Stars In East-West Game at Tandy

Outstanding local Negro baseball players will compete this afternoon in the annual East vs. West all-star game at Tandy Park, Goode and Kennerly avenues. After preliminary ceremonies, play will start at 2:30.

Through the years, the East-West game, usually played at Chicago, has paraded many of the great Negro players who later reached the major leagues, including Al Smith, Luke Easter, Jim Pendleton, Sam Jethroe, Quincy Throupe and Elston Howard.

Today's players will be drawn from teams of the Tandy Industrial League, forming the West squad, and teams of the Vashon Athletic Association forming the East squad.

Starting teams will be:

WEST—Robert Labadie, 1b; Leonard Clark, 2b; Leroy Moore, 3b; Harry Haskins, ss; Willie Brown, lf; Charley King, cf; Robert Everett, rf; Eugene Lyles, c; and Alex Bolds, p.

EAST—Lawrence Potter, 1b; Sylvester Caldwell, 2b; Willard Malone, 3b; John House, ss; Earl Peoples, lf; Raymond Anderson, cf; M. Lovelace, rf; Constant Franklin, c; and Wardie Malone, p.

Sophomore Pro Has 203, Leads In Quebec Golf

BOISCHAPEL, Que., July 14 (UP)—Young Bill Casper of Chula Vista, Calif., shooting for his first big pay day, fired a five-under-par 67 today to take a three-stroke lead with 203 after 54 holes of the $26,800 Labatt open golf tournament.

The 25-year-old sophomore pro, who held a one-stroke lead at the half-way mark, was 13-under-par for the first 54 holes.

Four veteran pros were chasing the newcomer from three strokes away—Stan Leonard, LaChute, Que., who was beaten in a playoff a year ago; Ted Kroll, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.; Jimmy Demaret, Kiamesha Lake, N.Y., and Al Besselink, Grossinger, N.Y.

Doug Ford, who won the 1953 Labatt open and the biggest money winner in this event with more than $9000 in prizes, was five strokes off the pace at 208.

Four others were bunched at 209—Dow Finsterwald, Bedford Heights, O.; Walker Inman Jr., Augusta, Ga.; Marty Furgol, Lemont, Ill.; and Tommy Bolt, Houston, Tex. In all, 34 pros and one amateur were still shooting sub-par golf after 54 holes.

Doug Sanders, the 22-year-old amateur who won last week's Canadian Open on an extra hole playoff with Dow Finsterwald, was the only non-pro. The Miami Beach, Fla., swinger was six under par with 210 and bunched with four others.

Norwood Hills Members Active in Ticket Sale For Women's Open Golf

The ticket selling plan for the women's open golf tournament featuring professional stars at Norwood Hills Aug. 16-19 was announced yesterday.

Norwood's membership of 840 has been assigned a total of 6500 tickets to sell for the event which this year is being sponsored solely by the club. Previously the Eastern Missouri P.G.A. was the sponsor.

"This tournament has an appeal for the general public," said David Burdeau, Tournament Committee Chairman. "So, in an effort to bring out more of the general sports fans, an admission charge of only $1.50 a day is being made. Costly season tickets have been done away with."

The Norwood Women's Open will follow the two Tam O'Shanter tournaments Aug. 2-5 and Aug. 8-10. Louise Suggs won last year's St. Louis event at Norwood. Betsy Rawls captured the first one at Glen Echo the year before.

Ask Me Another

By Harold Tuthill

"What happens when no tickets are sold on the winner of a horse race? How is the money distributed?" Mickey Baltz, Dupo, Ill.

According to the American Racing Manual when no ticket is sold on a horse and that horse wins, all the straight money goes to the horse which is placed second. The place and show pools, however, are not affected and remain unchanged so long as there is a participating horse in either.

"What penalty is inflicted when a glove or cap is thrown by a fielder at a batted ball? Can a coach, without being penalized, assist a base runner to score by pushing him toward home plate?" F. L., St. Clair, Mo.

Rule 7.05 reads, in part, "Each runner, including the batter-runner, may, without liability of being put out, advance (a) to home base, scoring a run, if a fair ball goes over the field in flight and he touches all bases legally; or, if a fair ball which, in the umpire's judgment, would have cleared the field fence in flight, is deflected by the act of a fielder in throwing his glove, cap or any article of his apparel, the runner shall be awarded a home run.

"(b) Three bases, if a fielder deliberately touches a fair ball with his cap, mask or any part of his uniform detached from its proper place on his person. The ball is in play and the batter may advance to home base at his peril.

"(c) Three bases, if a fielder deliberately throws his glove at and touches a fair ball. . . ." (Again the batter may advance at his peril.)

Regarding the situation governing assistance to a base runner, the rule (7.09g) is it is interference if "in the judgment of the umpire, the coach at third base, or first base, by touching or holding the runner, physically assists him in returning to, or leaving third base or first base. The runner, however, shall not be declared out if no play is being made on him." The penalty for interference is that the runner is out and the ball is dead.

Heavyweights to Box On Show in Fenton

A heavyweight bout between Chuck Riley of Affton and Jerry Buchanan of Rock A.C. has been added to the amateur boxing show at Fenton public school grounds Friday night.

Other bouts lined up by Matchmaker Elmer Howell include: Tommy Reynolds vs. Dan Eddington, 118 pounds; Jack McCracken vs. Tom Hills, 160 pounds; Jack Patti vs. Willie Willingham, 175 pounds; Joe Shaw vs. Gene Cartee, 135 pounds, and Bill Clemmons vs. Milton Tate, 175 pounds.

Eddington surprised Reynolds in the 1956 Golden Gloves tournament. McCracken, the Butcher Boy from the South Broadway A.C., was the sensation in the novice division of the same tournament.

Dyck to Nashville.

CINCINNATI, O., July 14 (UP)—The Cincinnati Redlegs tonight sent Outfielder Jim Dyck to Nashville of the Southern Association and called up infielder-outfielder Tommy Brown from the same club.

Brown, formerly in the major leagues with the Dodgers, Phillies, and Cubs, is 29. A right-handed batsman with a .340 average this season, he stands second in the Southern Association in runs-batted in and was a unanimous choice on the league's all-star team.

The Goose Hangs High—In Prospects

WHEN hunting pressure increases, the larger species of game birds and animals obviously are the first to feel the effect as they are easier to shoot and generally exist in smaller numbers.

Consequently, sportsmen are pleased with the way the big Canada goose has managed not only to hold its own but apparently is increasing in population despite greater attention from shooters.

Reports from Canada say the goose hatch is good and practically complete. The species continues to spread and increase on Ducks Unlimited projects in southern Alberta and southwestern Saskatchewan.

This news is favorable for the prospects of waterfowl hunters in the Mississippi flyway this fall.

When a count was made of Canada geese in Illinois in January, there were 190,000 in the state—an increase of 20,000 over the mid-winter waterfowl census the previous year. Later, in January, there were about 200,000 Canada geese in southern Illinois alone. Most of the increase for the state was in this section.

Illinois Kill Up in 1956.

The kill of geese in southern Illinois during the last wildfowl season was 24,500, including estimated crippling loss. This was an increase of 5100 over the previous season's take.

The harvest was as follows: Horseshoe lake area—14,500; Union county area—2500; Crab Orchard lake area—5000; various areas on the Missouri side of the Mississippi river—1200. The unrecorded kill and crippling loss from the southern Illinois flock was estimated at 1300.

For many years, the United States Fish and Wildlife Service, fearful that hunting will too greatly deplete the goose population, has limited shooters to two Canada geese daily in the Mississippi flyway. The limit of two is the minimum for sustaining interest in goose shooting.

The Federal Government has started an extensive Canada goose restoration program in a new refuge on the Snake Creek arm of the Garrison Reservoir in North Dakota. The area contains about 25,000 acres. Garrison Reservoir, 210 miles long and 14 miles wide in places, is a unit of the Missouri river flood control plan.

In the early part of the 1800s, the Missouri river, from near the sources of its tributaries to what is now the Nebraska-South Dakota line, provided some of the finest nesting ground in North America for the Canada goose.

Boat Capacity Formula.

The Outboard Boating Club of America has come out with a formula for determining the carrying capacity of a boat. The computation is somewhat complicated but knowing the capacity of your boat is a safety factor that may save lives.

The formula: Take the length times the maximum width times the maximum depth times 0.6, then divide this multiplied figure by 12. This result should be multiplied by 150 to give the carrying capacity.

For example, consider a boat that is 12 feet long, has a maximum width of 3½ feet, a maximum depth of 1½ feet. Using the formula, its safe carrying capacity would be found to be 473 pounds.

When the beam measurements are 48 inches, use 19 inches as the maximum depth; 49 to 52 inches, use 20 inches as maximum depth; 53 to 56 inches, use 21 inches as maximum depth; 57 inches and over, use 22 inches.

The United States Fish and Wildlife Service is looking for helpers in its project to band 40,000 mourning doves, primarily nestlings, in the next five years.

Persons over 18 years of age who are able to recognize mourning doves and who are interested in obtaining a banding permit and keeping the necessary records may apply to the Bird Banding Office, Patuxent Research Refuge, Laurel, Md.

Help is also desired from individuals or organizations interested in assisting to find nests but not in banding or keeping records.

Further information may be obtained from local conservation agents or from Claude R. Alexander, Post Office Box 815, Jefferson City, Mo. Persons living in Illinois may write Marshall L. Stinnett, 327 Federal Building, Peoria.

New North County Shopping Center at Chambers and 67 Proposed

Architect's drawing of $10,000,000 Bellefontaine Center, one-stop suburban shopping center proposed to be constructed on 40-acre tract of land at Highway 67 and Chambers road by Bellefontaine Center, Inc. Cornet and Zeibig, Inc., has been named agent for the project which is to have a major department store, 70 shops and services, a seven-story contemporary office building and parking facilities for 4000 automobiles. Murphy and Mackey have been appointed architects.

Shopping Center At Chambers, 67 Corner Proposed

Forty-Acre Project With Seven-Story Office Building, Department Store, Shops and Service Establishments, Parking Area for 4000 Automobiles Being Planned.

A one-stop suburban shopping center for North St. Louis county is proposed to be built on about 40 acres of ground on Highway 67 at Chambers road at a cost of about $10,000,000 by Bellefontaine Center, Inc., Leo J. Rothbarth, Victor Packman and Associates report.

Under management of Cornet & Zeibig, Inc., the new center, to be in the north county city of Bellefontaine Neighbors, is to have 750,000 square feet of space. This will include facilities for a major department store, 70 other shops and services, and a seven-story contemporary styled office building with more than 30 offices, a sky-line restaurant and a proposed medical clinic.

"This ultramodern center, with parking accommodations for 4000 automobiles plus a separate lot for 600 automobiles for owners and employes, will encompass all of the latest features for the comfort and shopping ease of the more than 500,000 residents of the immediate area," Cornet & Zeibig stated. "We are planning covered malls so that shoppers will be afforded shelter from the parking lot to all stores and shops, and we are investigating the possibility of installing conveyor sidewalks throughout the area."

Will Widen Chambers.

The new shopping center is to be on the northwest corner of Highway 67 and Chambers road, with a frontage of 2200 feet along the highway and 900 feet along Chambers road, which is to be widened and will become a direct route from the east, to Lambert-St. Louis Municipal Airport under St. Louis county's road improvement program. In addition, the inner belt highway is proposed to be about one-half mile from the center.

Major buildings in the project are to be the 300,000 square-foot department store and the 70,000 square-foot office building for doctors, dentists, attorneys, accountants, architects, etc. The 70 shops and services are proposed to occupy the additional 280,000 square feet of shopping space in the project.

"With a department store of this size, and with a food market, hardware, variety, drug and other stores, shops and services, this should be a center where residents of this rapidly growing area can purchase everything they need without getting into their car a second time," the developers said. "Too, we will have a bowling alley, skating arena, and a theater in the center for the recreational needs of the residents."

500,000 in 20 Minutes.

The developers stated that the new center is located within a 20-minute drive for about 500,000 residents in Ferguson, Glasgow Village, Riverview, Jennings, Bissell Hills, Hathaway Manor, Hathaway Meadows, North Hills Gardens and other communities in the north county region.

In addition, they pointed out that residents of many Illinois communities such as Alton, East Alton, Wood River, Edwardsville and the Tri-Cities will be able to reach the center easily over the Lewis and Clark and Chain of Rocks bridges.

The center will be within a short drive of such major county roads as Highway 66 By-Pass, Bellefontaine road, Halls Ferry and Jennings roads, and minutes away from the circle at Riverview and Goodfellow.

"We are planning this shopping center to serve 750,000 residents living within easy driving radius," Rothbarth and Packman announced. "This section of St. Louis county has almost doubled in population in the last few years, and it will continue to grow as it is the only remaining section near the heart of St. Louis where both industry and residential expansion can be planned."

Cites Rapid Growth.

Just six years ago, the city of Bellefontaine Neighbors had a population of 766, the developers added, while today, it has grown to more than 20,000 residents. With 10,000 new homes in the region and with an additional 10,000 residences planned for the next two years, all to be built within a few miles of the center, the population of

Home Builders Plan for Annual Summer Outing

The annual Bildors' Day picnic, summer outing of the Home Builders' Association of Greater St. Louis, has been scheduled to be held throughout afternoon and evening next Wednesday at Crystal Lake Country Club. More than 300 have indicated intention to attend and the Association office, which will take reservations for the dinner through tomorrow, figured total registration may jump to 400.

A golf tournament, with awards in Canadian Handicap, for low gross, low net, low putts and a hole-in-one, is planned. There also will be the traditional softball game between builders and associate members (suppliers) of the association, a game builders so far never have won. There are to be games of horseshoes, singles and doubles; cards, swimming and other attractions and at 7 p.m. a steak dinner in the clubhouse.

U.S. Strips Foreclosure Of Tax Tape

By ROBERT F. MORISON
United Press Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Federal Government this week stripped some tax red tape from mortgage foreclosure proceedings.

The new ruling applies to properties on which federal tax lien has been taken.

The mortgage money lender has first claim on money received from forced sale of the property. Thus in many cases the Government stands to gain nothing from its lien.

From now on, if it is clear the Government is wasting its time and no money will be left over after a lender has recovered his loan, the lien can be removed without taking the matter to court.

The mortgage lender can make faster work of the foreclosure and the Government will save money.

May Permit Trusts.

This ruling is one of several real estate tax matters currently active here. Others include:

1. Indications that Congress may act this month on tax legislation to permit establishment of real estate investment trust funds. The general public could invest in these as it does in funds which hold pools of corporate stocks and bonds. Supporters of the measure claim it would help relieve the shortage of mortgage money by drawing a greater share of private investment money into real estate loans.

2. Studies by the National Association of Home Builders to figure out possible tax incentives for several of the privately financed housing programs which are backed by the Government. These include the new trade-in-and-build plan and older programs of urban renewal, low-cost housing and slum clearance.

Open for Comment.

3. Internal Revenue Service proposals for carrying out a new tax law provision which generally lowers the tax rate on money received from subdividing and selling land. The money used to be treated as regular income. A new amendment to the law makes it a capital gain. The proposals are still open for comment by interested parties.

This week's tax lien ruling came after the Justice Department complained the Govern-

Laclede And Grand Site Sold

Property at the southeast corner of Grand and Laclede, long familiar to St. Louisans as the site of circus, carnival and revival tents, has been purchased by the Lindburg Cadillac Co. for new General Motors sales, service and distributorship buildings to be used exclusively for Cadillacs.

Earl Lindburg, vice president of the Lindburg company, in discussing the purchase and plans for construction, said that the purchase of this site emphasizes the company's faith in the continued growth and improvement of metropolitan St. Louis and that the decision of the firm to make the move was passage of the new bond issue.

Plans for improvement of the tract, at an estimated cost of $1,500,000, are being developed by the company, with collaboration of General Motors and a local architect, Lindburg reported yesterday.

Specifications proposed include a contemporary-style, air-conditioned building with 75,000 square feet of floor space under roof. In addition to areas for sales, service, party and body shop, there will be a used car "salon."

Adjacent buildings on the Theresa end of the property will be used for distribution of Cadillacs to dealers in Missouri, Illinois and southern Iowa.

Construction is expected to be started in a year and completed within two.

The tract, over four acres and probably the largesst commercial vacant property in midtown St. Louis, fronts 385 feet on Grand avenue, 302 feet on Laclede avenue, 647 feet on the planned extension of Forest Park boulevard and 230 feet on Theresa avenue.

The purchase price was not stated but the reported value of the ground is $500,000. The property, formerly known as Handlan Park, was sold by A. H. and Ella Handlan. Prior to their ownership, it was owned by Auguste Chouteau and known as the Chouteau Mill tract.

When the new facilities are completed, the Lindburg Cadillac Co. will vacate its present quarters at 4100 Laclede, where it owns 87,000 square feet of ground and occupies a three-story building originally used by the Doris Manufacturing Co. for production of the Doris automobile.

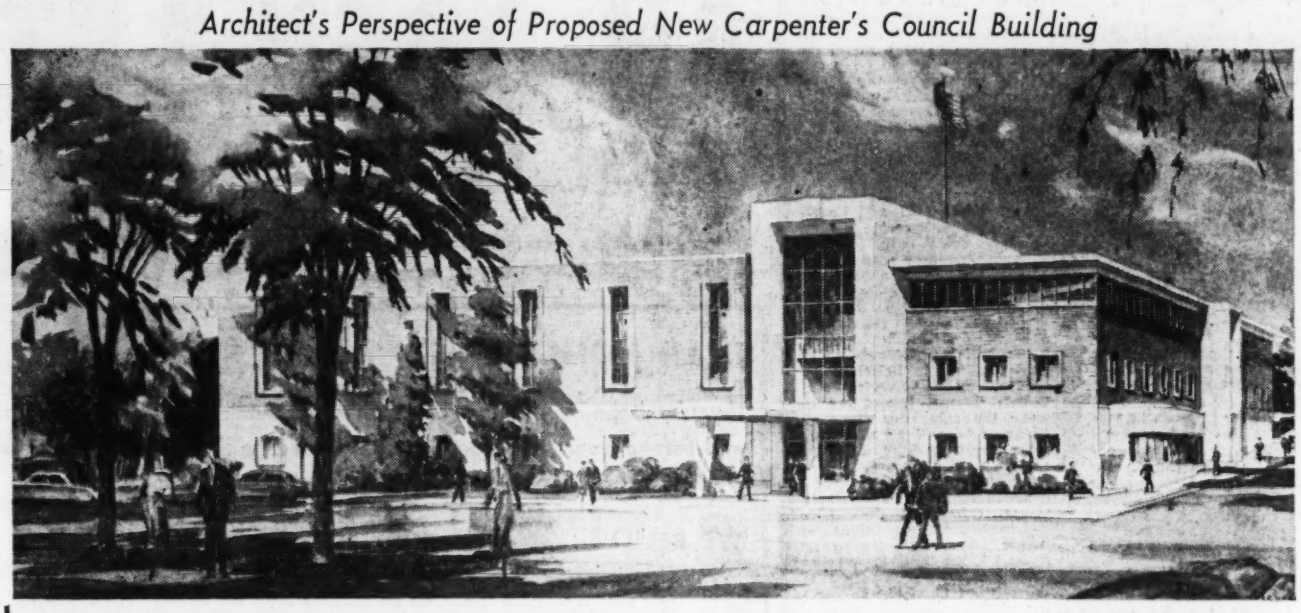

A. R. Lindburg is president and chairman of the board of Lindburg Cadillac Co.

The Grand and Laclede sale was negotiated by the Glick Real Estate Co.

Space-Saving Doors.

Sliding doors on closets save space and usually can be installed with little effort and cost now that they are made in ready-to-hang units.

Architect's Perspective of Proposed New Carpenter's Council Building

Sketch from architects Study, Farrar and Majers depicts proposed new home of the Carpenters' District Council of St. Louis, for which a formal ground-breaking ceremony is planned next Tuesday on the building site at the northwest corner of Hampton and Roberts avenues. The Nathan Wolff Real Estate Co. assembled the two-acre tract.

Union Home Planned by Carpenters

Formal ground breaking is planned next Tuesday for the beginning of construction of a new headquarters of the Carpenters' District Council of St. Louis at the northwest corner of Hampton and Roberts avenues. Cost has been estimated at $1,500,000. The Council has some 10,000 members.

Architects Study, Farrar and Majers have done the designing, with Neal Campbell as structural engineer, and general contract has been awarded to the John B. Gutmann Construction Co. The Thomas J. Sheehan Co. has been awarded the heating, plumbing and cooling contract and electrical work will be by Guarantee Electrical Co.

The ground, a two-acre tract, was assembled by the Nathan Wolff Real Estate Co.

The building, a three-story structure, is to occupy about two-thirds of the site, with the remainder being developed for parking space. Parking will be largely at second-story level, since the nature of the terrain will provide for a main floor with entrances from the two streets, a parking lot with entrance into the second story. Executive offices will be on the top floor, social rooms, a grille, classrooms and a barbershop on the ground floor. Two large assembly halls will be on the middle floor.

A structure of monumental aspect is proposed, depicting

Newly Completed Mercantile Store Now in Operation

Operations of A. J. Childs & Sons Mercantile Co., one of the area's oldest hardware and building materials firms, have been concentrated in the company's newly completed headquarters at the southwest corner of Manchester and Kingshighway, entrance to which is pictured. The company's former building at 800 Chouteau avenue has been turned over to the Ralston Purina Co., which purchased it.

Mercantile Firm Completes Move To New Quarters

A. J. Child & Sons Mercantile Co., one of St. Louis's oldest hardware and building material firms, has completed the moving of its operations from 800 Chouteau avenue to new and larger quarters at the southwest corner of Manchester road and South Kingshighway. Some functions of the company had been set up at the new site before the all-new building and facilities were constructed there and, for a time, operations were being carried on from both old and new addresses. The old property on Chouteau has now been turned over to the Ralston Purina Co., to which it was sold.

At Child's new location, off-street parking adjacent to the main sales building has been provided for 125 cars.

The new store, on a five-acre

New Tanglewood Section Set for Formal Opening

The opening today of section four of Tanglewood subdivision was reported yesterday by Burt Wenneker, builder and developer of the project. The new section, last scheduled construction in the subdivision, is planned around a new entrance at 8600 Ladue road, leading directly into Tanglewood drive, which connects with Louwen drive. This arrangement makes any section of the subdivision accessible to or from either the Ladue entrance or one at 8400 Clayton road.

Houses in Tanglewood are of contemporary design featuring custom styling. Preferred exterior design of a buyer is constructed around one of three basic floor plans, each of which includes three bedrooms, two bedrooms, separate living and dining areas, a recreation room, full basement and an enclosed garage. Each house is air conditioned.

There is a display house at 416 Tanglewood drive, furnished by Stix, Baer and Fuller. Interior decoration is designed to give an international look. The living area has a Mediterranian-Far Eastern touch, popular with many interior decorators. Old English is used in the recreation room, with Early American predominating in the guest bedroom.

Solon Gershman, Inc., is agent.

Store Center

the center's shopping area will reach over 750,000.

The developers pointed to the Columbia Bottoms and said "if this is developed for industry as is expected, more dwellings on the north end will be constructed to take care of the workers and their families who want to live near their place of employment."

According to the developers, the project is being planned as a community as well as a shopping center. Arrangements are being made to have the Bellefontaine Neighbors city hall, post office and other public buildings located in the center. The proposed design of the center springs from a belief that sound merchandising in an age-on-wheels must harmonize with the life of new towns.

New Parking Lights.

The parking area, to be illuminated by a new system of lighting which will eliminate light standards, will be so arranged that civic affairs, Easter services, community celebrations and other special events may be held there, the developers said.

The entire shopping center area is to be landscaped to give it a parklike atmosphere. Fountains will be predominant and jets of water are to control music to add to the comfort of the shoppers.

Entrances are to be placed along Highway 67 and Chambers road. A separate service entrance from both Highway 67 and Chambers road with a 50-foot wide road around the perimeter of the project, will be used as a service road for deliveries to the stores and shops.

In addition to the network of roads leading to Bellefontaine Center, Public Service and County Transit busses are to serve the area. Bus stops on Highway 67 will be sheltered.

Two-level parking facilities are to be constructed so that automobiles can be parked close to the stores and shops. Ramps connecting the upper and lower levels are planned to provide accessibility to all stores. Covered malls are to extend to within 180 feet of the farthest point on the parking lot.

Murphy and Mackey have been named as architects for Bellefontaine Center. Work on the project is expected to get under way this fall.

ment was yearly getting tangled in more and more fruitless mortgage foreclosure cases.

In many cases it is not possible for a mortgage money lender to foreclose on property on which there is a Government lien, according to a tax official here. Before this week's ruling the lender had to sue the Government for removal of the lien. Government lawyers had to go to court even if there was no prospect of collecting overdue federal taxes.

Waiver by Agreement.

Under the new rule, the Government eliminates its legal expenses and the whole foreclosure procedure is speeded. The district director of Internal Revenue may agree conditionally to remove the lien when investigation shows it has no dollar value to the Government.

This will be the case when a home is mortgaged for more than its forced sale value so that the forced sale will not return enough money to pay off the lender with a prior claim.

Home in Huntleigh Hills Area Purchased

Dr. and Mrs. David Henry Brown have purchased this home at 115 Timbercrest drive, in the Huntleigh Hills subdivision of Kirkwood, from Mr. and Mrs. George Kurtz in a transaction negotiated by Helen Fletcher & Co.

Purchased for Investment

Four-family building at 353-359 Des Peres built and sold by the Balestreri Construction Co. to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Saberg as an investment.

New Subdivision East of Cahokia Is Opened Today

Formal opening has been arranged for today of a new East Side subdivision called Parklane Manor and for the opening of a new section of another by the same building organization, called Parkfield Terrace.

Both subdivisions lie along Highway 157 east of Cahokia, with the newer one closer in than the other. Homes in the new subdivision are a little larger than those in the earlier one and a slightly higher price range prevails.

Park Lane Manor, the new development by Ted Lazercheff's Parkfield Development Co., has houses with 935 square feet of floor area, while homes in the terrace have 905 square feet. Carports may be had.

The Terrace, which lies on the north side of the road (the Manor is on the south side) already has 136 occupied homes in it and the new addition to be opened today will more than double that number when it is completed.

Homes in both areas are frame, on concrete foundations, with crawl space, and there is oil-fired perimiter heating.

Both subdivisions have storm sewers and, in the new one, eight asphalt-topped streets are being built.

Union Home

the carpenter trade whenever feasible. The frame will be of reinforced concrete, exterior walls of red Roman brick and buff Bedford stone. Corridors will have terrazzo floors and marble wainscots. A monumental stair, designed so that it will seem to hang in space, will rise from the ground floor in the Hampton avenue entrance foyer. Balustrades and hand rails will be in contemporary-styled aluminum.

The stair will open onto an 18-foot wide corridor, running full depth of the building, on the second level. Here rare foreign marbles, to carry memorial tablets and honor rolls will be used on corridor walls to the ceiling. Both this corridor and the entire stair and entrance foyer will be lighted by a 40-foot high plate glass window.

The second-floor assembly halls are to be 60 by 80, with 25-foot ceilings. Two large mosiacs of 24-foot length are planned for the walls above the rostrum of each assembly hall. These pictures, in green and gold, will depict the science and art of the trade.

The second floor also is to have 18 offices for heads of the different locals of the district.

On the third floor there are to be the Council's own executive offices and committee rooms. In these rooms many varieties of woods are to be used for wall panelling, including mahogany, satinwood, American Walnut with teakwood inlays, and some of the more modern introductions.

Window frames, sash and doors are to be done in mahogany, morticed and dowelled.

The entire structure is to be air-conditioned.

Builders' Show Director Attends Exhibitors Show

Mel Doernhoefer, home show director for the Home Builders Association of Greater St. Louis, attended the Exhibitors Advisory Council's Annual Clinic and Show for Shows in Chicago last week, Gene Vescovo, president of the association, reports.

Highlighting the three-day conference, which is the exhibit directors' annual meeting for show and exhibit managers throughout the country, were discussions by Walt Disney and Dr. Henry Langbein.

Disney explained "Disneyland," said to be the world's biggest exhibit. Langbein is foreign director of a European trade fair in Stuttgart, Germany.

The Show for Shows program demonstrated the latest props, designs, color lighting and services of a trade show.

Vescovo said that the local association plans to incorporate many of the new developments into its annual Bildor Home Show.

Advertising Agency Expands and Moves To Larger Quarters

The C. M. Said advertising agency has moved from the Paul Brown Building to larger quarters at 1186-90 Arcade Building.

Three large offices at the new location were modernized and converted into six units, with air-conditioning. Modernizing included installation of accoustical ceilings and new flooring.

C. M. Said is head of the advertising agency, which was established in 1948.

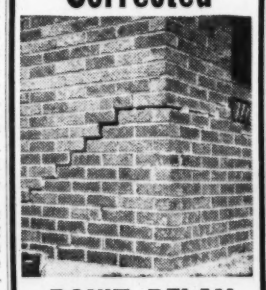

Lease of the new offices was arranged through the Issac T. Cook Co.

Has 5400 Windows.

With the development of tinted, heat-resistant glass to help "control" the sun, homes of the future are expected to follow the lead of such public buildings as the United Nations Secretariat, which has 5400 windows, or glass on roughly 90 per cent of its outer surface.

For Outdoor Living

607 A FOLD-AWAY LAWN TABLE
★ You will like the fold-away feature of this attractive redwood lawn table. Just remove two bolts that hold the base frame to the legs, and the legs will fold against the round top. The table top is 54" across. Craft Pattern 607 shows the construction and assembly. You will be surprised how inexpensively you can build the table. A hole is bored through the table top for the pole of a standard lawn umbrella.

608 KIDNEY-SHAPED BENCHES
★ The benches have curved tops in keeping with the table top. They are 42" long, and have strongly braced legs. Craft Pattern 608 shows the construction with some details in full size. The table will accommodate as many as four benches, but three provide better access at the ends for seating. By cutting like parts at one time, you can make several benches quickly. A single bench is an attractive lawn seat.

849 BARBECUE WITH WORK TOP
★ This complete barbecue was designed at our studio and built by one man in two weekends. You can duplicate it on your own patio, though you may never have laid brick, by following Craft Pattern 849. The pattern shows how to build the foundation, gives the correct proportions of stone, sand and cement for the concrete. Then it shows the position of each brick in each course, from base to chimney top, and explains how to mix the mortar and how to lay the brick. A list of the materials with quantities is given so you can go to a material dealer for an exact figure on cost. The barbecue is 68" long, 43" deep.

★ Send 25 cents each for the Craft Patterns 607, 608 and 849; $1.25 each for the Bird House Packet (17 patterns), the Home Cabinets Packet (22 patterns), the Garden Furniture Packet (22 patterns), and the Senior Jig-saw Packet (21 patterns). Send 25 cents for new illustrated catalog of over 850 patterns available. (Copyright, 1956, by A. Neely Hall).

State Show Of Gladioli Next Sunday

The third annual show by the Missouri Gladiolus Society is to be staged at the Missouri Botanical (Shaw's) Garden next Sunday from 12 noon to 5 p.m., the show's public relations director, Norman Abrams, reports. Earlier, there had been some variation in the date set for the show, but it has now been definitely fixed as next Sunday.

The show will be open to the public without charge and anyone who raises "glads" may enter blooms in the display house at the garden on Saturday afternoon and until 10 a.m. next Sunday. There is no entry fee.

Several classifications of displays have been planned and the committee has sought particularly to encourage arrangements, including one "in a pair of women's high style shoes." There are to be cash and gift awards for winners of the various classes of displays, which will include flowers from 100 to 300 in the miniature group, to 500 in the giant group.

The weather this year has been excellent for glads, Abrams said, and many handsome specimens are expected to be entered in the show, more than in previous years.

The show manager is Wilbert Willerding; the supervisor of judges, Homer Marti; the technical and staging director, R. R. Ulrich; the judge of arrangements, William C. Grimm. Mrs. Willerding has been in charge of providing for gift awards. Public relations and planning of the procedure have been in charge of Charles Borth and Abrams.

Entries are to be made according to the 1956 North American Gladiolus Classification.

Other "glad" shows scheduled this year are the display of the Edwardsville chapter of the Illinois Gladiolus Society at the courthouse in Edwardsville on July 29; the Missouri society's display at the Washington (Mo.) fair, Aug. 12; the Missouri society's display at the state fair in Sedalia, Aug. 19.

Gladiolus Bloom Season Can Last Into the Fall

Anyone who has ever experimented with successive planting of glads knows that these showy flowers are a continuous delight in the garden. And, if you're new at this game, you can start enjoying these ornamental favorites right now!

For glads may be planted from spring through mid-summer, bringing many, many weeks of brilliant color display to the garden. Glads now range in color from rich, intense shades of scarlet and crimson, to rose, grey pink, yellow, purple, salmon, white, etc. — often beautifully mottled and blotched in the throat.

New glad varieties this year are headed by the first All-America selections — Royal Steward and Apple Blossom. Other new varieties are the General Eisenhower, Evangeline, Spic and Span, Patrol, Poinsettia and Benjamin Franklin.

Few Simple Tips.

Even if you've never grown glads before, you can show off perfect blooms this year, if you follow a few simple tips.

Even in small gardens, try to provide new planting locations for the gladiolus beds each year. They apreciate new soil conditions. Select a spot in full sun because glads appreciate all the sunshine they can get. Start to protect your glads against thrips even before you plant the corms. It takes only a few minutes to dust them with a lindane formulation, and it checks not only the vicious thrips, but possible soil pests as well. Make sure there is plenty of dust on the bulb. Don't over-water glads. After the real summer heat comes along, and once the blooming stalks have appeared and buds have begun to develop, it is permissible to apply plenty of water. Irrigation from below is better than from overhead.

Use Fine Spray.

Spray or dust with lindane or DDT or spray at intervals of seven to 10 days for positive control of thrips. Start this treatment from the time the plants are six inches high. Spray should be applied as a fine spray mist with a good driving action using a precision built Spray-ette type garden hose sprayer, because the thrips ordinarily hide between the leaf sheaves and in the flower petals, and are difficult to reach with ordinary spray equipment. You can spot thrip damage as whitish or silvery flecks on the leaves. The spikes may not open at all. Corms in storage become sticky, corky, russeted — and either fail to germinate when planted, or produce poor flowers, or none at all.

At the end of the growing season, check the bulbs carefully when you dig them up. Never save rotten bulbs or diseased or unhealthy-looking bulblets. Store them in paper bags—about 25 per bag. Put a couple of tablespoonfuls of protective chemical dust in each bag, then shake up the contents thoroughly. This protects bulbs against insects and rot during storage.

Dealers' Contest

More than 300 Buick dealers and sales managers from eastern Missouri, southern Illinois, and part of Iowa gathered at the Chase Hotel last week to "kick-off" a $1,000,000 merchandise prize contest. Salesmen working for the dealers will be eligible for prizes by attafning sales objectives.

Roy P. Barbata, local Buick zone manager, told the men four grand prizes of all expense trips to Puerto Rico would be awarded to four dealers and their wives at dealerships achieving highest percentage of sales objective. The contest runs to midnight Sept. 20.

Varied Arrangement.

Varied furniture arrangement is possible with convector heating units. Convector heat flow is gentle, won't scorch furniture placed near the unit. Convectors are compact, demand little floor space.

are bugs eating you out of plants and blooms?
Look at your leaves for danger signs
Then apply ISOTOX Garden Spray, containing Lindane, Malathion and DDD. This time-saving spray controls nearly all varieties of destructive garden insects!

Hardened buds... distorted leaves? Check for Aphis. These unwanted guests love new plant growth, suck on young plants until growth is stunted, buds deformed and foliage yellowed. ISOTOX controls aphis.
Chewed-up leaves are clews to Japanese Beetle. This plump garden gangster attacks more than 275 different plants, flowers, vines and vegetables. Spray with ISOTOX when beetles first appear.
Streaked blooms and foliage often caused by Thrips. It's hard to see 'em, but these little rascals distort and deaden foliage, buds, flowers and bulbs of ornamentals. ISOTOX checks infestation.
Silvered leaves usually mean Red Spider Mites. These tiny, insects suck the sap from leaves, speckle undersides with feeding punctures. IMPROVED ISOTOX Garden Spray M kills 'em.
Waxy filament indicates Mealybugs. These insects make a mess of your foliage, sucking out the sap and causing a waxy filament which attracts ants. ISOTOX kills Mealybugs.
Defoliated fruit trees may mean Caterpillar damage. Tent caterpillars, leaf-rollers, bagworms—bite off foliage and chew and swallow plant tissue. Powerful ISOTOX K.O.'s them all.

Just a Little Luxury Adds So Much to Life

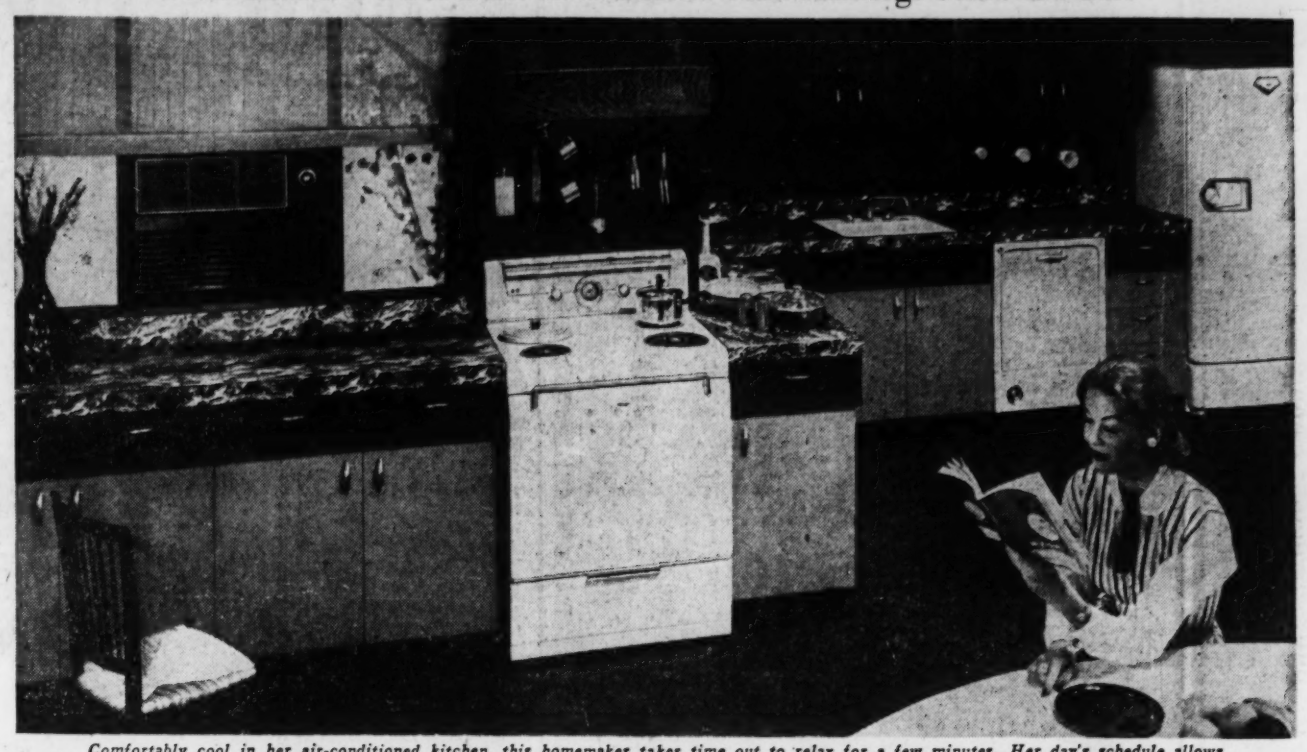

By Dorothy Brainerd

IT'S the little things that count, that add the zest to life. A little luxury, a little wit and imagination, and life is no longer humdrum and boring.

We don't mean the luxuries that are out of the reach of most of us—the penthouse apartment, the trip around the world, or the chinchilla wrap. We mean those extra touches that so often are dependent more upon an idea than upon money. The late and leisurely Sunday breakfast out-of-doors, the flowers on the table (even if they are petunias from the window box), the multitude of small luxuries at our disposal through the wise use of our electrical appliances.

Make the most of them; pamper yourself just a bit, and see how much brighter life will seem.

Work Becomes a Pleasure in Attractive Surroundings Such as These Comfortably cool in her air-conditioned kitchen, this homemaker takes time out to relax for a few minutes. Her day's schedule allows for several work-breaks, due to careful planning which enables her to use her electrical appliances to best advantage. Note the little "luxury touches" that add charm to the kitchen—the attractive rush-bottomed chair, the flowers on the counter top, the gleaming utensils on the wall.

Here Is Reason Why Men Like Dishwashers

TODAY'S husbands are handy men to have around the house—most of them will pitch in and help with the dishes, especially in many families where wives have full-time jobs outside of the home. But, like the disgruntled husband pictured above, the men seem to feel there must be an easier way. And they are so right. The savings in time and the greater sanitation are obvious, but there are other benefits which accrue from the use of a dishwasher. Fewer dishes are broken, by actual test. There are savings on the amount of detergent used, and the number of towels needed. Kitchens are tidier, since dishes can be stored out of sight both before and after washing. And certainly entertaining is more fun. It is easy to understand why men are quick to see the advantages to owning a dishwasher, and to agree with their wives that the appliance is well worth its price. Surely it makes a notable contribution to today's luxurious living.

Luxurious Living a Reality In Most American Homes

Electrical Appliances Have Played Major Role in Trend Toward Greater Enjoyment of Life.

"LUXURIOUS LIVING"—a pleasant phrase certainly, but just exactly what does it mean? Does it mean living on the dividends from a trust fund, wintering on the Riviera, wearing "name" dresses and priceless jewels? Perhaps, but not necessarily. For luxurious living can be interpreted in simpler terms, and can be a reality in most American homes.

To be literal, take a look at the definition for "luxury;" according to Webster's Unabridged Dictionary, it means "a mode of life characterized by material abundance," or "any convenience regarded as an indulgence rather than a necessity."

There can be little doubt that the average American lives a life characterized by material abundance; one needs only to count his blessings for a moment to realize how very true that statement is.

Or take the second definition —"any convenience regarded as an indulgence rather than a necessity." Then look around your home, particularly your kitchen and laundry.

Is an electrical washer a necessity? A dryer? An electrical refrigerator? A freezer? A modern electrical range, with all of its many time-saving features? Is it essential to have hot water at the turn of a faucet, or a disposer that whisks away waste without mess or bother?

We could live without them, of course; but each and every one is rapidly becoming "a necessity" rather than "an indulgence," judged by our present standards of living.

THERE is much truth in the old cliche that "life is what we make it," and the American homemaker has chosen to make it a life of luxury—of little luxuries that add so greatly to the pleasure of her family and pride in the home.

This is definitely a trend in the American way of life, circa 1956. One sees evidence of it on every hand.

Consider, for example, the great movement toward out-of-door living. It has swept the country, from the West coast eastward, in a steady and overpowering wave. St. Louis ranks very high (perhaps next to the Far West and the Southwest) on the list of communities that have taken it to their hearts and no longer consider it a fad, but an accepted part of day-to-day living.

The barbecue pit has become the center of social life from May to October. As much thought is given to making the patio attractive and comfortable as to furnishing the living room.

No, out-of-door living is not rustic; far from it. A built-in oven in the brick wall, opening not into the kitchen but onto the terrace, so that one may cook a complete meal right on the patio where it will be served; a portable TV so that one may watch a favorite program while enjoying the cool breezes—these things certainly are a part of luxurious living, but surely they are practical possibilities.

OUT-OF-DOOR living is, of course, just one part of this trend toward enjoying life to the fullest.

Electrical appliances have played a major role in this subtle change throughout the whole field of homemaking. The many ways in which they save time and energy for the homemaker, so that she may use both for relaxation instead of drudgery, are well known. But they have affected our lives in many other subtler ways.

Take the matter of interior decoration, for instance. Ever step to think why it was possible for us to use the pastel shades in carpets, upholstery and drapery fabrics, which have done so much toward brightening our homes? Is it not largely because of the contributions electrical appliances have made to our lives? The air conditioners which filter out dust and dirt, the vacuum cleaners which assure thorough and efficient cleaning?

Experts in the homefurnishings field point to many other indications of homemakers' awareness of the importance of luxury in everyday living.

There is the great interest in color, all the way from major appliances to such minor items as paper plates and napkins.

There is the insistence upon good taste on all levels—in the inexpensive furniture and fabrics just as surely as in the custom lines.

There is the care with which women now choose budget-priced dishes for everyday use, looking for the same good design and attractive colors in plastics and pottery as in fine china.

Yes, it is an age of luxurious living for the average American family — with emphasis upon taste, imagination and ingenuity rather than upon unlimited means.

SMALL MODEL MAKES NEWS IN ELECTRIC WATER HEATERS

A new model of electric water heater can deliver a whopping 470 gallons of clean hot water every 24 hours, but is only a slim, trim 24 inches wide.

In either the round or tabletop 40-gallon size, it fits neatly into a small closet. In modern one-floor house plans, it may be installed near the appliances which require an ample supply of hot water, thus avoiding long and expensive pipe runs.

The tabletop model, if placed in the kitchen between cabinets, will furnish four square feet of extra porcelain work surface.

A Good Idea

It is not alone in the large, expensive appliances that strides are being made toward convenience and efficiency. The trend shows up constantly in all items connected with home-making. As an example, this steel cabinet (a vegetable storage unit with pull-out shelves) has a ventilated door to permit good circulation of air, and matches other base cabinets.

Out-of-Door Lighting Adds Hours of Summer Pleasure

Here Is How to Show Off Flowers, Enjoy Games, Add to Gaiety of Parties With Proper Lighting.

LIGHTING an out-of-door space for summer living is like adding a large, spacious room to your home. Gardens, terraces and other outside living space can add to the fun of warm-weather evenings and can make your home a better, more enjoyable place to live. Each year more families move out-of-doors from spring until autumn.

In the past, there has been just one handicap to this movement. In most cases, this healthful and enjoyable al fresco living has had to stop at sundown. Only a few homes have had the necessary lighting equipment to allow out-of-door living to continue after dark. But today, in the age of do-it-yourself, with the new simple and low-cost lighting equipment available, anybody can enjoy the lighting that makes night time out-of-door living possible. Much of the outside lighting equipment in use today is almost as easy to use as a portable lamp. It's fun to experiment with garden lighting, to try for new and unusual effects.

In addition to providing many extra hours of enjoyment, out-of-door lighting is a boon to the gardener. The person who grows really lovely flowers and bushes can show them off at night in dramatic ways that are impossible in the daylight. Much additional beauty can be added to the garden by the use of ingenious lighting.

Garden lighting also will provide safety as it helps to prevent accidents and, of course, discourages prowlers. With adequate lighting such activities as badminton, tennis, swimming, horseshoes, etc., can be carried on long into the evening.

Lighting for Cooking, Dining.

Cooking and dining out-of-doors has become a way of life for many families. It adds a festive touch to what otherwise would be an average meal at home. Lighting for these activities will aid the cook and allow extra hours for enjoyment of a meal that will taste better because it is eaten under starry skies.

The barbecue pit can be lighted by the use of a portable out-of-door lighting fixture or by a two, 150-watt, Par-38 floodlamp mounted from 12 to 20 feet in the air on the opposite sides of the barbecue area.

The outside table can be lighted in many different ways. Plaster "bubbles" can be mounted from a tree limb three to five feet over the table. If a lawn umbrella is over the table, a bullet fixture mounted, facing upward, on the umbrella pole will make the umbrella a thing of beauty, plus lighting the table.

And for something that's really different, build a screen of plastic or muslin into a wooden frame about four feet square and hang it over the table about four to six feet. Light it with a Par-38 floodlamp, mounted four to six feet above the screen pointing down upon it. A color cap over the floodlamp will create an interesting effect.

Lighting Flowers.

With garden lighting, the beauty of the flowers can be shown many extra hours, enabling evening visitors to enjoy them. Garden lighting will create many new effects and with some creative effort the garden can be more beautiful after dark than in the daytime.

Flower beds should first have an over-all level of illumination so that the garden can present a unified picture. Then special lighting in the flower beds will provide "highlighting" effects. The over-all lighting can be provided by 150 watt, Par-38 floodlight lamp bulbs mounted on the house or on a pole 10 to 20 feet above the ground, one bulb for every 750 square feet of area.

Specific lighting to bring out the beauty of each flower bed can be provided in a variety of ways. The main thing to remember is to keep the light bulb sheltered from direct view. The bulb should light the flowers and bushes and not glare in the eyes.

The popular mushroom type of fixture will provide a 6-to-10-foot circle of light, and will add sparkle to any group of flowers. Because of their good design, they do not detract from the daytime appearance of the gardes. Flower beds that are planted next to the house can be silhouetted by placing 150 watt, Par-38 floodlamp bulbs a foot or two away from the wall, shining almost parallel to the wall. If a tree is located near an especially nice flower bed, a Par-38 spotlight lamp bulb mounted 15 to 20 feet in the tree will bring out all the beauty of the flowers.

Lighting for Sports.

Lighting for out-of-door sports and games means many more hours of enjoyment for every person in the family. Games such as badminton, horseshoes, croquet and tennis can all be played at night if the area is properly lighted.

The equipment needed for sports lighting is fairly simple. Par-38 flood and spot light bulbs mounted between 16 and 26 feet in the air on telescopic poles, placed strategically around the playing area, will do quite an adequate lighting job. Net games, such as badminton, should have a pole holding at least three flood lamps, placed three feet from each end of the net.

Party Lighting.

For that lawn or barbecue party when special lighting effects are needed, pull out the outdoor Christmas lights. Christmas lights can be put to many fascinating uses during the summertime. They can be strung through the trees for parties, or they can be concealed in flower beds for a really unusual effect.

For a party decoration that is really something new, buy some colored balloons. Blow one up, then wet the lip of the balloon and slip it over one of the Christmas bulbs. The tight fit of the lip will prevent air from leaking from the balloon, and surprisingly enough, the heat from the bulb does not break the balloon.

When all the bulbs have been treated in a similar manner, the string of lights can then be strung around the party area or even gathered together like a cluster of grapes, and you will have a party decoration that will be a subject of conversation for a long time to come.

Underground Wiring.

For permanent lights, install underground wiring directly to the fixture or to an outlet box where portable fixtures can be plugged. For temporary lighting, weatherproof outlets can be located in the garden by the use of spiked outlets that have extension cords which can be run to the nearest outlet.

A reminder: Caution should be taken to have the current turned off when changing or experimenting with equipment.

Take Life Easy—With Small Appliances

You will use these mealtime helpers more frequently if you keep them within easy reach.

THIS ONE HABIT CAN LIGHTEN YOUR LOAD

There is a basic group of about 30 electric housewares items that can help lighten the housekeeping load and contribute to the pleasure and leisure of modern living, if you acquire the habit of using them regularly.

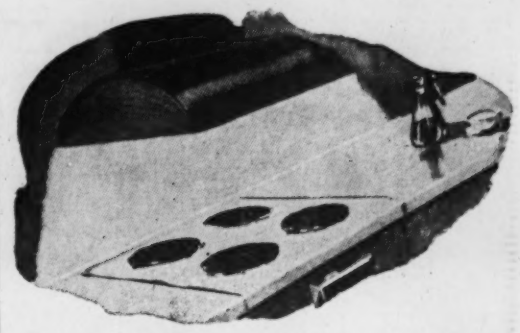

Obviously, these small appliances must be really used and used regularly if they are to be of service; too often they are stored away on a top shelf and brought out once or twice a month.

Do plan to keep them within easy reach so that it will not be a project to use them. Open shelves or right on the work counters are the ideal spots to place them. Or utilize roomy shelves in the dinette or within reach of the snack bar, so that toaster, coffee maker, roll warmer and waffle iron will be right there when you want them for breakfast or snack. Some may be hung right on the wall (see illustration on the cover of this section).

Roasters, broilers, waffle irons and sandwich grills meet today's work-and-time-saving needs.

Toasters, hot plates and corn poppers round out, but by no means complete, the list of electric housewares that can simplify your life.

Important 'Extra' in Kitchen

Cooking odors are quickly whisked away with a ventilating hood over the range. Lighting for range surface is built in.

Today's kitchen is not complete without the ventilation assured by a properly selected kitchen fan. The rapid elimination of cooking odors and heat adds immeasurably to kitchen comfort.

Tests by the United States Testing Laboratories have shown that approximately 400 pounds per year of grease and grime are given off in the average kitchen.

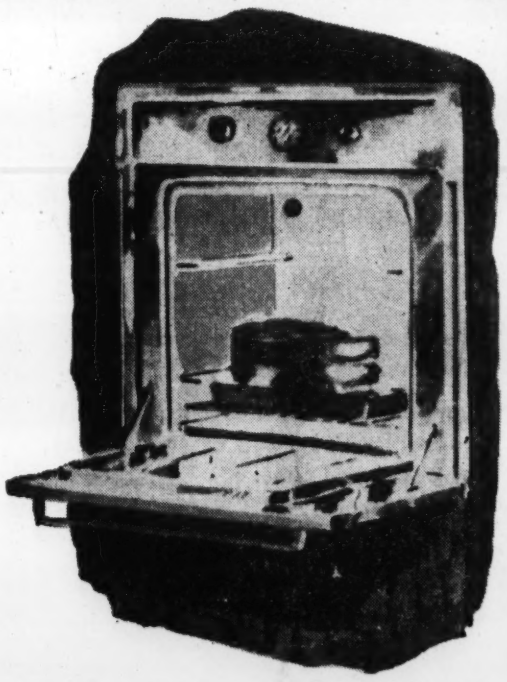

Modern dwellings with small cubical space are greatly bothered by odor spread. A kitchen fan will not only eliminate odor spread, but will also remove kitchen heat and make the kitchen a far more comfortable working place.

There is a special need for an exhaust fan where open planning includes the kitchen with other rooms. But any kitchen can be more pleasant if it is cleared by a fan.

Wall cabinets are available for any size fan which is necessary to do the particular job. Steel hoods connected with the fan often are used over the range, and fumes are drawn out through a wall duct.

The hoods and fan cabinets are built to match the rest of the kitchen, and can be planned to add a decorative touch as well as to do a utilitarian job.

Electronic Oven, Newest Aid of All

No story on modern "easy living" would be complete without mention of the newest miracle of all—the electronic oven which promises to revolutionize olr cookery methods and reduce meal preparation to a matter of minutes, with high-frequency radio waves performing such feats as cooking a four-pound rolled roast of beef in 20 minutes.

USE STERLING SILVER DAILY TO KEEP IT BEATUIFUL

Call it luxurious living, or gracious living—the name isn't important, but the spirit is the thing. It simply means making every single day as pleasant as possible, filled with the beauty of simple things.

Take, for example, the matter of table silver. If you own sterling silver, do use it regularly. Silver is to be used, not to be stored away in a drawer and brought forth only for parties or holidays. Use it and enjoy it every day, and at every meal.

Jewelers and silversmiths advise the constant use of sterling—not only because it adds to your daily pleasure, but because it is a basic factor in its care. If it is used, handled, washed and dried daily, or several times a day, it will collect less tarnish and discoloration than if it is stored away.

Its regular use also encourages the development of patina, that lovely soft finish which is characteristic of fine silver. This soft, grayed sheen comes from use and care. The tiny scratches which are a normal part of use will only add to its beauty, but of course care should be taken to avoid deep scratches and nicks.

How Is This for Luxury?

That fresh, fluffy towel right out of the dryer and still warm is just the thing to wrap up in after a bath. This is just one reason why some families are putting the laundry in the second-floor bathroom. The dryer unit may serve as a storage cabinet where clothes accumulate in the wash-and-wear cycle.

Kitchens With 'Character' Part of New Way of Life

Trend Is Toward Warm and Homey Feeling; Wood Cabinets May Be Answer to Remodeling Problems.

TODAY'S trend toward luxurious living has placed special emphasis upon the decor of the kitchen. This utilitarian room now has a character all its own, often with a period flavor reminiscent of a European or Early American "heart of the home." Cafe curtains, white brick walls, the mellow glow of wooden cabinets and furniture all add to this warm and homey feeling.

Many a kitchen in an older home is being given a new lease on life through remodeling which makes it both more convenient and more livable.

But modernizing an older kitchen is far different from installing a kitchen in a new home, according to home remodeling experts.

They point out that in a new home the kitchen is architecturally integrated into the overall plan. The plumbing and wiring are situated in the right places, and the kitchen cabinets and appliances are prescribed by the architects to fit into precisely-measured areas.

In an old home, there are space and installation problems that a remodeler might encounter. The kitchen may be too small, calling for inclusion of a pantry or adjoining room into the kitchen scheme.

There may be a recess in the wall, or a jog for a chimney. The doors and windows may be badly situated, or there may be too many of them, dating from the days before modern wall cabinets and base units necessitated ample wall space.

In most cases, the plumbing or wiring cannot be relocated because of the expense, so the new kitchen plan must begin with the existing facilities.

Such rooms present a real challenge—but not a problem which cannot be solved. There are many ways of coping with such difficulties.

Factory-produced wood cabinets may be the answer, and provide a decorative note as well. There are dozens of cabinet styles manufactured today, each available in a choice of sizes. Some of the cabinets serve special needs, as in the case of a broom closet or mixer cabinet, while others, appearing like standard base units, actually have "engineered insides" for added special storage for such items as utensils, linens, staples or vegetables.

The variety of cabinets solves most space and storage problems, but when one still remains the workability of wood may provide the answer.

If a foot or so of space must be filled, a filler unit can be made to fit exactly, possibly having vertical racks for storing trays. If the old wall is irregular, wood cabinets can always be installed on furring strips.

Emphasis is placed upon the beauty of the natural grain of wood where the remodeling is keyed to the modern trend of centering more family attention on the kitchen and developing an 'open plan" arrangement by building a pass through to an adjoining dining room or actually removing a section of wall. When the kitchen is visible from other areas of the home, the furniture-like appearance of wood cabinets completes the picture.

Control Noise, Home Will Be More Pleasant

Studies of the ill effects of noise in the home reveal that nerve fatigue is increasing rapidly among families as a result of modern ways of living. National tests show that from 35% to 40% of common noise-producers are found in today's home, compared with 25% of common noise-source discovered there by researchers half a dozen years ago.

Inevitably, excessive and unnecessary noise has a detrimental effect on human health and happiness. Noise increases blood pressure, quickens the pulse, upsets the normal rhythm of the heart and results in nerve exhaustion and strain.

Household Noises.

Blaring television sets, whirring household appliances, humming air conditioners, the reverberating echo of footsteps, conversation and meal preparation in open-plan living-kitchen areas are just a few of the new noises that originate in today's home.

Added to the list of hundreds of other noise-producers in and about the house, the total impact of their innumerable reverberating sound waves can be an actual danger to health, according to medical authorities.

Selection of sound-insulating and sound-muffling materials by a home owner who is building, remodeling or decorating his home will help cut down irritating noises, says the Construction Research Bureau, national clearing house for building information.

Points to Check.

Here are practical ways to reduce home noises:

1. If a mechanical appliance is noisy, have it checked and put into order.

2. Put rubber pads or other resilient material under and behind vibrating equipment, and make sure it is standing level.

3. Acoustical tile on playroom and basement workshop ceilings helps absorb noise.

4. Oil motors, tighten fan belts and rattling metal inclosures; strap down vibrating pipes and secure loose heating ducts.

5. Installation of resilient tile flooring on floors throughout the house will help muffle and absorb the sound of traffic and provide underfoot resiliency and comfort.

6. Close the noise-conducting cracks of loose-fitting connecting doors by tacking strips of felt or rubber along the edges.

7. Play TV and radio softly.

8. Increase thickness of window glass, or install double windows.

9. Replace noisy telephone bells with a buzzer, loud door bells with chimes.

10. If noise penetrates partition walls, install a second wall of cork tile.

MODERN SYNTHETIC COLORS 100 YEARS OLD IN 1956

This year modern colors are 100 years old.

Until the discovery of synthetic aniline dyes in 1856 all colors were obtained only from animal and vegetable sources.

But chemical research has developed a wide range of synthetic colors, and color has become the most versatile of all home decorative factors, says the Construction Research Bureau, national clearing house for building information.

Air-Conditioner Does Far More Than Just Cool Air

Many Advantages to Yearlong Use; Predicted Changes Appliance Will Make in Future Way of Life.

TODAY the room conditioner in the window is as conspicuous a sign of good living as the foremast of a TV antenna on the roof. Yet even with such growing enthusiasm there is a popular misconception that the sole function of air-conditioning is the cooling of air in the home. In reality, persons using air-conditioners for cooling only are missing many of the benefits built into units for year-round comfort.

The quick increases in public demand for air conditioning (and figures show that these increases are phenomenal) indicate that important changes in our everyday living habits are taking place. Synthetic fabrics and lighter colors for furnishings, considered "impractical" several years ago, are now commonly used and add much to the air of luxuriousness in our homes. Blueprints for new houses stress informal at-home living and uncluttered furniture arrangements. Even the kitchen, most-used room in many homes, is changing shape, color and character.

The importance of clean air, particularly to those living in urban areas, is just being fully realized. Strangely enough, most persons complain in a restaurant if they find a speck of dust in a glass of water; yet they think nothing of breathing almost two pounds of dirt every week from non-filtered air.

Restriction to summer use of air conditioning denies the user the many advantages offered during the other seasons of the year—advantages for which he has paid. During the spring and autumn it will provide clean, filtered, silently circulated, dust-free, pollen-free air during the days when neither heating nor cooling is required, and in winter filtered ventilated air or filtered and re-circulated air.

Units with heater coils, or of the reverse cycle or heat pump type, will supply heating during the many mild days with chilly mornings and evenings, and save the operation of the central heating plant.

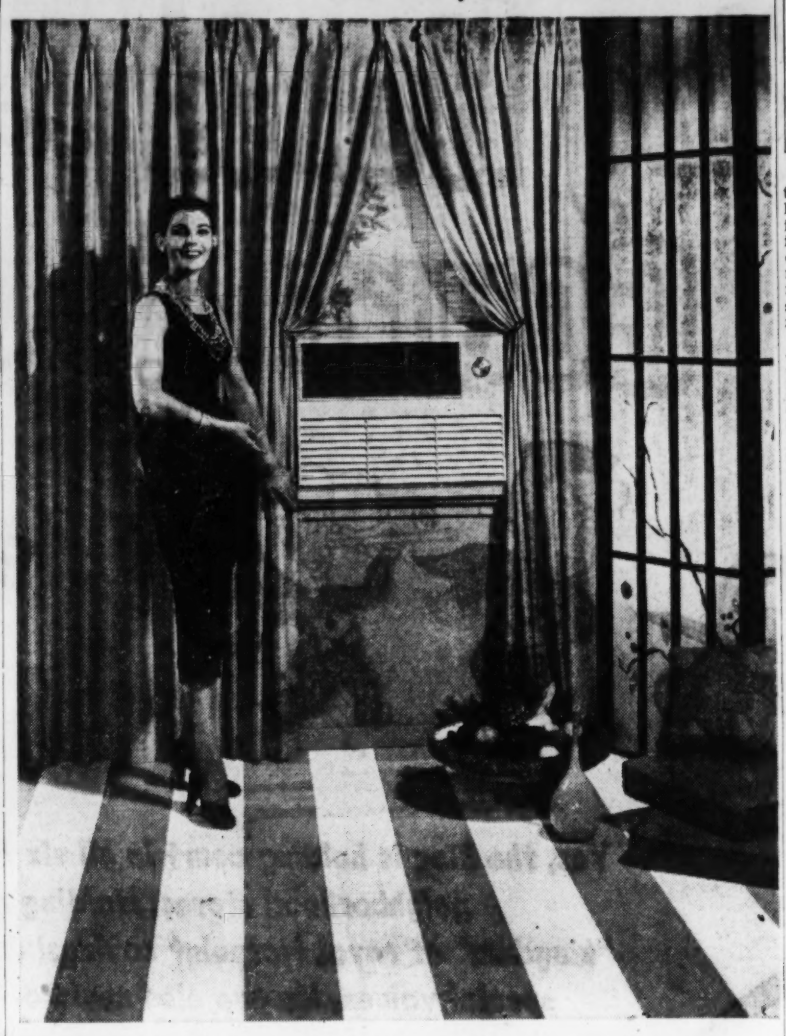

The air conditioner also may be of help in special cases, where members of the family suffer from allergies and heart ailments. Hay fever and asthma sufferers may find a measure of relief when pollen and dust are removed by air conditioning; moderate temperatures and a quieter home may be helpful to those with heart conditions.

Looking into the future, air conditioning experts believe growing acceptance of home air conditioning will cause basic changes in the everyday living habits of many American families.

They cite as a modern paradox the fact that man has invented thousands of machines and home appliances for greater comfort and convenience, but still puts up with the whims of the weather. Of course no man will ever change the outside weather, but he certainly is "doing something about the weather" indoors.

Air-conditioned living of the future in homes, factories and offices will, it is predicted, probably increase home entertaining (look what television did in this field), change clothing fashions, menu planning (nourishing hot meals in July and August), home design (more insulation, white roofs to reflect heat), revolutionize interior decorating still more than it has done to date, and bring about new vacation schedules planned for convenience and not dictated by the weather.

An Ideal Combination—Style and Comfort

It is a common complaint among women that you can't have comfort and style at the same time. If the shoe is smart, it hurts; if the earring is impressive, it inevitably pinches. But the twain have met in an air-conditioner which has been fashion-styled from a woman's viewpoint. The compact unit can be installed flush with the inside window sill; no mechanical controls are visible and traverse draperies may be closed to conceal the air-conditioner when not in use. These three-fourths and one horsepower units are available in light beige, gray, powder blue or black, with a choice of several accent colors.

Home Freezer Solves Problem For Hostess

Luxurious living is something to be shared; the very words have a connotation of hospitality. Entertainment in the home is one of the strongest trends of this era, and one of the nicest. And surely the home freezer has simplified and streamlined the serving of refreshments to guests.

Even if you are the rare cook who thinks nothing of mincing, blending and simmering a dozen ingredients to make just one gourmet sauce, you want to do so at your convenience.

There is no way to escape the fact that good food takes time to prepare—but a freezer makes it possible to arrange this time to suit yourself.

It is a wise woman who uses her freezer with hospitality in mind. Is there an anniversary of birthday in the offing? Then you can bake a very special cake when you are in the mood; it will be as beautiful and taste just as good when it is served as it did the day you baked it.

Frozen desserts have a festive air, they are fun to make and fun to serve. And they can be stored quite satisfactorily in your freezer.

Does entertaining bring endless demands for ice cubes? No problem at all; just keep bags of extra ice cubes on hand in the freezer.

Do you pride yourself upon your attractive appetizers and fancy tea sandwiches? They will be even more lovely to behold if you make them when you are relaxed and freeze them, rather than putting them together in a hurry on the day of the party.

Do friends drop in unexpectedly? Have some frosted cupcakes and a few extra cans of frozen juice concentrates for long, cool drinks in the freezer.

Is most of your entertaining on an informal scale? Then make a large batch of your own specialty such as spaghetti sauce, chow mein or chili, package in several containers and freeze.

Top News

Top-of-range cooking has taken on a new look; automatically controlled surface units have launched us upon a new cooking era.

"Bring to a boil, reduce heat and continue cooking until done" will soon be as obsolete as testing the oven temperature "by the feel of the heat to the hand," thanks to a unit in your new electric range which frees you from pot watching and burned pots.

This new unit cooks everything from the most delicate puddings to the crispest golden-fried chicken at the proper heat, and then shuts itself off automatically.

The secret is the button in the center of the unit that senses the temperature of the utensil and its contents, automatically controlling the flow of heat throughout the entire cooking process.

WASHER PLAYS BIG ROLE IN EASY LIVING

Is your automatic washer doing everything that it is able, and quite willing, to do to add to your "easy living"?

It washes your clothes, of course—but do you also use it to tint your washables, blue them, bleach them, starch them?

The modern automatic washers are truly amazing, but they must be used correctly if they are to give you all of the services that they should. One new model, for instance, will automatically give:

A hot wash with a cold rinse; a hot wash with a warm rinse; a warm wash with a warm rinse; a warm wash with a cold rinse; a partial fill for small loads; a normal fill for regular size loads; a normal cycle for everyday items; a delicate cycle for man-made fibers or lightly soiled cottons.

Which means, of course, that you can use it for anything from your most filmy lingerie to Dad's gardening clothes (it will even spin the sand out of the latter by centrifugal force during the first spin following the wash period).

Miss Buschman Becomes Bride

THE WEDDING of two organists and choir directors took place Monday, July 2, at the Church of Pope St. Pius V when Miss Mary Ruth Buschman became the bride of Jean Anthony Dargis. Until her marriage the bride was organist and choirmistress of the church. The bridegroom is organist and choirmaster at the Church of the Holy Childhood in St. Paul, Minn.

The Rev. Joseph T. Schejbal performed the ceremony which was followed by a special high mass sung by the St. Pius children's choir who were vested in white robes and carried blue chant books. The music for the mass was brought here by the bride last summer from the Abbey of St. Pierre de Solesmes in France, where she and her husband met while both were taking advanced courses in ecclesiastical music.

After the mass breakfast was held in the church hall where a reception was given in the evening. The former Miss Buschman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond L. Buschman of Baltimore, made her home in St. Louis for eight years at 5850 Roberts avenue.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Edward Theodore Haase Jr. (Jane Elizabeth Woodman), a bride of July 7, maid of honor, and Miss Mildred Kenny, bridesmaid, who wore white chiffon with pearl headpieces and carried blue delphinium. The bride wore tulle over creamy satin with a pearl-embroidered scalloped neckline and a gathered tulle skirt. Her veil was attached to a pearl crown and she carried a satin-bound prayer book covered with stephanotis.

Mr. Dargis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Dargis of Minneapolis, chose Leroy Piche of Minneapolis as best man and Francis X. Buschman, Oswego, N. Y., the bride's brother; Edward Dolan and James Clancy as ushers. Both Mrs. Buschman and Mrs. Dargis were here for the wedding.

The bride attended Peabody Conservatory of Music, Baltimore, and Columbia University and was graduated from Manhattanville College of the Sacred Heart. In addition to her work at the church she also taught music at Loretto Academy and Maryville College.

Mr. Dargis attended St. John's University, Collegeville, Minn., and received his music education at MacPhail Conservatory of Music, Minneapolis, and the Gregorian Institute of America, Toledo, O., and did advance work at Quarr Abbey on the Isle of Wight and at St. Pierre. He is professor of choral music at St. Anthony High School in Minneapolis where he also teaches Latin.

Vacation Homes for Summer Visitors

—Miami Beach News Bureau.

Luxurious hotels line Miami Beach's oceanfront, providing vacation homes for thousands of summer visitors to the Florida resort. Economy of accommodations is one of the major attractions from May to November.

BOAT SIGHTSEEING TRIPS POPULAR IN MIAMI AREA

Sightseeing by boat is one of the most popular pastimes among Miami's summer visitors. A great variety of trips are offered by the boats operating out of the City Yacht Basin adjacent to downtown Bayfront Park.

Attractions vary from a cruise along "Millionaire's' Row" on residential islands in Biscayne Bay, to a trip in a glass-bottomed boat over the sea gardens on the ocean reefs just offshore.

There are moonlight cruises with dancing aboard; trips up the Miami river with stops at Indian villages; a half-day sailing trip in a catamaran, with Polynesian entertainers and swimming from the ship; and visits to such bayside attractions as Villa Vizcaya, the Dade County Art Museum, and the Miami Seaquarium on Virginia Key.

Marlin Tournament.

Approximately one hundred boats are expected to participate in this year's edition of the Greater Atlantic City Marlin Tournament, Aug. 1, 2, and 3.

SIGHTSEEING EXTRA

For the first time in six years the nation's third oldest city—Michigan's Sault Ste. Marie—will open the "upper park" that parallels the world-famed "Soo" Locks. From this point tourists will be able once again to watch the giant lake freighters as they make their way through the locks.

A Plan of Things to Do For Week in Miami Beach

Day-by-Day Schedule Includes Plenty of Activities for Cost of Approximately One Hundred Dollars.

First, there is the hotel bill. This can be figured for as little as $19 a week per person, two in a room, for six nights and seven days. For this the visitor obtains lodgings on the oceanfront with a swimming pool at his disposal and probably private beach facilities. Add three dollars a day and many hotels will provide breakfast and dinner.

It is possible, of course, to obtain modern, comfortable hotel rooms for as little as $25 a week, double, within a block or two of the beach, where swimming is free and the coconut palms provide spots of breeze-cooled shade for relaxing while not splashing in the surf.

If a European plan hotel is chosen, the Miami Beach vacationer has numerous restaurants from which to choose, with prices in line with those anywhere in the country. Visitors planning a stay of several weeks may select a furnished apartment where meals can be prepared. Apartments offer as wide a choice in luxury and in economy as do the hotels and many have swimming pools on the grounds. Now, for things to do.

First day: Swim during the morning, being careful not to take too much sun; no cost. Relax during the afternoon, take a short walk and do some window shopping, no cost. International League baseball at night, box seats $2, down to 75 cents for bleacher seats.

Second day: Try the pool or the beach again in the morning; there's no better way to forget for a while that job back home. After lunch take a sightseeing boat cruise through the city's inland waterways and you will have a fine view of Miami Beach, cost $2.50. Attend a concert at one of the civic centers during the evening, no cost.

Third day: In the morning loosen up with an hour or two of tennis on one of the fine municipal clay courts, cost 25 cents per person per hour. Swim and have a nap after lunch, no cost. Take a night club tour (8:30 to 2 a.m.), cost $10 including transportation, tips. You will visit three clubs and see their shows.

Fourth day: Beach or pool in the morning, no cost. Pick up some souvenirs during the afternoon. If it is Sunday, go to the Pop concert in the municipal auditorium, cost $2.50 for the best seat in the house.

Fifth day: Try a round of golf over one of the 18-hole municipal courses during the morning, cost $1.50. Have a swim in the afternoon. Go on a party fishing boat at night, cost $3.

Sixth day: Take a sightseeing bus tour on the mainland. Several different tours are available at a cost of $5 or less. If you have your camera, take it by all means.

Seventh day: Swim in the morning, no cost. Maybe another sightseeing trip in the afternoon, by bus or blimp, cost $5. Night club dancing for the evening and the week is gone, all too quickly in the glamorous, tropic island atmosphere of this famed playland.

Cheyenne's Frontier Days Rodeo Last Week in July

Wyoming stages more than 50 rodeos every summer for the visitor to enjoy. Here Casey Tibbs rides high, wide and handsome aboard a snorting bronc at Cheyenne's Frontier Days, claimed to be the world's largest out-of-door rodeo, held annually the last full week of July.

According to the Rodeo Cowboys' Assoc. statistics, some 13,000,000 persons watch and enjoy rodeos in America each year.

Known as "The Daddy of 'Em All," the Frontier Days rodeo is held every year the last full week in July in the Cowboy State's capital city, Cheyenne. It features some of the world's toughest stock and top performers and, as do most Wyoming rodeos, includes parades, Oglala Sioux Indian dances, and street square dancing.

Last year an estimated 100,000 fans witnessed Frontier Days thrills; another 100,000 watched such other outstanding rodeos as the Sheridan Pow Wow, the Cody Stampede, Lander Pioneer Days, and the Casper Night Rodeo.

The thrills of watching a rodeo include seeing a rugged "waddie" top off a wild-eyed bronc, twist and throw a snorting steer, ride the heaving hurricane deck of a vicious Brahma bull, or neatly drop a lariat over the bobbing head of a zig-zag running calf.

Vacationers who are dude-ranching in Wyoming probably will have the opportunity to not only see a rodeo, but participate in one as well. Dude ranches all over the state feature "back-yard" rodeos at least once a week. The ranch hands show guests how to do it—then let them try it themselves.

A Wyoming vacation trip may well include not only the Yellowstone National Park, the Grand Tetons, Devil's Tower, but several of the state's more than 50 top rodeos of the West.

Lazy Hours

—Union Pacific R.R.

Lazy hours suntanning beside the pool are part of every day's fun at Sun Valley. Riding, golf and fishing are among the other sports at the Idaho mountain resort.

NEW HAMPSHIRE FISHING

New Hampshire has close to a hundred lakes and ponds that offer good fishing for smallmouth bass.

The total combined length of the shoreline of the five largest bass lakes — Winnipesaukee, Winnisquam, Squam, Sunapee and Ossippee—is 241 miles—enough casting room to keep the most enthusiastic fisherman busy all season!

FRENCH RIVIERA VISIT FOR FIVE DOLLARS A DAY

You can bathe in the aura of the glories of Cannes, top resort on the French Riviera for as little as five dollars a day. This tidy piece of information is offered to you should your desire to venture there this summer be tempered by the fact that you still have seven years to go on your mortgage. Fact it, the French Government Tourist Office reports, you can do the whole thing for $35 a week, and that includes room, meals and entertainment.

Of course your quarters will be modest ones, but these suggestions are strictly for those whose only choice is to travel moderately, or not to travel at all.

The day's budget shapes up something like this:

Hotel: 450 francs ($1.29) plus 20% (26c) for service and taxes. Total: $1.55. Double rooms are only 600 francs ($1.71), so you can effect even greater savings if there are two. These hotels have clean comfortable rooms, without private bath, but with running water, and are patronized by many Scandinavian and British tourists with limited funds.

Meals: French go in for coffee and croissant breakfasts, which are available for about 150 francs (42 cents). You can enjoy meals consisting of wine, soup, main dish and dessert for 400 francs ($1.14) for lunch and dinner. Add 10% service charge —$2.97 for the day.

Beach: Sun, sea and beach are free.

Casino: Also free for entry. You can watch the "big money" visitors wager thousands, which is sometimes as much fun, and a good deal safer than risking your own.

Which leaves you with 168 francs, or 48 cents left over from your $5.00-a-day-schedule.

PIONEER VALLEY A LOVELY SECTION IN MASSACHUSETTS

The Pioneer Valley, comprising Hampden, Franklin and Hampshire counties in western Massachusetts, is a happy combination of the nostolgic past and the streamlined present.

This part of the Connecticut river valley affords hundreds of early American landmarks, panoramic vistas for photographers, charming New England inns, modern hotels and motels.

This region has 16 state forests and parks, abounding with camping, picnicing and all other summer sport facilities.

A complimentary package containing a new travel guide, illustrated map and points of interest sheets may be obtained upon request to the Pioneer Valley Assoc., Route 5, Holyoke, Massachusetts.

Lobster hunting at night along coral beaches and in crystal clear water is one of the popular diversions of Caneel Bay Plantation on St. John in the U.S. Virgin Islands.

WATER SKI SHOW AT LAKE OZARK, MO.

LAKE OZARK, Mo.—One of Missouri's most distinctive "special events" is found here in the form of the Ozark Water Ski Show—which is now in its second year.

The Ozark Water Ski Show offers that "something different" which adds to the visitor's pleasure—and to Missouri's vacation variety. The show offers all the thrills of water skiing—and water skiing, as you probably know, is one of the nation's fastest-growing sports.

Shown twice daily, at 2:30 and 8:30 p.m., the show includes barefoot skiing, clowns, water ballet, human pyramids, aqua ballerinas, ramp jumping (80 to 90 feet going 40 miles an hour off a six-foot high ramp), and jumping speed boats.

Add to this the colorful costuming and the colored lighted effects at the night performance, and you've got a show well worth seeing.

Most of the stars come from this area. They've learned water skiing within a short time—and they've learned expertly enough to present a professional type of show.

There are, all told, six girls and five boys in the cast.

The area itself, of course, offers many other attractions—speedboating, swimming, horseback riding, seaplane rides, excursion boats, sightseeing and fishing. It's an ideal place for a vacation—or a weekend trip.

OLD TRADITIONAL SPORT REVIVED IN BARBADOS

The Crop Over, one of Barados oldest traditional sports, has been revived on the British West Indies Island.

Originally an end of harvest celebration with the burning of an effigy known as "Hard Times," today's Crop Over is an exciting sporting occasion with goat, mule and donkey races held in the open country.

Some of the donkey cart races are reminiscent of Roman charioteers who competed in classic times for laurel palms.

Goat racing borrows largely from the local turf club and jockeys wear colors and caps identical with those of the horse-racing fraternity.

Other special events of tourist interest scheduled for the summer are the motor boat and water ski races off the Aquatic Club on Aug. 26 and the four-day summer meeting of the Barbados Turf Club at the Garrison Savannah on Aug. 4, 6, 11 and 18, according to The Barbados Publicity Committee.

MINNESOTA FORESTS FILLED WITH BEAUTY

North of the village of MacGregor, Minnesota in the heart of the Arrowhead region, lies a vast wilderness preserve known as the Savanna State Forest. This region of striking scenic beauty and historical background often takes a back seat to its "big sister" to the north, the Superior National Forest, but it covers an area of 300,000 acres of woods and water. Within its boundaries is a network of ancient Indian trails and historic portages, including the legendary Savanna Portage, famed highway of the red-belted voyageurs.

Near the village of Tamarack on U. S. 210, which skirts the southern border of this region, an enchanting county road follows an old Chippewa trail over heavily wooded hills and along winding rivers to the Big Sandy and Minnewawa lake region—long a favorite with fishermen. Although the Savanna is one of the most accessible of all Arrowhead vacation spots, most of it is still primitive and untouched—a wildlife sanctuary where deer and bear are frequently seen on the roads and along the shores of its lakes and streams. Modern, attractive resorts offer excellent facilities for sport and loafing.

—Minnesota Dept. of Business Development.

This young fawn poses quite willingly for the visitor's camera in his home deep in the seclusion of the Savanna State Forest, one of Minnesota's most primeval wilderness areas.

A short distance north of MacGregor, on state highway 65, is the village of Libby on the northwestern shore of Big Sandy Lake. Now nothing more than a crossroads with a couple buildings, Libby was once an important point on the trade route between Mississippi and the east under both French and British control.

As it was in those days, so today it is primarily an Indian village where many interesting and valuable relics of early Minnesota have been unearthed. The Indians have adopted most of the white man's ways and make their living principally by selling wild rice and tourist souvenirs.

The motorist who enjoys a little exploring will find this a most intriguing area—a wilderness of forest and lakes, tribal burial grounds and missions dating back to 1832. Try a drive around this area some day when the fish aren't biting and the family gets a little restless, it will be a most rewarding experience.

Oldest Settlement.

Ste. Genevieve, founded in 1735, is the oldest permanent settlement in Missouri. Many of its original buildings are still standing.

Family Fun in Michigan

—Michigan Tourist Colony.

Carefree, safe fun for all the family is one of the attractions of a vacation along Michigan's many miles of Great Lakes shoreline.

Real Flat Top.

One of the largest flat-topped mountains in the world is Mesa Verde in southwestern Colorado. Over 10,000 feet in elevation, this 53-acre area is so level it can be crossed anywhere by automobile.

The Cock Crows.

A statue of a six-foot fighting cock now graces a park in Sancti Spiritus, Cuba. By means of electrical equipment, its twice-a-day crows can be heard two and one-half miles away. The unusual monument honors Cuba's national sport — cock-fighting.

Working in Greenhouse

Mickey Cohen Insists He's Reformed Man

By John Beckley

Five years ago Mickey Cohen was a big—if mysterious—man in the rackets. After four years in prison on an income tax rap, his interest is tropical plants and the quiet life—he says. Here is a report on the start toward rehabilitation of a self-styled "rough-tough hoodlum"—as well as the skepticism some people feel.

LOS ANGELES, July 14 (AP).

THE MAN in the green smock looks like Mickey Cohen. Only who ever saw Mickey Cohen in a green smock? Sharply cut $200 suits were more in the little mobster's line when he was a familiar figure at coroner's inquests interested in the sudden deaths of his friends and associates. Monogrammed silk shirts were his pride before he was packed off to a Federal prison.

MICKEY COHEN . . . SOME PEOPLE ARE STILL SKEPTICAL.

But the man puttering around the begonias and philodendrons in a Los Angeles greenhouse is Mickey Cohen. He says he's trying, at 42, to start a new life.

"Just the other day," he said recently, "I got a call from a fella high up in gambling circles. 'How's the flower business?' he asks. I tell him it's not flowers, it's plants, but he don't know the difference."

" 'Look,' he says. 'Whatta ya fooling around with that stuff for?'

"Then he lays this proposition in front of me, but I tell him I'm not interested.

" 'Look,' he says. 'What's the score? You just doing this 'til your parole is up?' "

Mickey shrugged and spread his hands.

"That's what everybody thinks," he said.

It is not surprising that Mickey's passion for plants is viewed with skepticism. Michael's Tropical Plants, as his new endeavor is called, recalls an earlier Cohen venture, Michael's Exclusive Haberdashery. This shop on glamorous Sunset boulevard housed few items of clothing. It was headquarters for Cohen's other enterprises, the exact nature of which was never detailed. However, six times in a few short years Cohen was shot at or bombed—not because he sold someone an ill-fitting suit.

● Cohen always insisted he was strictly a gambler. Senator Estes Kefauver, however, claimed that every facet of West Coast racketeering he explored led him to Cohen.

Mickey was investigated by five Federal agencies and state, county and local authorities. But only the T-men came up with something that stuck. In 1951 Cohen was convicted of evading $156,000 in income taxes and sent to the penitentiary for five years. Mickey got a year off for good behavior, returned to Los Angeles last October. Police and public wondered what would happen.

In March, Lavonne, his wife of 16 years who had stuck with him through the violent days and his prison sentence, filed suit for divorce. She recently dismissed the suit, but it was a jolt at the time. It was after this that Mickey turned up in the greenhouse, partner in a landscaping and plant rental business.

"I just got my belly full of the life I used to live," he explained. "It used to cost me two-three hundred bucks to walk out on the street with all the bites put on me. Dinner, every night a couple of hundred bucks. Show you how crazy I was. I was going over my clothes after I got back and I found 600 pairs of socks, five to seven-fifty a pair, all with the labels still on.

"People all think I'm laying low until my parole is up in August. Well, today I'm satisfied sitting at home. I want a more relaxed way of life."

● COHEN GIVES a large share of the credit in carving out a new life for himself to his business partners, a brother and sister named Harmon Fisher and Mrs. Ruth Benson, and to Cal Meador, head of the Southern California Division of the Federal Probation Department.

COHEN AND HIS WIFE, LAVONNE . . . SHE SUED FOR DIVORCE, THEN CHANGED HER MIND.

Fisher and his sister became interested in Cohen because of Cohen's contributions to Israel during its war with the Arabs. He raised large sums of money by staging gambling affairs throughout the country, and put his influence to work in other helpful ways.

When his tax troubles landed him in jail, Mrs. Benson and her brother wrote to him. That launched a correspondence and when he came home they offered him a job.

"I didn't know a camellia from a coathanger when I came in on this," said Cohen, "but I'm learning."

Mickey's problems are mainly financial, since he still owes the Government the back taxes he was convicted of evading. But the ex-gambler is confident he will come out all right. His supervision ends Aug. 4.

"I'm a little bit skeptical of all people," Meador said the other day. "In 26 years I've handled the cases of about 50,000 men and women. But once in a while something so outstanding comes along, a feeling so deep, that skepticism has to take a back seat. This, I think, is one of those cases.

"Mickey Cohen is becoming a very worthwhile individual."

Things Are Booming in Missouri's State Parks as More and More People Pitch Tents for Vacations; It's Inexpensive, the Living Easy and Appetites Huge

By Dickson Terry

AN IDEAL way to enjoy nature and relax the nerves is to go camping, and nothing relaxes the nerves so completely as putting up a tent. Some people, tenderfeet of course, may have trouble putting up a tent the first time out, but there's really nothing to it, if you follow a few simple rules.

One type of tent consists of what appears to be several hundred square yards of disorganized canvas and three poles. Two of the poles support the tent at either end, for which reason they are known as end poles. The third is the ridge pole, and the trick is to get these poles connected and then somehow get the canvas on top of them.

This is done by putting the metal pins in the ends of the end poles through some holes in the ends of the ridge pole, and then maneuvering yourself and the poles under the canvas. Then, with a steady hand and cool head, you slowly raise the whole works into position.

About halfway up, one end pole will fall to the left, the other will immediately decide to fall to the right, and the whole thing will collapse with you beneath it. Most campers manage to fight their way out before they suffocate.

The next step, assuming you have fought your way out alive, is to corral the nearest Boy Scout. I happened to have one handy in the person of my 12-year-old son, John, who had been leaning against a nearby tree watching the old man with thinly veiled scorn and some amusement.

You say to him, "All right, you're so smart. Let's see you put it up." He does, in exactly three minutes and 28 seconds, and you have learned one of the fundamental rules of good camping, which is never be without a Boy Scout.

I became an authority on putting up tents and the like when I went camping one night recently in the interest of sociological research.

Camping out, according to word which reached this office from the National Association of Travel Organizations (known as the other NATO) has increased about 75 per cent over the country in the last three years. The chief reason being that it has become one of the answers to the vacation problem of the family with automobile, appliance, mortgage, furniture and other payments to make, not to mention several kiddies to provide for.

THIS, I said, is the story of my life, and I immediately rented a tent and headed for Meramec State Park where I camped out for two days and a night. The economic value of the trip is a little hard to measure because when I got back I still had the automobile, furniture and mortgage payments to make and several kiddies to provide for, but I did learn a lot about camping out.

Here in Missouri, for instance, according to the Missouri State Park Board, camping has doubled since 1952. And since 1950, when the present camping urge seems to have started, there has been an increase of more than 250 per cent.

In 1950, the number of camping parties who checked in and out of Missouri's state parks numbered 7200. Last year there were 24,238, and this year, according to Joseph Jaeger Jr., director of parks, and according to the way things are going, it should come close to 30,000.

Economically speaking, the big advantage to camping out lies in the fact that once you have made your primary investment in the form of camping equipment, the rest comes pretty cheap, amounting mainly to the cost of the gasoline to get you there and back and the cost of the food after you get there.

But as several camping families told me, "Don't be too quick to underestimate the cost of food because, man, you really eat out here."

THE primary investment, again according to NATO, is placed at around $150, but that again is subject to circumstance. That figure, for instance, will include an umbrella tent for two, but if you've got a big tribe you're going to need bigger and more expensive tents, with other equipment in proportion.

Of Missouri's 26 state parks, 19, we learned, have camping facilities, and in parks like Meramec you had better not go on a weekend if you want to camp anywhere near the river. While some have more facilities than others, camping in none of the parks is exactly primitive. So if you are thinking of camping in terms of entering the forest with nothing but a blanket, a can of beans and man's natural supremacy over nature, forget it. It isn't done that way any more.

We chose Meramec State Park, which is near Sullivan and only about 65 miles from St. Louis, has 7153 acres including a long stretch of the Meramec river, running water, rest rooms, permanent grills and tables, fire wood provided every night, and Superintendent Hugh Dill who never saw anything like the camping that's going on these days.

DILL, whose father before him worked at Meramec Park as game keeper, and whose brother, Les Dill, the cave entrepreneur, got his start there operating Fisher's cave, one of the features of the park, is a middle-aged man with the air of a rural host who just loves company.

"I never saw anything like it," he said. "It keeps getting bigger every year. This past month (June) we had an 88 per cent increase over last June. Why, one Sunday not long ago we had 180 camping parties in the park. They average four people to a party, so you can see how many campers we're getting. We had 1400 parties last July, so if this July increases like the month of June did, we're going to have a lot of campers."

Meramec Park has about two miles of camping area along the river, Dill explained, and several other camping areas away from the river. "With camping in all the parks," he said, "it's first come first served, so just drive around until you find a place you like and make yourself at home."

This being a Tuesday there weren't more than 40 or 50 camping parties in the park so we had no trouble finding a shaded spot overlooking the river, with a grill, a picnic bench, a trench which had been dug by a former tenant. There was a large stack of wood by the grill. Every evening at sundown, we were to learn, a park truck arrives and unloads a generous supply of wood for each tent. Campers are charged 50 cents a day per party.

When we had our tent up, thanks to the Boy Scout with which no camper should be without, we walked down the river some 50 yards to call on our nearest neighbors, who turned out to be three generations of the Renner family from St. Louis.

There was George Renner Jr. and his wife and three children, Barbara and John, who are teen-agers, and Susan, who is seven, and an 8-year-old niece, Donna. Then there was George Renner Sr., and Mrs. Renner, a gray-haired couple who are avid campers. George junior works for Anheuser-Busch and George senior works for Griesedieck Brewing Co.

George junior was busy working on a sleeping hammock which was strung between two trees. His son John was manning three fishing poles that were anchored to the bank with corks floating in the river, and the rest of the family was sitting around in the shade of the trees, just relaxing.

The Renners are old hands at camping, we learned, and their camp had just about all the comforts of home. There was a large tent which accommodated some of them, a trailer where others slept. The senior Renners bedded down each night in their new station wagon which, when the seats are folded down, makes a full length bed.

IN addition, they had a kitchen tent, which they had built themselves on a frame of steel rods. It had walls of canvas and netting so that it could be open to the breeze. In the area between the tents and river were plenty of folding chairs and camp stools.

"Everything fits into the trailer and station wagon," Renner junior explained.

The Renners had been camping out for five or six years now, they explained, and they live just about as comfortably as they do at home. They usually stay two weeks, sometimes three.

They get up about 5:30 in the morning except Sundays and rainy days.

"We eat the same things we eat at home," Mrs. Renner senior explained. "We have roasts and mashed potatoes and gravy, and for breakfast we have things like grapefruit and cantaloupe."

She does a great deal of the cooking and likes it.

LIKE most modern campers, the Renners have a gasoline stove, which is surprisingly efficient, and several gasoline lanterns. After supper at night they sit around and play dominoes, or make dough bait for the next day's fishing.

"The days go so fast," said Mrs. Renner junior, "you don't know what becomes of them."

As for the expense, "There is none once we're out here, except for food," Renner junior explained. "I guess that runs $8 to $10 a day, for all of us, and we eat well. It also includes beer and soda and a lot of things like candy for the kids.

"The only thing you have to watch out for is the raccoons. They'll come in at night and steal and eat everything that isn't locked up."

Our neighbors up the river turned out to be a party of three St. Louis families, the Armbruster brothers, Charles and Paul, and their families, and John Steurer and his family.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Armbruster and Mrs. Steurer were sitting in comfortable camp chairs, looking at the river and watching the rest of their party, some of whom were swimming, some trying to catch fish.

"Believe it or not," Armbruster said, "but up to three years ago I never went camping in my life. Now I do it all the time. And not just around here. Last year we went all the way to the Black Hils, and back through Wisconsin, camping all the way, and we've camped in just about every state park in Missouri."

ARMBRUSTER, a large man with graying hair and a genial manner, told me that his brother, Paul, got him started. "Paul bought a tent five or six years ago and went camping and liked it so well, he said to me, 'Why don't you try it?' We did, and the first thing I knew we owned a tent. It costs a lot less than any other kind of vacation; that is, after you've made your initial investment."

The Armbrusters now have two tents, three gasoline stoves, three gasoline lanterns, air mattresses and sleeping bags.

Said Mrs. Armbruster, "It's not exactly roughing it, you see. We like to camp near the water, and we just sit here in our rocking chairs and watch the kids, and the river flowing by. We go to bed when we want to, and get up when we want to. Sometimes we fish, but mostly we just relax."

A little farther up the river we found Al Simmonds and his wife and his sons, Jack and Glennon, who are 14 and 13 years old. Simmonds looked like the picture of ease and relaxation, dressed in shorts, sneakers and a long billed cap, leaning back in a camp chair with his feet on a picnic table, a can of beer in his hand, and gazing off at the river and the hills and woods beyond.

"Been coming here for several years," Simmonds said after he had waved us to a seat. "One of the best parks in the state, and I've camped in all of them. Last time we took a trip it cost me $8 to $12 a night just for a place to stay, not to mention our meals and other expenses. When we got home, I went right out and bought a tent. Guess I have about $100 to $125 invested.

"Here it doesn't cost us anything for room, and we spend $8 to $10 a day for food, which includes a lot of extras that we really could get along without, like beer and soda and candy. You could live down here for $5 or $6 a day. I've seen couples camp down here on three bucks a day, but we like to eat.

"Take my wife for instance, at home she never touches breakfast. Down here she gets up and eats pancakes and bacon and eggs."

Mrs. Simmonds, an attractive blonde, was busy washing out a few things and hanging them on a line stretched from the tent to a tree. She acknowledged that the outdoor life agreed with her.

"I never get bored," she said. I go walking, and watch the boys, and sometimes I go fishing with them. Another thing," she added, "it's good for boys. It keeps them out of trouble. When you take boys camping and fishing, they're not going to be getting into trouble."

As for the boys, they would be willing to stay all summer. Their parents sleep in an umbrella tent, and they sleep in pup tents.

"They're on the go all day," said Simmonds, "but me, I just sit and relax. That's what I come here for."

Last year some 20,000,000 people were relaxing the same way in state and national parks over the country, as compared to about 1,000,000 in 1950. And they spent about $150,000,00 for equipment.

ONE of the first rules of modern camping, we learned from talking to campers at Meramec State Park, is comfort. This applies to shelter, equipment, clothes and food.

The most popular tent nowadays is the umbrella tent, which is just what the name implies. It can be easily put up by one person, and comes in sizes which will sleep two, four or six people. The better ones have a canvas floor which is sewed to the tent, providing protection against insects, rodents and curious raccoons.

The day of sleeping on a hard cot with a couple of blankets is gone. If you want to get off the ground, a cot is all right, but with it most campers have a sleeping bag and under that a pneumatic mattress.

Nobody cooks over an open fire any more, except to grill steaks and things like that. Today's camp stoves have two and three burners, fold up compactly, and some even have folding ovens for more gracious camping

Lightweight aluminum and canvas chairs fold up and take little space. There is even a collapsible bathtub and a folding washstand with removable plastic bowl, for anyone who can't wash in the river. Gasoline lanterns, hung around on limbs, light up the camp site like your own living room. Even the old tin plates, cups and spoons we used to take camping have been replaced by plastic. Small iceboxes keep food fresh.

In addition to major equipment, according to campers like the Renners, there are a lot of little things you should never be without.

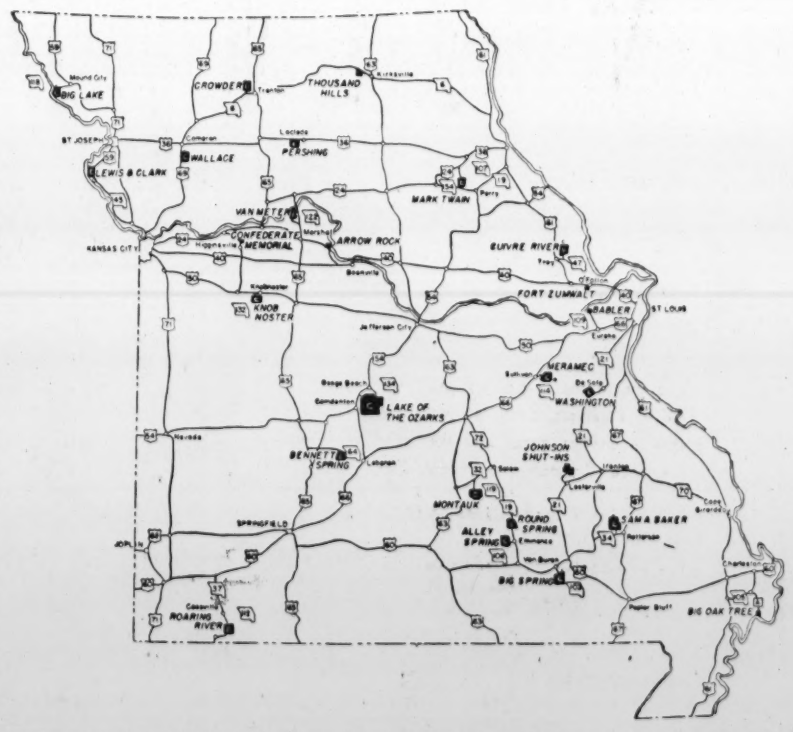

"We used to forget a lot of things," the Renners explained, "but now we have a list."

Among the things on the list are a shovel, an ax or a good hatchet, a first-aid kit, rope, hammer, nails, scouring pads, and a good insect repellent.

Among things not on their list, but at the head of ours, is one Boy Scout.

Possum Trot Farm

A Healthy Interest In Natural History

By Leonard Hall

THERE'S hardly a day but what letters come to Possum Trot Farm which indicate interest on the part of the writers in various aspects of natural history. With some, it may be wildflowers; with others it is songbirds; with still others, it may be the game fish of our streams and lakes or the wild creatures of woodland and field. This interest is a healthy thing—and a necessary one, as our lives become steadily more urbanized and as the areas which can support a wild fauna and flora grow steadily more confined. One of the reasons why this has come to pass, I think, is that we've always tended to set up economic criteria for determining whether any wild thing, be it plant or animal, is worth preserving.

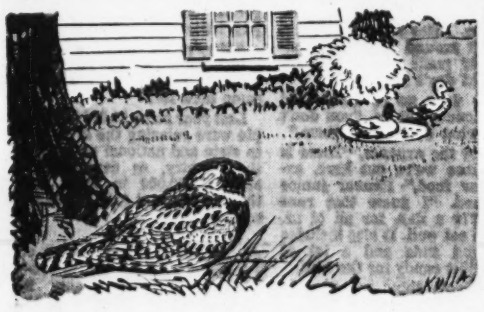

This attitude, still widely prevalent, comes about because not enough of us have a really thorough understanding of the community of nature and the way in which it functions. Nor can I think of any better way to increase this understanding than to set down very briefly the "land concept" as it has been defined by the late Aldo Leopold and other ecologists. To them, the land is not merely soil. It is the vast complex of earth, sun, air, water, plants and animals that build and keep circulating the flow of energy which supports all life on our planet. When we think of "land" in this way, we can realize that nature has worked out her successions of native plants and animals to keep the energy circuit functioning at high efficiency. We can also realize how revolutionary are man's changes in the natural landscape through farming, forestry, mining and the building of highways, cities and towns; and of the many ways in which these changes may upset the orderly operation of this energy circuit.

Dr. Leopold, in "A Sand County Almanac," points out that there are some 22,000 higher plant and animal forms native to his state of Wisconsin; of which no more than 5 per cent have any demonstrable value as food, livestock feed or for sale. Yet he is convinced that all of these life forms play their part in the long-time stability of the land and that we displace and destroy them at considerable risk. Not only do they have a right to exist; the health of the biotic community and the ability of the land to produce energy may well depend on their continued existence. Think how different is this attitude from that of the ornithologist who defends the songbird solely for its insect-eating value; or the game management technician who tries to make a case for the predator, solely because it keeps game healthy by killing off the weaklings. There was even a time when foresters set out to eliminate all of the so-called "weed trees" in the forest. Fortunately they have learned that the forest is an interdependent community, relying for maximum health on its natural complement of tree species, ground flora and fauna.

● IT IS EQUALLY FORTUNATE that even those of us who live in the average suburban community can do a great deal to improve the biotic community for many of our native wild plants and animals which have an esthetic, rather than an economic, value. We always recall the wildflower garden in Webster Groves where our friend Bill Bauer maintained several hundred native plants of Missouri until sheer lack of space forced him to move to a much larger tract of land in Jefferson county. And while we can't hope to bring back the Carolina paroquet, the heath hen or the ivory billed woodpecker—or do very much in our backyards for such vanishing species as the condor, the trumpeter swan and the whooping crane—we can do a great deal for the songbirds which have become tolerant of human habitation and, in some cases, seem actually to prefer to live close to people.

An interesting letter from a friend vacationing in the East tells how a home on Long Island Sound has been made unusually attractive to a wide variety of birds through good cover plantings in the yard, feeding stations and a bird bath. This latter is so simple and inexpensive—and so essential in summer when water sources for the birds are scarce—that it is worth telling about. The mistress of this household picked up for 50 cents at a Salvation Army sale, a baby bathtub. She took this home, placed it upside down on the lawn, drew a ring around it and then excavated a hole to fit it. The tub, when filled, comes even with the lawn. And the birds find it so convenient and use it to such a degree that often it must be filled several times a day. It has the advantage, too, that it may be lifted out and hosed clean with no trouble whatever. One very unusual species attracted to this bird bath is the ducks which come in from the salt water of the Sound to drink, while another is the whippoorwill.

● HERE IN THE COUNTRY, we are actually at a disadvantage in attracting the songbirds in summer. True enough, many of them nest in our bird boxes, in trees and shrubs and in all sorts of other odd places. But with ponds, watering tanks and the nearby creek—and with the barnlot for grain and the surrounding fields and woods for insects—the birds depend very little upon us during summer. There are even some, like the wood thrush, which we've never been able to attract here for nesting. As for odd nesting places, on the day after grandson Ricky's arrival we went out to inspect the canoe which hangs upside down from the ceiling joists in the machine shop, with the idea of taking it to the pond. As we looked up into the boat, a Carolina wren came flying out from under the foredeck, and examination from the top of a stepladder revealed her nest with a clutch of tiny eggs tucked safely away in the bow of the canoe. So it looks as though we'll have to forego boating until this brood is safely hatched, raised and on the wing.

American Culture

Rapid Growth of Serious Music in U.S.

Aaron Copland Cites Vast Musical Development Despite Lack of Recognition for Composers

AN INDICATION OF AMERICAN INTEREST IN SERIOUS MUSIC IS GIVEN BY THIS VAST AUDIENCE LISTENING TO A CONCERT IN PHILADELPHIA'S OPEN-AIR ROBIN HOOD DELL, A SCENE REPEATED MANY TIMES IN MANY SETTINGS.

Jazz, a musical product that could have been produced only in America, has proved one of this country's most popular exports. But what about our serious music? Here's a close look by one of America's best-known composers which shows the United States is a front-runner in this category, too. First in a series on American culture.

By Aaron Copland

NEW YORK, July 14 (AP).

NOTHING in past musical history can match the speed with which the United States has taken its place as one of the principal music centers of the world.

Our symphony orchestras are acknowledged as the finest anywhere, our schools are bursting with individual talent and overflowing with performing groups of all kinds; more and more people are listening to serious music each year, and spending more money on it, too.

Our music-lovers are familiar with these developments, but there is one thing they have to be reminded about repeatedly: In the past 30 years we have also developed a vital school of native composers. Strange though it may seem, America doesn't know its own composers.

Of all creative arts practiced in our country—theater, dance, painting, literature—serious music composed here is the least talked about because it is the least well known.

You would undoubtedly embarrass any typical group of intelligent people if you asked them to name three native-born symphonic writers living and composing in present-day America. They would have no trouble at all in naming novelists, playwrights, painters of a similar category. Years ago, when classical music was rated an esoteric art, this situation might have seemed natural enough. But nowadays you run the risk of being greeted by Mozart or Tschaikovsky every time you walk into your bank or your barbershop. Everyone, willy-nilly, is a potential music-lover. It is clearly ironic that in such a time America's composers should remain so relatively obscure.

OUR popular composers present no such problem. Men like Irving Berlin, Cole Porter and Richard Rodgers need no introduction; their songs are sung and loved both here and abroad. The acclaim they have won is sometimes used as a reproach to the writer of serious music. But actually the popular and serious composers are worlds apart; they have little in common except the name: composer. They are different in mentality, different in training, different in objective.

Our concern here is with the American composer who is attempting to write in the great tradition of Western art music, and in so doing reflect something of the vitality and greatness of America.

THE listening public tends to forget how sophisticated an art music in the larger forms really is. To master his technique the young composer must study for a period of about seven years. But training alone will not suffice; he must feel himself part of an organized musical community, and that includes piano manufacturers as well as competent teachers, cultivated audiences and plenty of concert activity.

Europe has had that kind of musical superstructure for centuries; America began to acquire it only toward the end of the Nineteenth Century. By the end of World War I, a generation of young composers appeared who were able to reap the benefit of the long years of slow preparation.

The '20s, which spawned so many new talents in the other arts, also stimulated our young musical creators as never before.

Best known of all these new names was that of George Gershwin, whose untimely death in his thirty-ninth year cut off a brilliant talent in mid-career. At the top of today's list of Americans are names first heard of then: Charles Ives, Roy Harris, Roger Sessions, Virgil Thomson, Walter Piston, Howard Hanson.

These composers were barely launched before a different kind of revolution altered the very conditions of music-making. Almost over night millions of new listeners were gained for serious music through the new media of radio, phonograph, and sound film.

It was quickly assumed that unfamiliar music in the contemporary idiom was too much for these musical newcomers; "understanding music" was taken to mean understanding a symphony by Brahms or Dvorak. This narrow outlook was encouraged and abetted by all those who had a financial stake in serious music. By concentrating their major selling drive on a restricted list of famous composers of the past, they have transformed music into the most conservative of all the arts. Such a policy is short-sighted for it builds toward no future. It narrows the field of musical enjoyment unnecessarily, and obscures the considerable activity of the contemporary composer, both American and foreign.

Despite these handicaps, America's composers have accomplished a great deal. A brief report, such as this, would naturally start with our orchestral output. A large proportion of United States composers concern themselves with the magnificent conglomeration, the symphony orchestra. This seems natural in a country that has produced 30 major symphonic performing organizations of outstanding ability.

NOT many non-professionals realize that hundreds of symphonies have been written in this country in the past quarter of a century. Eight composers, taken alone, have written more than 50 symphonies.

I refer to Henry Cowell (11), Roy Harris (7), William Schuman (6), Walter Piston (6), David Diamond (6), Peter Mennin (6), George Antheil (5), Paul Creston (5).

No one could possibly bunch these symphonies or their composers under one aesthetic heading. They are much too various for that. But one can safely say that their music gives off a certain flavor that would be different if it had been conceived in any other environment than that of America. Characteristically, it is music that is vigorous, bouncy, optimistic, noisy; at other times it may be intricate or brooding, or even plainly sentimental and direct as a hymn tune.

Alongside these big-scaled works are many hundreds of shorter orchestral pieces composed in America. No one has ever troubled to take a complete census of what is available. My guess would be that between 300 and 500 composers are creating works in that form each year in the United States.

Writing for the symphony orchestra has absorbed our composers for the past 75 years, but writing for the operatic stage during that same period was, by comparison, a rare event.

Wiseacres used to state confidently that opera was one foreign importation that could never hope for transplantation on American soil. Then came the nation-wide broadcasts of the Metropolitan Opera, followed by NBC's television opera, and the availability on long play records of dozens of operatic works. Out of the resultant flowering of interest there emerged the most significant development of all: The mushroom growth throughout the country of more than 200 opera studios and workshops made up of young professionals and semi-professionals in and out of college campuses, all intent on furthering their new love for the singing theater.

It is for these groups primarily that the American composer is writing his operas. What young singers need is opera in English based on subject matter that they can feel at home with. Virgil Thomson's "Four Saints in Three Acts," Marc Blitzstein's "The Cradle Will Rock," and Douglas Moore's "The Devil and Daniel Webster" were path-breakers in the '30s. More recently, Gian-Carlo Menotti, with the success of his "Amahl and the Night Visitors" and "The Telephone," has encouraged other composers to try their hand at music's most problematical medium, led on by the potential monetary rewards and the amount of national attention one successful opera can bring.

OPERA is not the only kind of stage music that is thriving just now. America is also dance-conscious to an unprecedented degree.

Individual performers like Martha Graham, Agnes De Mille and Jerome Robbins, and companies of dancers like the Ballet Theater and New York City Ballet have popularized choregraphy as a serious art form for a broad American public.

Here is another outlet for indigenous composing talent. Dance scores by Leonard Bernstein, Morton Gould, Samuel Barber — to name only a few—have provided a savorsome musical counterpart to picturesque or dramatic events on stage.

The motion picture also supplies a kind of stage that badly needs musical accompaniment. The native composer, starting from scratch, has quickly adapted his talent to the new medium. He was called upon to expend his musical imagination on subject matter that ranged from Alexander's chariots to the latest model spaceship, not forgetting Disney's nature pictures and the animated cartoons.

TRUE, a lot of this background music is turned out by the yard by Hollywood's seasoned professionals. But from time to time younger talents get their innings in—men like Bernard Herrmann, Alex North, Gail Kubik, Leonard Rosenman—all of whom have composed apt and distinctive movie scores. Hollywood could easily absorb a dozen more talents like them.

This concentrations on functional music for opera, ballet and film is typical of the present-day American musical scene. Because of it, some few composers have found it possible, for the first time in our musical history, to earn a handsome living from the music they compose. But this ought not to obscure the fact that a great amount of absolute music continues to be written for concert use: Piano sonatos, string quartets, songs and chamber music of all kinds.

No survey of America's music today would be complete without mention of the newest jazz-inspired trends. The so-called progressive jazz composers have almost moved over into the serious composer's territory. They really have begun to whip things up; things that never were meant to be whipped together, perhaps.

It is a source of pride to all Americans that our jazz performers are given the royal treatment whenever they venture beyond our shores. But that is not enough. America has more than jazz to represent us in the field of music. The leaders of foreign public opinion must be shown that we can produce serious composers, too. But before our serious music can be shipped abroad effectively, it must be known at home. After 30 years or more of concentrated effort we have the music. Now let's get to know it.

Rock and Roll

It Won't Be Teen Ruination

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

A LARGE part of the younger generation is subjecting itself to rock and roll treatment nowadays, and Mrs. U. doesn't like the prospects.

"I have two teen-agers, a son and a daughter, and I'm seriously concerned for fear they'll injure their intellect or emotions this way," she writes me. "You know this isn't a normal, healthful sort of a business. But what can parents do against rock and roll?"

Not very much, I'm afraid, Mrs. U., except to wait until it is over. My own feeling about this fad is like that of Casey at the Bat, "That ain't my style." But if it isn't rock and roll, shake and rattle, it has been something similar as far back as I can remember.

Fifteen years ago, the jitterbugs were cutting a rug. Thirty years ago it was Black Bottom and a whole group of other phenomena. Forty-five years ago, Mrs. U., your parents were dancing the Turkey Trot, Texas Tommy, Bunny Hug, or Grizzly Bear, to the great dissatisfaction of your grandparents.

Forty years ago some of my scientific colleagues were warning the young people of that time that the music they enjoyed was merely the musical equivalent of an epileptic fit. The young people survived it.

These characteristic fads of adolescence serve a number of purposes. For one thing, they help the young to show their defiance of the old. For another, they help the young to feel that they "belong." In the third place, the youngsters probably don't face the adult world with much enthusiasm just now and this primitive rhythm and caterwauling helps to take them temporarily back to a more infantile condition.

THESE FADS, like measles, seem to be something that parents must expect. They run their course. Expose your teen-agers to really good music, art, and entertainment whenever you can do so effectively. That's the best you can do.

Answers to Questions.

Q. Is it true that a father is not legally obliged to support an illegitimate child? We are very much worked up over a flagrant situation in our neighborhood.

A. I believe Texas and Virginia have no laws applying to such cases. In practice the court will usually try to do something for the child, if the case is brought to court; but in the long run the mother usually carries most of the burden—no doubt about that.

Q. I am a business woman; want a husband and a home—but no housework. Would any man be likely to take me on those terms?

A. Only way to find out is to ask one; but at least I congratulate you in proceeding honestly, instead of trying to marry under false pretenses as some women do. Make sure the man understands and sympathizes with your point of view (which may also include the question of children.) Make sure he enjoys restaurant meals and does not expect to do a great deal of entertaining in his own home. Make sure he is not marrying largely as a chance to have someone wait on him!

Q. YOU TELL mothers to rear their daughters to be feminine; but doesn't the father's influence count?

A. Yes, a great deal. One study showed the daughters of ministers to be distinctly feminine, the daughters of engineers to have a tendency to masculinity. Talk it over with your husband and ask his cooperation in your educational plans.

Q. How many dates should we allow our high-school daughter to have?

A. Two or three a week won't hurt, if they don't involve late hours. She should not neglect her health, home responsibilities, or studies. But after all, this business of dating is much more important to her future than is algebra or geometry.

Q. I am a working wife, with 8 hours daily in an office. Husband is a student, with homework to do at night. Nevertheless, should he not expect to help me with the dishes and a bit of housework in the evening?

A. Yes, unless there are some special circumstances. Here's a chance for real co-operation.

Hollywood Chatter

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

HOLLYWOOD, July 14.

PAUL DOUGLAS, signed by Columbia Studios to star with Judy Holliday in "The Solid Gold Cadillac," the Broadway hit, says he grabbed the part because it meant re-teaming with the girl with whom he had appeared on Broadway in "Born Yesterday." But it had its drawbacks.

PAUL DOUGLAS

"It's a great part in a funny script," he related. "But what do you know? The first thing they do is ship me off to Washington, D.C., and to New York for location scenes. And just to make going away from home even more difficult, Jan had a baby at the hospital in Hollywood the day before I was scheduled to go East." His wife is Jan Sterling.

Before starting work on "Cadillac," Paul had just returned from making the last of a series of films abroad —in South America, in Scotland, in England and in Austria.

"When I was on the stage," he said ruefully, "I lived in hotels, ate in restaurants and never really had a home. When Jan and I married, we bought a house. It has a pool. This seemed perfect. Then all the parts I'm offered are in pictures made out of the country—or at least away from home."

Kim Novak, who scores effectively in both "Picnic" and "The Eddie Duchin Story," believes that sexy-looking girl has less chance to get married than the plain homebody type.

"It's strange," she said over at the Columbia lot, "but from what I've seen, a man seems to like sexy types as a date and the plain Jane as a mate." Kim, incidentally, is not married.

● DURING THE FILMING of "The Eddy Duchin Story" 18 paintings by modern masters were borrowed by the studio from the private collection of director Jean Negulesco. The paintings, insured for $185,000, were also protected by a 24-hour guard on Stage 8, where much of the film was made. Among those seen in the film, adorning the apartment of Tyrone Power (who plays Duchin), are masterpieces by Renoir, Toulouse-Lautrec, Braque, Matisse, Marie Laurencin, Venard and Bollaert.

THOUSANDS who sought haven in America have been frightened by Red spies tailing them at work and play. They have received incessant telephone calls at all hours, personal visits, threats, phony promises.

The most effective Communist terroristic weapon is "emotional pressure"—subtle intimidation —consisting of letters, photographs and heart-rending pleas from loved ones still in bondage to end their "suffering" by coming back.

Fear of reprisals against their wives, mothers, children has frightened some refugees who, although they refused to go home, will not talk about their experiences with the Communist envoys to the FBI, police or other governmental agencies.

A testimonial to the courage of the more than 300,000 post-World War II Iron Curtain escapees is the fact that less than 100 are known to have re-defected from the United States in the face of the Communist pressures.

The Red agents concentrate on those who held important posts abroad but now do menial jobs in the United States because of language and other difficulties. The experience of Alexander Nyirjessy, 64, years old, a member of the Hungarian Parliament before he fled from a Communist hangman's noose, is typical. Now a night porter in New York, Nyirjessy recently was approached by Vince Scapala, second secretary of the Hungarian Legation in Washington.

During the early morning visit, Nyirjessy expressed a desire to lie down in bed as he was tired. The legation official laughed at this statement and demanded to know why he should be sleepy when he hadn't worked the night before.

"Inasmuch as I had been off," the refugee declared, "I was startled and terribly upset. I saw that he knew all about me and my movements. He made it obvious in his talk that I had been under their surveillance for a long time. He knew where I worked, my days off, who my friends were."

Nyirjessy said Scapala's words became progressively tougher until he finally sneered:

"America does not appreciate your presence. Look at you. A janitor. If you love your daughter you will do what is right. Come back to Hungary. All will be forgiven. We will pay all your debts here and you will be given an important post."

With this remark, he handed over a letter from Nyirjessy's daughter in Budapest, begging him to come home, and a copy of an amnesty decree.

NYIRJESSY rejected the offer with the declaration he'd rather be a janitor in the free air of America than a big shot in a country where freedom has been ruthlessly stamped out.

"They wished me to weaken the resistance of the people in the homeland and throw dirt on America and the free West," he said. "For this, I am not their man."

Leaders of Russian, Polish, Bulgarian, Czech, Romanian, Latvian and other refugee organizations admit they are bewildered by the efficiency of the Red agents. In case after case, they reported, escapees from behind the Iron Curtain had moved hundreds and even thousands of miles without notifying them. Yet, Communist agents had quickly come knocking on the refugees' doors or mailed "return home—all is forgiven" letters from abroad to their new, secret address.

The evidence indicates the Communists have an extensive network which watches the refugees. A spokesman for the Hungarian National Council said he was positive Communist spies funneled back information on refugees moves. He said the case of "Refugee X" proved conclusively his theory, explaining:

"This man was approached in New York. He became fearful and moved to the Bronx. Again the representatives of the Reds found him. He moved to Connecticut and then went to Maine. He was alone and did not communicate with a soul. He kept to his one room. But they found him."

Successful tracking of refugees hiding has created an atmosphere of fear, intimidation and hopelessness with many who thought they were free of the Communist pressure.

And, for those who are unswayed by the Red intimidation campaign, the Soviet agents use "paper bullets."

These "missiles"—coerced letters, photographs from loved ones and messages in Red newspapers—are powerful "emotional" weapons wielded by the Communists to lure or force returns home.

The "letters department" is supervised by Soviet Secret Police Gen. Nikolai Mikhailov, boss of the "Return to the Homeland Committee." This group was set up in East Berlin by the Kremlin specifically for the re-defection campaign.

This propaganda organization prints in many languages a "Voice of the Homeland" newspaper. Its subscription list, many refugees feel, is probably more accurate than the records kept by the United States Immigration Department of escapees in the United States.

Some of the names are known to have been obtained by Communist agents who broke into refugee headquarters in West Germany. But, surprisingly, the mailing lists for the various nationality groups in America — perhaps supplied by blackmail payoffs of information—are accurate and up-to-date.

Typical letters — almost all read the same—to persuade relatives to come back were made available by refugees who asked that their names be kept secret. Said one mailed by the wife of a Hungarian refugee:

"We love life and if you don't come back life will be most unhappy for us."

A second letter brought to the refugee personally by a friend came through the underground.

"Under no circumstances come home," it read, "but do everything possible to help me escape."

MICHAEL MISCHAIKOW of Brooklyn, a Bulgarian escapee who recently arrived in America, said "hundreds and hundreds" of his friends had been contacted personally or by letter.

He said the letters, sent from France, Austria, Switzerland, Belgium, Germany and even the United States give escapees a "feeling of insecurity" and a "fear of a world-wide network."

Jan Papenek, former Czech U.N. delegate and new head of the American Fund for Czech Refugees, said the results of the letter writing campaign among Czechs has been "nil."

He claimed the campaign of intimidation against Czech refugees got under way following a secret meeting last summer in Chicago of Czech Ambassador Karel Petrzelka with "important American Communist leaders and fellow travelers."

Papenek said he is "puzzled" by how the Communists "get new addresses even faster than the organization which cares for them," and added:

"It is important that we find out who is behind it in the United States and take the necessary steps. This country has done wonders for refugees, but they must be protected from this sort of stuff. One returnee could spoil all the good thousands have done."

Pilgrimage

The Long Journey To Mecca

By Charles P. Arnot

CAIRO, July 14 (INS)

MOHAMMED HASSAN looked exhausted but happy as he squatted on the hot pavement outside the big white building where the Egyptian Government checks the travel documents of all foreign visitors.

His flowing burnous was yellowing and travel-stained. He had just walked 3000 miles.

Eight months ago Hassan set out from his Arab village near Casablanca, obeying the Koran's injunction that, as a devout Moslem, he must make at least once in his life time the pilgrimage to Mecca.

His five sons and two daughters are grown, so Hassan, now 56 years old, left his wife with relatives, took $15 from his $300 savings and walked east, across North Africa and Libya into Egypt.

He was not alone. An estimated 700 walking pilgrims have arrived in Cairo during the past week.

Hassan with his papers registered and stamped, was ready to move on to Suez. From there he sailed for Jeddah on the Red sea.

Gray-bearded Hassan is one of an estimated 800,000 pilgrims converging today on Saudi Arabia. They are coming from the Arab countries, from Africa, Pakistan, India, Indochina, Sumatra, Java, Malaya. One-seventh of the world is Moslem.

TWO YEARS AGO the oil-rich Saudis abolished the pilgrimage dues of about $80 per person. But the annual trek still means big money for the hot arid country with Islam's holy cities.

Thousands, like Hassan, make the pilgrimage the cheap, hard way. But others spend small fortunes. They arrive at Jeddah by air, several plane-loads daily. Then they transported over the 85 miles of asphalt road to Mecca in shiny, eight-seater American taxis, officially described as "first class de luxe passenger cars."

At Mecca, birthplace of the Moslem Prophet Mohammed, accommodation ranges from the best hotels ("running water and electric lights") to sleeping space on the sandy floor of a tent.

The holy city's 150,000 inhabitants exist almost solely on their annual pilgrimage earnings, as hotel and camp keepers, caravan leaders, guides, water sellers, refreshment vendors and souvenir makers.

SHADE SELLERS ARE ASSURED OF A BOOMING BUSINESS.

In the treeless wastes around barren Mount Arafat, which every pilgrim must climb, the shade sellers are assured of booming business. A spot under any sort of awning can be "rented" for as much as $1.50 an hour to the weary believer who seeks a nap out of the sun's scorching rays. The temperature around Arafat often reaches 127 in the shade. In 1951, the last year an "official" count was kept, there were 731 sunstroke deaths.

THE SACRED pilgrimage rites center around the Kaaba, a cubic structure (39 feet by 33 and 50 feet high) in the courtyard of Mecca's great mosque.

Built into the Kaaba's southeast corner is the black stone which, the true Moslem believes, was given by the Archangel Gabriel to the Patriarch Abraham from whom the Prophet Mohammed claimed descent.

The Kaaba, considered ultra-sacred, is jealously guarded. A few years ago, an international incident erupted when a Persian pilgrim apparently suffering from the heat, profaned the Kaaba. He was beheaded on the spot.

All Mecca, and an area 10 miles around, is holy territory, strictly forbidden to non-Moslems.

This year's pilgrimage rites, lasting five days, begin tomorrow. The solemn rites are performed three days before the annual feast and two days after. The three-day feast begins on Wednesday.

After completing the full ritual, the pilgrims return to Jeddah and sail or fly home.

Once back in Cairo, Hassan will start his 3000-mile tramp westward. But he'll be a different man, walking proudly, head held high to display his beard, dyed ginger-red—a sign of his new status.

Henceforth he always will be addressed respectfully as "Haj" (Pilgrim) Hassan, and no matter how poor he becomes, he will be held in highest esteem in his own village.

Hot? Here's How They Beat the Heat in Other Lands

While the song has it that only "Mad Dogs and Englishmen" go out in the midday sun, the fact is that life does go on in the hot, dry lands where temperatures boil over 100 every day for months without end. Here is a report for sweltering Americans, on how the peoples of those lands beat the heat.

NEW YORK, July 14 (INS).

BUY one watermelon. Cut it in half and scoop out the meat. Put one half-rind on your head; give the other to your spouse. Then you're all set for the pilgrimage to Mecca.

A bit far-fetched? Nope. Westerners who've visited Saudi Arabia in the summer months say the watermelon sun helmet is very popular among the pilgrims making the long trek through the desert to Islam's holy city. It's the way the poor Moslems have of breaking the heat.

In most countries, the well-to-do fare better in their battle with the mercury. Not so in Saudi Arabia, it seems. While the poor don watermelons to cool at least the top of their heads, the rich wear their traditional flowing robes — and swelter.

THE EGYPTIANS favor the water cure. They douse their clothes with water several times a day. At night, they sleep on wet sheets or wrap themselves in wet mosquito netting.

The Syrians regard their summers as "relatively cool": Temperatures in July and August are only 104 or so in the daytime. The Syrian war on the sun has been waged for centuries. Most families live in homes which are built around open courtyards with marble fountains in the center. They sleep next to the fountains.

Not even mad dogs and Englishmen go out in the Sudan's midday sun. Everyone rises before dawn. Housewives do their cleaning before 7 a.m. and then they close their shutters and cower inside. Most homes are constructed with double ceilings to block the waves of 116-degree heat. And most homes in the cities, no matter how poor the inhabitants, are equipped with electric fans.

The Iraqis reverse the clock during the summer. They sleep during the day. Usually in their basements, and work at night.

AN AMERICAN GIRL arrived in Calcutta this spring. This was the first bit of advice she got from an Indian friend:

"Get into an air-conditioned hotel room. Don't come out until July when, one day, you will find the air conditioner spewing water at you. This means the monsoon has broken and flooded the town and the air conditioner. It also means you have survived the worst of the hot weather and will live till the next hot weather season."

There is one other popular heat-beater in India. This one more practical. It's the khas khas, the screen made of the roots of a grass. The screen is thick and spongy and is hung over doors and windows. It's constantly sprinkled with water, thus cooling off the air which passes through.

The people of the Latin lands, old pros at the beat-the-heat game, do more than hit the sack. They know how to dress. Cotton clothes, usually white, are the ordinary dress. In Panama, whites are worn on even the most formal evening occasions.

The Spanish Government officially recognizes it can't win. The seat of Government is moved in the summer from Madrid to San Sebastian in the cooler north.

AMERICANS VISITING the Orient complain that they work up more of a sweat trying to fan themselves than they would if they just sat and sipped tea. The Chinese and Japanese say that's not so. Like chopsticks, it's all in knowing how to use the wrists.

The Chinese, Japanese and Koreans, at least those with enough money, also use two American gimmicks to keep cool. One, of course, is air conditioning and electric fans. The other, becoming more popular, is the kind of Hawaiian shirt Bing Crosby wears—thin, short-sleeved and rainbow-colored.

The ladies, of course, don't wear shirts. But it's said that the Chinese women who wear those slim sleeveless dresses are cool, because of the skirt slits from shoe to thigh.

The Japanese swear by a gadget which, they say, is "psychologically cooling." It's a string to which is tied several glass or china bells. The string is hung over an open window.

Even the faintest breeze sets the bells to ringing. So the occupants are certain, even if they don't feel a thing, that it's getting cooler. Foreigners say the trick works, at least as well as half-watermelons in Saudi Arabia.

Toscanini Plays Berlioz

By Thomas B. Sherman

ARTURO TOSCANINI and the NBC orchestra have made an exciting record of the Berlioz "Harold in Italy" with Carleton Cooley playing the viola obbligato. The sound has the usual Toscanini brilliance and the dramatic urgency of the performance is tempered by a gratifying flexibility in the poetic and atmospheric sections. Cooley, however, is no Primrose and for that reason alone the Beecham recording of the same work is the preferable one, in my opinion. The NBC - Toscanini performance was recorded in 1953 and in general the sonority is not as dry as in many other Toscanini releases. (RCA - Victor, One 12-inch LP.)

ORCHESTRAL: The little played Sixth Symphony of Jan Sibelius is coupled with the Seventh in impressive recordings made by the Philharmonia Orchestra under the direction of Herbert von Karajan. (Angel, One 12-inch LP.) In the Sixth Symphony rhythms, harmonies and the general texture take precedence over the melodic masterial with the result that it seems less incisive than the other symphonies. The Seventh is the composer's best made symphony in the matter of organization, aside from being heroic in its mood. Karajan is particularly effective in the broad, deep and sustained measures of the symphony's opening section. In other respects both performances are well conceived and beautifully played, even though Karajan overlooks a few opportunities for producing a more striking emphasis at critical points.

Igor Marketvitch tries to put a little iron into the pathos of Tschaikowsky's "Pathetic" Symphony by using dramatic pauses and a more virile tone quality than one ordinarily hears. It is still "Pathetic" but the performance is highly creditable, in its drive and its finish, to both the conductor and the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra. (Decca, One 12-inch LP.)

Mozart's "Jupiter" Symphony has an appropriate breath, animation and detailed finish in a performance by the Concertgebouw Orchestra under Karl Bohm. Two lesser symphonies in G Major (K.318) and E Flat (K.184) are on the reverse side. (Epic, One 12-inch LP.)

The Boston Symphony Orchestra under Charles Munch plays the Brahms Second Symphony in D Major in a manner that needs little comment. It sounds like the Boston Orchastra and a first rate conductor. Even so the Brahms "Tragic" Overture seems to have evoked a more vital and a more personal response from both. It is a dramatic performance but on an elevated level like Greek drama. (RCA—Victor, One 12-inch LP.)

CONCERTO: Julius Katchen, the young American pianist now living in France, proves himself to be a facile and authoritative executant in a performance of the Tchaikowsky Piano Concerto in B Flat Minor with the London Symphony Orchestra. Pierino Gamba, the 19-year-old Italian conductor, conducts the orchestra with great skill; he allies himself closely with the soloist and makes the orchestra an alert co-partner in the proceedings. The virtuosity of both soloist and conductor are also demonstrated in Liszt's Hungarian Fantasia. (London, One 12-inch LP.)

CHAMBER MUSIC: Eight Mozart String Quartets, all composed before he was 20 years old, are offered in two volumes with the Barylli Quartet as the performing organization. The style in each instance is favorable to the content which, in general, is beguiling by reason of its sensibility and unfailing invention without striking very deep. The quartets are: D Major (K.136), B Flat (K.137), G Major (K.80), F Major (K.138), B Flat (K.159), E Flat (K.160), F Major (K.168), and F Major (K.169). The volumes may be bought separately. (Westminster, One 12-inch LP.)

Ernest Bloch's String Quartet in B Minor, started in 1915 and completed in the '20s is highly emotional and introspective with striking melodic content and a bold use of harmonies. The dissonant harmonies might have sounded harsh back in 1915, but now they are easy enough for the most innocent ear. The Roth Quartet gives a strong and secure performance though the string quality is sometimes acidulous. (Mercury, One 12-inch LP.)

BEST SELLERS: Beethoven's Fifth Symphony and Mozart's G Minor Symphony No. 40, played by the Philadelphia Orchestra with Eugene Ormandy. (Columbia, One 12-inch LP.); Schumann's Second Symphony, played by the Detroit Orchestra with Paul Paray conducting. (Mercury, One 12-inch LP.)

'The Chocolate Soldier' Next at Muny Opera

PRINCIPALS FOR MUNY OPERA'S EIGHTH PRODUCTION OF OSCAR STRAUS'S "THE CHOCOLATE SOLDIER," WHICH OPENS TOMORROW NIGHT. FROM LEFT, GLENN BURRIS AS ALEXIUS, MARTYN GREEN AS COL. POPOFF, MURIEL O'MALLEY AS AURELIA POPOFF, GAIL MANNERS AS NADINA AND GEORGE GAYNES AS BUMERLI.

"THE CHOCOLATE SOLDIER," Oscar Straus's melodious tunes affixed to a comedy adapted from "Arms and the Man," Bernard Shaw's satire on militarism, will be given its eighth production by Municipal Opera during the week beginning tomorrow night.

First produced in Vienna in 1908, "The Chocolate Soldier" had its Muny Opera debut in 1921, and was revived in 1926-29-35-40-43-49. It ranks among the all-time favorites at the huge Forest Park theater. Only "Show Boat," with six productions totaling 11 weeks, and "The Desert Song," and "The Merry Widow," each with nine one-week productions, outrank it. "Naughty Marietta," "The New Moon," and "Rose Marie" have also each had eight productions.

Martyn Green, the famous D'Oyly Carte Opera Company Gilbert and Sullivan comedian for 25 years, will be Colonel Popoff. He appeared here at the American several years ago in Shaw's "Misalliance." Gail Manners, the beautiful blonde soprano who sang at Muny Opera in 1951, 1953, 1954 and last year in "The Vagabond King," will be the heroine, Nadina. George Gaynes, opera and Broadway bass-baritone, who appeared last summer on the Muny stage in "The Merry Widow," and "Wonderful Town," and currently has a straight action role in "The Great Waltz," will be Bumerli.

Muriel O'Malley, also currently appearing in "The Great Waltz," will be Amelia Popoff, Nadina's mother. Glenn Burris will appear at Lieut. Alexius Spiridoff. Peggy Engel will be Mascha, Nadina's cousin. Roy Urhausen, Gene Varrone, Ruth Schumacher and Vince Vernon will have minor roles. The principal dancers will be Christine Mayer and Jacques d'Amboise.

Among Straus's songs are "My Hero," "Sympathy," "Falling in Love," "The Letter Song," "Never Was There Such a Lover," "Seek the Spy," "That Would Be Lovely," and "Alexius the Heroic."

The book and lyrics were originally written by Rudolph Bernauer and Leopold Jacobson, with the English version by Stanislaus Stange. The story laid in Bulgaria in 1885, takes place in the home of Colonel Popoff of the Bulgarian Army, which is at war with the Serbs. Lt. Bumerli of the Serbian Army is attacked by a Bulgarian patrol and seeks refuge in Nadina Popoff's boudoir. Nadina has been in love with Alexius, Bulgarian hero, but she quickly loses her heart to Bumerli and hides him.

At the Movies

By Myles Standish

THE KING AND I—A dazzling and breathtaking CinemaScope 55 version of the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical hit about an arrogant, childish Siamese King and a gallant English gentlewoman. The most gorgeous movie of the year, and certainly the most charming. Yul Brynner, repeating his stage triumph as the ferocious, yet human, monarch, is great. Deborah Kerr as Anna Leonowens, the British tutor, is close to perfect. Sheer enchantment. ST. LOUIS.

CRIME IN THE STREETS—Adapted from a TV play, this is glib about the reasons for some young Dead End hoodlums in a tenement district, but fuzzy about the solution. More sincere than most analyses of problem 'teen-agers, but weakened in several instances. With James Whitmore as a patient social worker, John Cassavetes, Sal Mineo. FOX.

THE LEATHER SAINT—Paramount's salute to the humanness of Episcopalian clergymen, a la "Going My Way," but comparatively unrewarding. Unadulterated hoke about an Episcopalian priest who takes up prize-fighting, via a wicked right-cross, to help polio victims, and converts the tough fight crowd along the way. With John Derek, Paul Douglas, Cesar Romero. PAGEANT.

TRAPEZE—Director Carol Reed has done a perfect circus picture in gaudy CinemaScope. Tumultuous action, beautiful camera work, and a strongly acted triangle among a high-flying trapeze act of Gina Lollobrigida, Burt Lancaster and Tony Curtis. LOEW'S STATE.

THAT CERTAIN FEELING—Bob Hope in a light-comedy change of pace as the mousy assistant to a comic strip star. Weak until the final farcical ending. Eva Marie Saint is a dream. In VistaVision. MISSOURI.

THE GREAT LOCOMOTIVE CHASE—Walt Disney mostly spins his wheels in a recreation of an 1862 Civil War raid by 22 Union Agents on a vital Southern railway. With Fess Parker, Jeffrey Hunter. ORPHEUM.

MARTY and SUMMERTIME—A really good reissue bill about lonely people—(1) Ernest Borgnine, a fat love-starved Bronx butcher and (2) Katharine Hepburn, a spinster seeking romance in Venice. RICHMOND.

SEVEN WONDERS OF THE WORLD—A tepid Cinerama travelogue. AMBASSADOR.

Edith Schiller as Little Symphony Piano Soloist

THE fifth Little Symphony concert of the season will be given at 8:45 p.m. Friday in Washington University Quadrangle with Edith Schiller piano soloist and Jascha Horenstein conducting.

Soloist and orchestra will play Mozart's Piano Concerto in C Minor, K. 491. The all-orchestral numbers will be Mozart's Sinfonia Concertante in E Flat, David Diamond's "Rounds," and Strauss's "On the Beautiful Blue Danube."

Miss Schiller, the wife of Harry Farbman, associate conductor of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra, has appeared several times with the St. Louis symphony as soloist. She has made appearances with other symphony orchestras, in recital and with the Farbman Sinfonietta. She studied in the Juillard Graduate School of Music, having won three scholarships to study with Olga Samaroff-Stokowski. She made her Town Hall debut in 1946.

Marionettes on the Highlands Stage

Bobby Clark and his marionettes will be featured on the Forest Park Highlands outdoor stage this week, with two shows nightly and one Sunday afternoon. Frank Miller and his Musical Merrymakers play free band concerts each night and Sunday afternoon on the stage.

CAPTAIN AHAB (GREGORY PECK) IS LITERALLY IN THE JAWS OF DEATH AS HE IS SNAPPED UP BY THE HUGE WHITE WHALE IN THE CLIMACTIC BATTLE IN JOHN HUSTON'S PRODUCTION OF "MOBY DICK," NEXT AT THE FOX. THE PICTURE WAS MADE FROM HERMAN MELVILLE'S CLASSIC NOVEL OF WHALING. IT IS IN A DARKLY TINTED CINEMASCOPE.

'Devil's Hornpipe'

HOLLYWOOD, July 14—Universal-International has acquired the Maxwell Anderson-Rouben Mamoulian musical drama, "The Devil's Hornpipe" and plans to produce it, with James Cagney as the star, as "one of the biggest pictures ever made" by the studio.

Edward Muhl, production chief at U.-I., announced the project, stating that it would begin work this winter following filming of "The Man of a Thousand Faces," the Lon Chaney story in which Cagney will play the late screen actor.

Anderson, in addittion to collaborating with Mamoulian on the story, wrote the lyrics to the songs. The music was composed by Allie Wrubel. The plot of the musical concerns an impoverished lawyer who becomes involved with a New York waterfront racketeer. Cagney will take the role, not wholly unfamiliar to him, of the gangster. Aaron Rosenberg will produce the property.

Van Johnson Role

HOLLYWOOD, July 14—Van Johnson has signed a contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to portray an entertainer who becomes the victim of a scandal magazine story in "Pattern of Malice." Roy Rowland will direct the drama when it begins filming next month.

Made-to-Order Comedy Series

By John Crosby

NEW YORK, July 14.

"JOE AND MABEL" is a half-hour comedy series which the tall brass at CBS-TV has been wrestling with for a year or so now and, after the first couple of episodes, it's easy to understand their indecision over there. It just isn't very good. On the other hand, it isn't very bad either.

I can see why a network with a lot of money tied up in the thing might blow hot and cold but I don't know that the average viewer, with only a half-hour to spend or not to spend, is going to be troubled by any such doubts.

"Joe and Mable" is about a taxi-driver and his girl, both of whom talk pure Brooklyn or what the script writers like to think of as pure Brooklyn. Each episode opens with Joe turning his head in his cab to address a mythical passenger (the viewer) in sublime defiance of the rules of safety and bland disregard of the ordinary customs of cab-drivers. At least the cab-drivers I ride with generally toss their nuggets of wisdom into the back seat out of the corner of their mouths without taking their eyes off the road, a trick somewhat akin to spitting a figure-eight into the wind.

SOME OF THE PEARLS of wisdom tossed about on this show: "You know something—traffic wouldn't be half bad if there weren't so many cars on the road."

"My girl friend doesn't want to be my girl friend. She wants to be my wife. Also her mother wants her to be my wife."

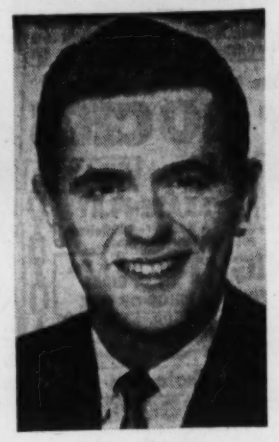

"Why can't you and Mabel be like me and my girl friend—we hate each other. It makes for a healthy relationship."

"Everything in the world is relative—mostly your wife's relatives."

Well, I have always held that as philosophers cab-drivers are horribly over-rated, but, Lord love 'em, they do better than that. In short, the whole show has a strained and unreal air about as if CBS just went out of its way to create a comedy series. I can just see a bunch of thinkers gathered around a table at CBS: "We gotta come up with a package, fellows. Half-hour, situation comedy. Now let's see—what hasn't been done yet?

"Now, the show business angle is out—Danny Thomas and Desi have that locked up. Husbands—the plain garden variety—are a dime a dozen. Private eyes are dead. Phil Silvers has taken the Army out of circulation. Newspaper reporters? Absolutely not. Already, there's 'Big Story' and Peter Lawford and goodness knows how many others.

"A cab-driver? Say, maybe you've got something there. A cab-driver gets all over town, he meets all kinds of people, he could get into all types of scrapes. Now, maybe he's got this girl friend, see, and she's got a little monster of a kid brother and maybe a battle-ax of a mother . . ."

LARRY BLYDEN

This is what you might call creative thinking by elimination. Toss out everything that has been done and the residue is your comedy program, a system that might work in gold mining but not very well in television.

Joe and Mabel are played respectively by Larry Blyden and Nita Talbot. They are both attractive people and fairly hep at comedy but I don't think either of them has the stature to carry a comedy series—it takes a comic genius or towering personality or both to make the viewer tune in week after week and this pair isn't in that class. Or to put it more simply, this pair just isn't funny enough.

SOONER OR LATER someone was bound to call in a psychologist to analyze rock 'n' roll and the other day WNEW, the cheeky New York independent radio station, did just that. The psychologist was Dr. Benjamin Walstein, who delivered a good many opinions on the subject after listening to some records. I was struck by his analysis of that well-known song, "Blue Suede Shoes."

"Well," said Dr. Walstein, "The first impression that I get from it has to do with this business of 'don't step on my blue suede shows'—don't hurt me—allow me to have a sense of independence. The interesting thing about this has, I think, to do with the adolescent's desire for some degree of privacy."

This analysis disagrees rather violently with my own. I have always thought that the blue suede shoes is a symbol of mother-fixation. The adolescent is trying to escape from the domination of his mother—the shoes are too tight. See? Of course there's another theory that the kid just wants to keep his shoes clean but that one has been rejected by every psychologist I know.

'A Man's Big Problem

It's How to Forget A Broken Romance

By Martha Carr

Dear Martha:

MY PROBLEM is trying to forget someone. I fell in love with a wonderful woman, but our romance had complications. We talked over the problems together, and she assured me that in time they would work themselves out. Such was not the case, however, for in the two years that followed our first meeting new problems arose. One thing led to another and she accused me of just pretending love for her. I denied it, of course, for I was very much in love with her. A short time later, we had our only quarrel during which she said, "I can't stand the sight of you." I then made up my mind to stay out of her way, and it worked for several months. One day I accidentally met her again. We didn't speak other than a greeting. Since then, I have tried to see her from a distance several times a week. It's obvious she doesn't share my feelings and has done what I haven't been able to do—forget. Now, my problem: How to forget. Next year I plan on taking a job in another part of the country, but I doubt that this will be a solution. Any suggestions on how to forget would be appreciated. Is it really possible to forget a person? J.

That's something you can't generalize on. Many a man or woman has pledged "undying love" one week and forgotten the other person's name by the next. For others, love is a far stronger, more lasting emotion. I suppose only the most callous and shallow can ever really forget someone who has meant much to them, as nearly everyone with whom we come in close contact has a real and lasting influence on us. So I can't guarantee that placing a thousand miles between you and this woman will take her out of your thoughts. But usually, a new kind of life, a new set of circumstances, streets and restaurants and faces that don't conjure up painful memories, will have a therapeutic effect on a broken heart. However, let me urge this. Don't nurse your heartache along. Accept this disappointment as philosophically as you can. Don't keep humming "our song," or looking back over photographs or souvenirs of your broken romance. Find new friends, new activities. Start dating other girls. You'll be comparing them all to her at first, but gradually—if you let yourself—you will find that your happiness is not dependent solely upon the whims and affections of one person in this whole universe.

Dear Martha:

● I AM 21, married and have a son two years old. I found out my husband has been running around with other women. I have forgiven him three times because of our son. But now he is going around telling these young girls he isn't married. One of them came to me and told me the whole story. What should I do? DESPERATE.

If this is his idea of marriage, then I think it's high time someone straightened him out. It's bad enough for him to see other women but when he decides to pretend that his wife and son don't even exist, you'd better get it through his head that they'll have to come first or the marriage is no good. Forgiveness is right, but permitting yourself to be victimized by his cavalier attitude isn't right. A family agency caseworker will help you analyze the entire problem of your marriage to see what can be done to help. You may find that you are partly to blame for his lack of loyalty. But you wish to build your marriage into something far better than this is a long step in the right direction.

Dear Martha:

● I HAVE A PROBLEM and if something isn't done to solve it I think I will lose my mind. A woman across the street lets her children live at my house from morning until night, even on Sunday. I like to enjoy my own family once in a while. These children have a swimming pool but every time I fix the pool for my children they all come. If we leave home, we find on our return that they are in the garage and have everything torn up. The mother never watches them. I have three children of my own and don't feel like taking care of three more. We never have any privacy. MRS. K.

You'll just have to tell this mother that as much as you would like to let her children play in your yard, you cannot be responsible for watching them and feel it would be best if they did not come so often. Lock the garage door when you leave. Put up everything which the children might break. Then talk to them. Children are thoughtless and they will carelessly destroy property unless they are disciplined rigidly and are taught early to touch nothing at another person's home. But they are also reasonable and frequently you can appeal to them. If they trample on flowers, for instance, try talking to them about the different kinds of blossoms and show how the plants grow and develop with proper care. Encourage them to observe the growth of the flowers, to watch for new buds and suggest that they try to keep other children from walking over the flower beds.

Dear Martha:

● I HAVE A PROBLEM which I believe nearly every girl faces at one time or another. I have a terrible crush on a man who is old enough to be my father. To make it worse he is married and has children of his own. I have known him for nearly three years and have liked him very much from the first day I saw him. I'm not sure if he resents it or not. I realize that this sounds ridiculous but I hope that you can help me. I am 16 years old. B.M.

No, it isn't ridiculous. As you point out, many girls your age suddenly find themselves attracted to older men. That in itself is nothing to be ashamed of, but a mark of maturity is how the teen-ager faces up to the situation and solves it. From what you say, I assume this man has shown no personal interest in you. So your brooding about him and seeing him in a romantic light can only embarrass him and make you miserable. So, first of all, determine that you won't talk about him to anyone. Then, face up to the fact that he is happily married and you couldn't break up his home if you wanted to. If you have been going out of your way to run into him, start going out of your way to avoid him. Every time you're tempted to brood about this middle-aged dreamboat, remember that your crush will soon fade away and you can laugh at yourself. It will be hard, but since you know the whole thing doesn't make sense, you can gradually put him out of your thoughts. Go out with your own crowd of young people and forget the older generation.

Elegance Is the Word for New Fall Fashions

New York Designers Look Backward for Their Inspiration, With Emphasis on Revival of 1912 Styles

By Sylvia Stiles
Post-Dispatch Fashion Writer

NEW YORK, July 14.

THE new fall and winter fashions are a challenge to the American women. Not only must she look like a lady of the carriage era but she must adopt the manners that command the attention and the chivalry of a leisurely, luxurious way of life.

The New York designers whose collections have been shown here during the past week at the semi-annual National Press Week sponsored by the couture group of the New York Dress Institute have delved into the past for their inspiration. No one seems to be looking ahead. The backward movement applies to everything from the sweep of silhouettes and ostrich feathers to the date of a style or a particular painting that inspired the style.

It takes a good student of history to figure out what to wear in this present crisis when everything has a nostalgic emphasis. Some of the clothes proudly trace their origin to the Normans and the Vikings. Corinthian pillars have prompted several designers to mould their coats and suits on slim, column-like lines. The Edwardian feeling is especially popular while the portrait painters of Henry VIII's court have gotten into the act. Daggers and swords are being revived along with ostrich feathers, wide-brimmed hats, and skirts with their harem hemlines.

EVERYONE agrees that we are scheduled for a season of definite fashion changes. No one, certainly, could shut her eyes to the glamorous variation of the autumn themes and be satisfied with her simple little sheath dress. But which of the many different adaptations of the old-time types is the one to choose may prove to be a difficult question. It is doubtful whether there ever has been a season when so much diversity of color, fabric and silhouette is possible, or when there were so many flattering modes with the stamp of Dame Fashion's approval. We've seen slim skirts and pleated skirts, draped hemlines and fluttering panels, slick-finished materials and dull-finished tones; brilliant shades competing with a flurry of black and white.

Throughout all of this maze of fashion trends several dominant characteristics persist. One is the recurrence of the 1912 influence. The designers may differ on many points but no matter what else they give us, they manage to inject a 1912 look. Perhaps this is only a big pink rose at the waistline of a black crepe dress, or the peg-top drape of a long dinner dress. It may be the addition of a white fox muff, a large beaver hat or a cluster of crystal beads.

Another characteristic is the elimination of simplicity. There is no such item as a simple dress for late 1956. Fussiness and prettiness are words that the designers have used together. Anything that appears to be intricate is fashionable. Elaborate bows adorn hats, dresses and suit jackets. Skirts have swag drapery at the back, side or front. Single box pleats are no longer sufficient but double or triple ones must be hidden underneath. Necklines that seem to be bare actually have a gauze, skin colored covering. Elegance is the word most likely to be used to excess in describing the new fashion era.

Outstanding among the designers to express the mood of the new season is Christian Dior, who has based his American silhouette on the fencing sword. Many of his costumes feature high waistlines and interesting detail at neck and shoulders. Collars are large and frame the face like enormous petals. There is depth at the armholes and a tapered narrowness at the hemline of suits and coats. An easy-fitting look predominates with the bloused back and the jaunty type of jacket noteworthy. Black crepe dresses are afternoon favorites. Full skirts with a new pumpkin silhouette distinguished by soft pleats appear for late day. Evening dresses stress the vogue of uneven hemlines, lavish embroideries and pastel coloring.

The dress that is most typical of the revival of the 1912 fashions appears in the Ben Reig collection. He shows it in two versions—one for late day and one for evening. The fabric is black crepe that is handled in a siren-like manner and calls for an enormous hat for completion. The flattery of black crepe is seen in an entire group of dresses. Some have wide pleated satin belts. Lattice-framed necklines and castle-draped overskirts are significant.

THE arrow silhouette is indorsed by Nettie Rosenstein, who adds a certain Kate Greenaway look to some of her dresses. Dinner models that are floor length and have long tight sleeves with low necklines illustrate the return of more formal themes for dining and for theater wear. Ceil Chapman is another who believes in the long evening dress and its accompanying long evening wrap. She also introduces some dazzling cabaret dresses that are of the old Ziegfeld Follies type.

Tina Leser is doing her best to impress upon American women that play clothes are not merely for casual sports or a particular time of day, but should be worn for leisurely dining and for entertaining. Her most spectacular contributions in her particular classification of feminine attire are her carriage pants for evening. They are made of velvet and trimmed with mink. This designer has glorified the cobbler's apron by making it of jewel toned satin and further shows her individuality by creating elaborate jeans made of pink silk satin.

As her contribution to a season that will be distinguished by handsome fabrics and elaborate styling, Adele Simpson presents a group of Baghdad brocades that have a mingling of metal with their unusual colorings. She pairs a slender dress of brocade with a shaped bolero or boxy jacket for theater wear, in another group of costumes for late day and evening. Outstanding, too, as typical of the times is a broadtail-patterned black satin dress and jacket ensemble trimmed with mink.

Furs and feathers are used lavishly to adorn the fall clothes. Thousand dollar price marks for millinery and other accessories to give the carriage look to feminine beauty are quoted glibly.

TRIGERE'S CERISE COLORED LONG EVENING DRESS WITH BACK-SWEPT SKIRT IS MADE OF WARP-PRINTED SILK FAILLE IN AN ELABORATE PATTERN.

UNIQUE IN ITS INTERPRETATION OF THE REVIVED TUNIC MODE IS THIS SAMUEL WINSTON DRESS BY ROXANA.

A FRONT-PANELED BLACK SHEATH EVENING DRESS BY OLEG CASSINI HAS A DOUBLE ROW OF BUTTONS AT THE KNEES.

A 1956 VERSION OF A 1912 FASHION IS OF BLACK CREPE. FROM THE BEN REIG COLLECTION, IT HAS A SLIM SKIRT SLIT TO THE KNEES.

Ingrid Bergman Hopes to Return To United States

PARIS, July 14 (INS).

INGRID BERGMAN is "most happy" to be back making movies again and hopes to return to the United States "at the first opportunity."

The lovely Swedish-born star told an International News Service reporter in Paris, where the film version of "Anastasia" is being shot:

"I'm very keen on this role, and I am most happy to be doing a picture for the American screen again."

Not the least of her joy comes from doing "a film in one language only — English." She explained:

"In Italy, we usually make films in three languages: Italian, English and French. But although I've been away from the States for some time now, English is still my No. 1 language, even more than Swedish."

Miss Bergman has been doing movies and plays all over Europe in English, Swedish, French and Italian.

The trip to the United States might result from current negotiations with Paramount Pictures, which wants her for the leading role in the film version of "The Chalk Garden," which played on Broadway this season.

"Anastasia" is her first American movie since she left Hollywood in 1949 to make "Stromboli" for Italian producer-director Roberto Rossellini. She stayed to divorce her husband and marry Rossellini.

IN "ANASTASIA," the story of a girl thought to be a surviving daughter of the Czar of Russia, Miss Bergman's co-stars are Helen Hayes and Yul Brynner, with Anatole Litvak in the director's chair. After a few days of work with her, Litvak commented:

"She is undoubtedly one of the greatest actresses in the world today."

There was no indication that Miss Bergman's American movie contracts would estrange her from her husband. Rossellini flew in from London to watch her start on "Anastasia" and later, from their suite in the Savoy Hotel, they telephoned their children in Italy and chatted with them.

After she finishes "Anastasia," for 20th Century-Fox, Miss Bergman will star in a French version of Robert Anderson's play "Tea and Sympathy."

Hacketts' Film

HOLLYWOOD, July 14 — Frances Goodrich and Albert Hackett, who won the Pulitzer prize this year for their stage adaptation of "The Diary of Anne Frank" have been signed by Twentieth Century-Fox to write the scenario of "A Certain Smile." The property is based on the book "Un Certain Sourire" by the young French writer, Francoise Sagan, which Fox purchased in May. The novel is to be published next month by Dutton. Henry Ephron will produce. No production date has been set.

The Wrong Time to Keep Movie Date

By Emily Post

A LETTER tells me: "My girl friend and I had planned to go to the movies the other night. When I called for her at her house, a young man she had been dating on and off for the past few months was there. He had come over unexpectedly and evidently she had not told him she was going to the movies. When I came in and she introduced him to me and we sat talking. My friend made no attempt to leave for the movies and as it was getting late, I finally asked her if she thought we hadn't better get started. With that the young man got up and said he was sorry he was keeping us from going to the movies and left immediately. My girl friend seemed peeved and said that she thought I was rude to have mentioned this in front of the young man. Was I wrong, and if so, what should have been done in the situation?"

Correctly, your girl friend should have telephoned you and said that John had come over unexpectedly to see her and could you go to the movies tomorrow instead of tonight. However, since she didn't do this, if you really like the girl and knew she was especially keen about the man, you should have said good-night after a few moments and left.

DEAR MRS. POST: My sister is going to be married shortly. My nephew, who lives with us, is engaged to a girl whom my family do not like nor approve of. Under the circumstances, must she be invited to my sister's wedding?

Answer: If you love your nephew, then for his sake, his fiancee should certainly be invited, and he would have every right in the world to be badly hurt if she wasn't.

DEAR MRS. POST: I would very much like to know what the noonday meal is correctly called. Is it lunch, or luncheon?

Answer: Today, lunch is considered a better term than luncheon.

DEAR MRS. POST: I am secretary of a woman's club and often it becomes my lot to write notes of sympathy on behalf of members of the club. I would like to know if these notes must be handwritten, or may I typewrite them?

As it is sent from an organization, a typewritten letter would be correct.

DEAR MRS. POST: I received an invitation to a cocktail party written on a fold-over card. Embossed in the upper left-hand corner is a small cocktail shaker and glass. The invitation reads: "Cocktails at the Hemingways" and the date and time written underneath this and the address in the lower left-hand corner. Will you please give me your opinion of such an invitation?

Answer: For such an informal type of party this invitation is very suitable.

DEAR MRS. POST: I would very much like to know if it is permissible for a bride to wear rhinestone earrings with her wedding dress? I do not think they are suitable but my daughter thinks they are perfectly all right and wants to wear them. Are they proper or not?

Answer: If they are becoming to her, she may certainly wear them.

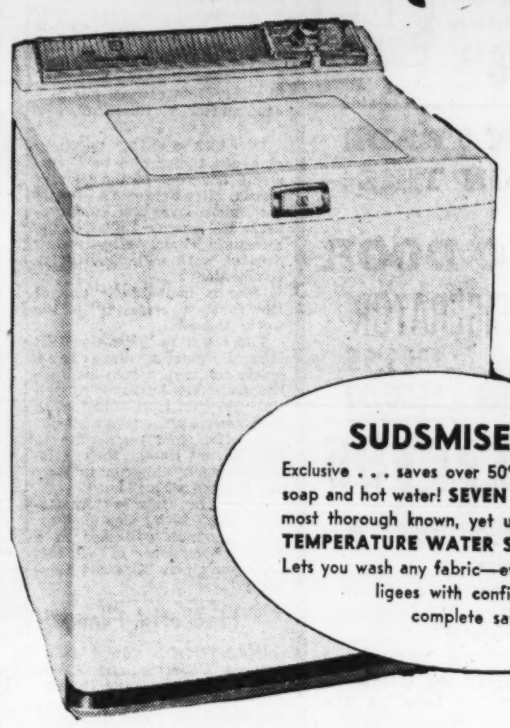

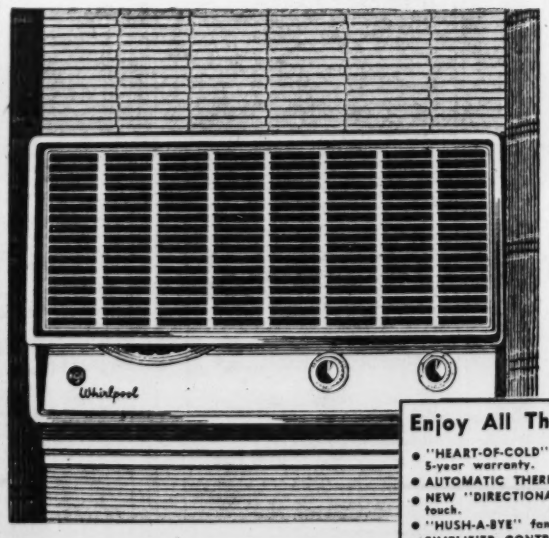

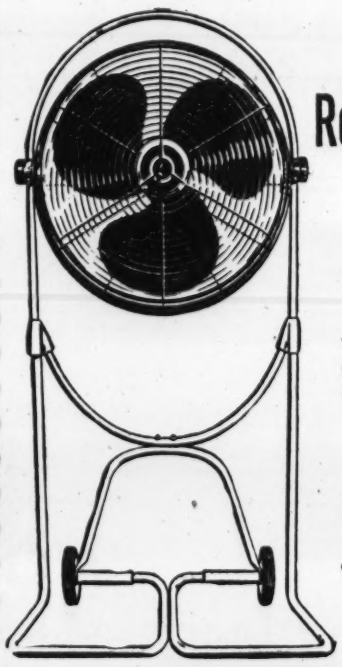

Politician Story

HOLLYWOOD, July 14—The rise and demise of a ruthless young politician, as depicted in Eugene Burdick's recently published Houghton Mifflin Fellowship Award novel, will form the basis of an independent film production by Stanley Roberts, the screen writer. Roberts announced today he had purchased rights to the property for $100,000 from Burdick, a professor of political theory at the University of California.

Roberts will seek a releasing association with a major studio and will decide at a later date whether he will write the scenario. He wrote such films as "The Caine Mutiny," "Death of a Salesman" and "The Will Rogers Story." The purchasing contract contains an escalator clause calling for extra payments for copies of the book sold over the current market.

'The Boss' Hassle

HOLLYWOOD, July 14—The recently completed Frank and Walter Selzer production of "The Boss" will have to remove a scene of a machine gun massacre if it is to receive a seal of approval from the Production Code Administration. The sequence is reported to bear a resemblance to the notorious Union Station massacre in Kansas City during the thirties. The independent producers report that they "do not intend to remove this climactic scene, and 'The Boss' will be released without the seal, if necessary." United Artists, not a member of the Motion Picture Association of America of which the code is part, is the distributor.

'Brothers Karamazov'

HOLLYWOOD, July 14—Eugene Frenke announced today he plans an independent production of Dostoievsky's "The Brothers Karamazov." Frenke said that associated with him in the production on a participating basis will be Tony Mann as director, Philip Yordan as scenarist, Dimitri Tiomkin as composer and Niven Bush, who wrote the original treatment of the story. Frenke, who has two production commitments at 20th Century-Fox, has not yet made a distribution deal for the project.

John Kerr Signed

HOLLYWOOD, July 14 — John Kerr has signed to co-star with Mel Ferrer and Pier Angeli in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Vintage." The actor, who recently starred in the studio's film version of "Tea and Sympathy" will play Mr. Ferrer's brother. The romantic drama starts work in France Aug. 6.

'Gigi' Musical

HOLLYWOOD, July 14—Alan Jay Lerner, author of the book and lyrics of "My Fair Lady," will come to Hollywood next week to work with Arthur Freed on the script of the musical version of "Gigi." Freed will produce the film through his independent unit for Metro release. Lerner won an Academy Award for "American in Paris Story."

An Expert Gives Advice On Textiles

By Dorothy Brainerd

WE NEEDED expert advice on two questions in last week's mail concerning textiles, so sought the help of Louise Woodruff, home management specialist for the University of Missouri, who in turn consulted with Mrs. Ginter of the University's textiles department and came through with the necessary information.

The questions were as follows:

From Mrs. A. Q.: "I have some draperies of a cotton and rayon fabric, gold in color. After many cleanings I decided to wash them and they turned out like new, except for one thing—they lost their stiffness. I was going to use regular starch, but am afraid to try it since they are lined. Should I starch them, or should I stiffen them in some other manner?"

And from Mrs. A. G. A.: "I would like to know how I could get a plastic coating off of my cotton tablecloth. When I bought this cloth it had this plastic coating on it, but with washing it has become hard and brittle and in places has come off. I would like to get it all off, but so far haven't had any luck."

We quote the reply to our plea for help, which covers both questions:

"For the cotton and rayon draperies which were limp after laundering, we thought the only thing that could be used satisfactorily would be a light solution of any good commercial laundry starch.

"Of course, I am sure as they are ironed the lining will stick to the drapery material, but they can be pulled apart while they are still warm.

"If the rayon should be acetate, then it is important to use only a warm iron so that the acetate will not melt. Of course, if the rayon is viscose, then it will take the same temperature iron as cotton.

"There is no method for removing plastic coating from cotton which can be used satisfactorily in the home. I think that if the plastic-coated tablecloth has become unsightly it would simply have to be discarded.

"I wonder if this homemaker put this tablecloth through a regular washing process? It sounds as if that might have caused the difficulty.

"I should think that it might be better in the future simply to clean a tablecloth of this type with a damp cloth rather than to actually wash it."

"I BOUGHT two wrought-iron stools for our snack bar but they make dents and marks in my linoleum," writes Mrs. W. B. of Farmington, Mo.

"Could you or any of your readers tell me how I could fix them to keep them from ruining my floors? I have tried putting them in coasters, also putting adhesive tape on them, but neither works because the legs are not straight like a chair but are sort of U-shaped, like most of these new wrought-iron pieces."

There is a swivel glide which can be attached to this type of furniture, Mrs. B., but in order to do so it is necessary to drill a three-sixteenths-inch hole in the bottom of the loop.

If you will inquire at hardware stores they should be able to advise you on this. If you have too much difficulty locating this type of glide write me, sending a stamped self-addressed envelope, and I will give you the name of a large hardware store which carries them. I am not able to give the names of any commercial products or stores in the newspaper.

MRS. N. D. of Sikeston, Mo., sends along this advice to the mother of the teen-age daughter whose bubble gum too frequently finds its way onto her clothing:

"Please tell Mrs. H. F. just use plain kerosene to remove gum from washable garments. Just pour or dab a small amount on the back side of the gum and off it comes. I also have used it to get gum out of my children's hair."

And our thanks to you, Mrs. D.

MRS. T. S. writes: "No doubt you have published this before, but would you print it once again? We recently bought a house and are bothered with silverfish. How can we get rid of them?"

Sorry not to comply with your request, Mrs. S., but you are so right—we have published this information too often to use the space to repeat it again. But send along a stamped, self-addressed envelope and we will mail it to you promptly.

"CAN YOU or one of your readers tell me how to remove the stone from a clingstone peach without mangling the fruit?" asks Mrs. E. H. "Is there a tool of any kind that will do the work?"

Not that we know about; of course in the industry there is a regular machine that does this for commercial canning, but we have never heard of one for home use. Clingstone peaches usually are canned with the stone in, because it adds a very good flavor.

Any homemaking problems bothering you? If so, write to Dorothy Brainerd in care of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. She will publish your questions or publish them and see if other readers have the answers for you.

'Old Man and Sea'

HOLLYWOOD, July 14 — John Sturges, the director, is shaking the dust of the desert for the tang of the sea. Sturges, fresh from the finish of the Paramount western, "The Gunfight at the O.K. Corral," has flown to Nassau in the Bahamas with Leland Hayward, the producer, to complete the direction of "The Old Man and the Sea." Fred Zinnemann recently quit the production of the Ernest Hemingway novel in a policy disagreement over the completion of the film.

Washington University Opera Plans

Richard Strauss's "Ariadne on Naxos," and Benjamin Britten's "Albert Herring," will be produced by the Washington University Opera Workshop next season, Director Dorothy Ziegler announced.

The Strauss opera, in one act and prelude, will be given Nov. 30, Dec. 2 and 3. A 36-piece chamber orchestra will be used. "Albert Herring" will be done Feb. 14, 15 and 17 of next year. It was first performed in London in 1947, and was adapted from a story by de Maupassant. Performances will be in Brown Hall on the campus.

Auditions for scholarships to the workshop will be held Sept. 14.

'The Norman' Casting

HOLLYWOOD, July 14 — Nina Foch has been signed to play the Queen of England, the wife of Harold the Saxon, in Charles Marquis Warren's plannned production of "The Norman." Dan O'Herlihy will portray the Saxon with Jack Palance taking the role of William the Conqueror. Miss Foch is currently starring in "Measure for Measure" at the American Shakespearean Festival Theater at Stratford, Conn.

Proper aims of schools will be discussed by a panel led by Harold E. Thayer, vice president of Mallinckrodt Chemical Works and head of Mallinckrodt's uranium division.

Milton W. Bierbaum, superintendent of West Walnut Manor School District, will serve as chairman of a group that will develop facts on economics of school operation. Each of these three units will comprise 11 men and women.

Chairmen of other groups include Philip J. Hickey, superintendent of instruction in St. Louis schools; Robert Snyder, superintendent of the Parkway Consolidated School district; Oscar A. BOYS FROM 45 UNITS GO TO SCOUT CAMPS

Will Spend Week at Various Reservations — Explorers to Take Cruise.

Boys from 45 Scout troops will spend a week, starting today, at summer camp. The troops represent the Northwest, Council Grove, Grant, South, Arrowhead and North Star districts.

Irondale Scout Reservation will be the camp site for 17 units in the Northwest District. Eight units in the South, Arrowhead and Council Grove districts will camp at Lion's Den Reservation. Camp May will be host to seven troops from the Grant District and 13 units from the North Star District.

A group of 40 Explorer Scouts and leaders from Explorer Posts in the Northwest District will leave here by train next Sunday for a five-day cruise on the Great Lakes aboard a Navy vessel.

The cruise will offer the Explorers a first-hand opportunity to witness operations of a Navy vessel.

District program planning meetings for all unit leaders and neighborhood commissioners are being held in July and August in all 18 districts in the Boy Scout Council.

The meetings are designed to help unit leaders plan the program for their individual units for the coming year.

The remaining schedule is as follows: Northwest, July 19, 26 and Aug. 2; Bourbeuse, July 24; Keystone, Aug. 18; Midland, Old Trails and West, July 16; Frontier, July 18; Pioneer, Aug. 7; Southwest, Aug. 14; Suburban, Aug. 28; Taum Sauk, Aug. 21; Arrowhead, July 23; Grant, Aug. 12; Ozark Trails, July 14, and South, Aug. 20.

Members of the Lion's clubs of Greater St. Louis and their sons will hold their annual picnic and inspection of Lion's Den Scout Reservation July 25, starting at 4 p.m.

The annual swim meet for all Sea Explorers will be at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the United States Navy pool at Lambert-St. Louis Field.

Registered Sea Explorers, less than 21 years old, who hold the rank of apprentice are eligible to participate.

A Council-wide meeting of the district nominating chairmen will be at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday at Schober's Restaurant, Lindbergh boulevard.

Purpose of the meeting will be to discuss the duties and responsibilities of the chairmen in recommending and selecting officers, members-at-large and top leardership in the 18 council districts.

BOARD TO HEAR ABOUT MAYOR-COUNCIL PLAN

Expert to Discuss Form of City Government at Freeholders' Meeting.

Lennox L. Moak, director of the Philadelphia Bureau of Municipal Research, will discuss the mayor-council form of municipal government at a meeting of the Charter Board of Freeholders next Friday at Kiel Auditorium.

This was announced yesterday by George L. Stemmler, chairman of the Board of Freeholders, in making public the schedule of meetings and public hearings of the board for the period ending Aug. 17.

Municipal operations under a council-manager form of government were discussed by former Mayor William E. Kemp of Kansas City at the board's meeting Friday.

Stemmler said public hearings to give citizens and representatives of citizen groups an opportunity to express their views on the type of government which should be provided in the proposed new city charter will be held at the auditorium at 8 p.m. July 24 and 26.

At its meeting July 27, the board will receive comments and recommendations of Mayor Raymond R. Tucker as to the form of municipal government he believes the charter should provide. He previously has advocated the "strong-mayor" type, with greater authority vested in the executive officer.

The freeholders are to reach a decision on the type of municipal government to be proposed in the charter at a meeting Aug. 3, Stemmler said.

Following that meeting, at 8 p.m. Aug. 9, another public hearing will be conducted at the auditorium for citizens and citizen groups to express their views on the size of the legislative body to be proposed in the new charter and on the manner of electing its members.

DULLES SAYS PEACE IS LOST BY DEFAULT

Men Don't Try Hard Enough, He Writes in Church Publication.

NEW YORK, July 14 (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles said today wars recur because "men never have put into winning the peace efforts comparable to those which they have put into winning a war."

Dulles wrote on the churches' role in international affairs. His article appeared with 38 others in the Ecumenical Review of the World Council of Churches.

Dulles, chairman of a 1946 conference to establish the commission of the churches on international affairs, said that while war has become more devastating, the "consequences of retreat and surrender" also have become "more terrible."

Risk in Attempt.

"There is a risk in seeking to convince a potential aggressor that his contemplated act of aggression will not pay.

"But the failure to register such a clear warning, particularly in terms of collective action, may be an inducement to those who are bent upon aggression."

Other contributors to the publication included R. A. Butler, leader of the House of Commons in Britain; Ralph Bunche, under secretary of the United Nations, and U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold.

Butler said the influence of Christian churches "spans the whole world." He said the churches were "an immense potential element for the better understanding between peoples of vastly differing national backgrounds and political convictions.

"They can fulfill their mission only if they take the problems of international order seriously," Butler said.

Bunche Is Optimistic

Bunche, U.N. mediator who helped bring peace to Palestine in 1948, said the efforts directed toward using atomic energy for non-military purposes offered "real promise for the future."

"I am optimistic enough to be hopeful that man, having demonstrated the genius to unlock the tremendous secret so long held fast in the atom, will also have the ability, the good sense and the moral strength to meet this greatest human challenge by hitching this awesome force to humanity's progress," he said.

Hammarskjold's article, composed of excerpts from his addresses, said the churches "may be a decisive force for good" in international affairs without assuming a direct, political role.

He said they could go further by explaining "how world affairs are run and what is the responsibility of every one of us."

GERMANS REGARD CROONER'S 2 SONS AS JUST PLAIN G.I.S

SCHWEINFURT, Germany, July 14 (AP)—Bing Crosby's 22-year-old twin sons are just another pair of G.I.'s to most residents of Schweinfurt.

"But people recognize me as a Crosby sometimes," Dennis Crosby says. "Must be the bald head."

Dennis has been a mail clerk at the United States Army base here since last July. Brother Philip arrived last February. They are attached to the Twenty-fourth Medical Detachment of the Tenth Infantry Division.

Their dad writes about twice a month, and, said Dennis, "They're very long letters."

Despite the musical successes of their father and older brother, Gary, the Crosby twins profess to have no musical talent.

Before entering the service, both boys were studying animal husbandry at Washington State College. They hope to get back to their Elko (Nev.) ranch with its 5000 head of Herefords as soon as they finish their military tour.

NEGRO MUSICIANS PRESENT ANNUAL FESTIVAL TODAY

The seventh annual outdoor music festival of the St. Louis branch of the National Association of Negro Musicians will be presented at 5 p.m. today in Sherman Park, Kingshighway and Easton avenue.

The program will include performances by a mass 300-voice chorus of church choirs. The chorus will be directed by Anderson O. Fuller of the Lincoln University School of Music. Guest soloist will be Theodore Charles Stone of Chicago, baritone, who has appeared in recitals in many American cities, Canada and Europe.

Anderson and Wirt D. Walton, St. Louis choir director and music instructor at Harris Teachers College, will receive citations for "excellent work in the field of college music." A vocal contest to select the representative to attend the national convention Aug. 18-24 at Detroit to compete for a scholarship award also will be held at the music festival.

CRIPPLED CHILDREN SOCIETY SENDING 70 TO CAMPS

Seventy handicapped boys and girls from the city and county are being sent to St. Louis area camps for normal children by the St. Louis Society for Crippled Children this month, it was announced yesterday. Expenses will be paid from contributions to the society's annual Easter Seal Appeal.

Children under the care of the Easter Seal Rehabilitation Center and others referred by Michael School for Crippled Children and the polio unit of St. Anthony's Hospital are attending Camp Wyman, Sherwood Forest and Y.M.C.A. Camps Derricott and Rivercliff.

4-DAY HORSE SHOW TO OPEN WEDNESDAY

Event to Be Held in St. Charles Will Benefit Boys' Town.

The seventh annual Boys' Town of Missouri benefit horse show will be held Wednesday through Saturday at the St. Charles county fairgrounds just south of St. Charles off Boonslick road. Performances start at 7:30 p.m.

The event, sponsored by the St. Louis Exhibitors' Horse Show Association, will be produced by Edwin G. Eggert, who stages the American Royal show in Kansas City.

This year's show is expected to be the largest, Clark Cox, association president, said. The Rodeo Kids, a group of trick riders and horsemanship entertainers, will perform each night. They will give demonstrations of riding skill, including stunts such as Roman stands, barrel races, mounted drill and high jumping.

The show has become the largest single contributer to Boys' Town, having provided more than $130,000 in the past six years from its proceeds, Cox said.

Contributions and orders for tickets can be placed with association members or by writing or telephoning the Boys' Town of Missouri office, 7727 Clayton road, Clayton, PArkview 5-7648.

TO MARK 50TH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Albert F. Kronsberg will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary next Sunday with an open house at their home, 8215 Flora avenue, Vinita Park.

Kronsberg, an engineer for Ely & Walker Co., is 68 years old. His wife is 66. They have one daughter.

3000 MISSOURI CHILDREN ELIGIBLE FOR STUDY GRANTS

More than 3000 children of deceased veterans in Missouri are expected to be eligible for government grants to further their education under a law recently enacted, J. F. Kelley, manager of the Veterans Administration office here, said yesterday.

The veterans must have died of injuries or diseases resulting from their military service in World War I, World War II or the Korean war. Children between 18 and 23 years of age may apply to the Veterans Administration for the assistance.

The grants are for study in colleges and universities as well as vocational school. The new law also provides for special restorative training for children with physical or mental disabilities. Government allowances up to $110 a month for a maximum of 36 months will be paid to students.

On Probate Code Group.

Probate Judge David R. Hensley of St. Louis county has been appointed to the probate code committee of the Missouri Association of Probate Judges, it was announced yesterday. The committee will gather data to help improve operation of the new probate code, which went into effect last Jan. 1.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

MISGIVINGS FELT IN WEST GERMANY OVER U.S. POLICY

Divergent Opinions of President and Dulles on Neutrality Add to Uncertainty.

By GASTON COBLENTZ
The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Radio.

BONN, July 14—A widespread feeling has developed in West Germany that American foreign policy is in a disorganized condition.

The following types of phrases are constantly used by Germans in discussing American policy this summer:

"There seems to be a lack of direction."

"We would like to hear what the real American line toward Russia is."

"Perhaps things won't clear up in Washington until after the elections."

"The United States is wavering. There is so much uncertainty."

"American foreign policy is undergoing a change."

Neutrality Bungling.

These reactions have been forming for many months and have received new strength recently. This has been due to the impression here of a lack of harmony over foreign policy between President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

The belief that Mr. Eisenhower's and Dulles's views on how to deal with Russia diverge has resulted partly from some of their public statements, such as their contrasting declarations about neutrality.

It has been reinforced by interpretive reports by West German correspondents in Washington. It has been further strengthened merely by the differing impact made by the personalities of the President and his Secretary of State.

Two Schools of Thought.

However, the Germans themselves are not at all agreed as to whether they prefer Mr. Eisenhower's more elastic approach, as they conceive it, or whether they prefer Dulles's "tougher" line.

In other words, they have no unanimous recipe of their own for correcting the lack of coordination they feel exists in Washington.

On the one hand, a very powerful current is running here in favor of less rigidity in dealing with Moscow on German reunification and other issues. By constrast, others believe that to abandon rigidity means appeasement.

At the moment, the signs are that the advocates of the more elastic approach are gaining ground in West Germany and that "the Eisenhower line" has gained great sympathy.

Criticism of Adenauer.

This seems by the constantly mounting wave of discontent here with Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's own foreign policy on grounds that it is "too stiff."

Adenauer, whose views are seen by many Germans to be closely allied with those of Dulles, is being subjected to criticism for clinging to what are being condemned by many persons as outdated cold war tactics.

Primarily, his critics, among whom are a growning number of men in his own party, are demanding more initiative on Adenauer's part in dealing with Russia.

They want Adenauer's ambassador in Moscow, for example, to explore every possibility of coming to terms with the Russians on Germany. They feel Adenauer is taking the Dulles line in failing to exploit every avenue of approach in Moscow.

Thus, many Germans feel, in turn, that Mr. Eisenhower's attitude to the Russians will help to create a better general international atmosphere in which fruitful East-West negotiations may become possible.

Reservations on Eisenhower.

However, there are some reservations here about the Eisenhower line, and they are very important.

Mr. Eisenhower has, in the last year, given the Germans an impression that he is capable of dealing with the Russians without giving too much away. But there is a fear that his search for peace might also ultimately result in an American rapprochement with Moscow at Germany's expense.

This anxiety persists, in the background, even among the German advocates of the Eisenhower line. It is a relic—but a substantial one—of the American-Russian alliance against Germany in World War II.

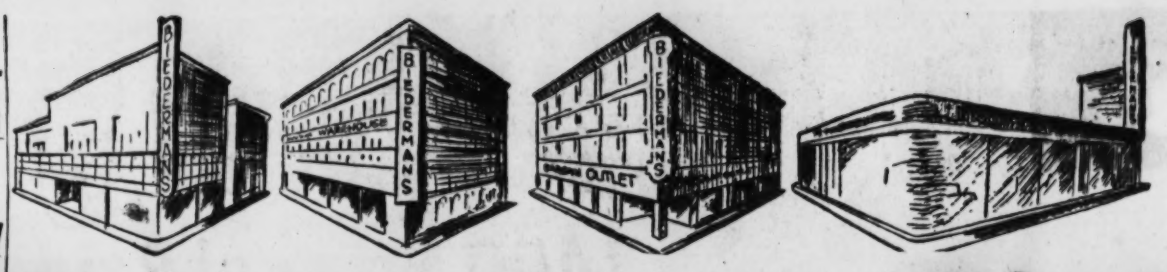

However, despite this gnawing anxiety, a strong feeling of good will toward the United States prevails among a great majority of Germans at this time.

TROOPS IN KOREA ARE PRIMED FOR ANY RED ATTACK

U.S. Soldiers Remain on Alert at Point Where War Started Six Years Ago.

By MARVIN STONE

OUTPOST MAZIE, Korea, July 14 (INS)—From Mazie you see the ridges where the Korean war started six years ago Monday, you see Panmunjom where it ended, and you see Communist troops still close enough to holler at.

War is over in Korea, but it is never far away.

Outpost Mazie is as close as American troops can get to the Chinese and North Korean Korean Communists without actually being in No Man's Land—a 2½-mile demilitarized zone that keeps combat-ready divisions at arms length.

Through powerful glasses atop this mountain outpost you look into the mouths of reinforced concrete bunkers and see how the enemy has dug in for atomic war, if it ever comes.

At night you hear them blasting away as they cut deeper and deeper tunnels.

Strange Assignment.

"If they dig much deeper they'll start coming out in the United States," smiled Pvt. Robert Parisi, of Wallingford, Conn.

"And you hear them blowing those bugles, too. The same bugles they used to blow during the war whenever they started an infantry charge. I guess they're keeping sharp."

Pvt. Parisi has one of the strangest assignments in the Army. He and the other men in an intelligence team who take turns manning Outpost Mazie are Paul Reveres with telephones.

Their job is to track and plot Communist moves, and what a sharp-eyed youngster can pick up is amazing—and classified. If the other side gets belligerent, they flash the word back to intelligence headquarters. If ground war comes, they'll be first to know it and first to feel it.

"Some of the guys get edgy up here, especially at night," Parisi said. "They're all the time shooting off machine guns on the other side, or tuning up those bugles or blowing something up—sometimes 200 demolitions in a night."

From 19th Regiment.

Outpost Mazie (named after a platoon leader's girl friend) is currently manned by a team from the Third Battalion of the Nineteenth (Rock of Chickamauga) Regiment. It is one of the three infantry regiments of the United States Twenty-Fourth Division.

As fate had it, the Twenty-Fourth Division was the first in the Korean war. It was Maj. Gen. William F. Dean's outfit. When the Communists invaded South Korea the "Taro Leaf" Division in nearby Japan was the first to be sent to fight for the United States in history's first war against Communism.

The blood of men of 16 United Nations, including almost 35,000 Americans, was shed here in a war that nobody won. The peace treaty calling it officially at an end still is to be signed.

Keeping up morale of American troops sent to Korea in peacetime is a rugged job. Korea is the place that is known most generally among troops as "the end of the line."

But morale in the Third Battalion is good, according to its commander, Lt. Col. Frank Petruzel, of Monterey, Calif. "Better than that," he said, "it is excellent."

"Six Reasons Why."

"And here six reasons why: The men are well-trained and so close to the enemy they have a sense of mission; they know how to use their recreational facilities and they have good religious facilities; they are active in a strongly competitive sports program; they work hard and enjoy it; they get their mail from the States in six days, and last and most important, they are in the best-fed army in the world and nobody eats better than these boys up here."

That is not only the boss's say-so. Parisi and others in the outfit agree that the closer you are to achieving a sense of mission, the easier it is for all the other factors to fall into place.

"The men get the feeling of being important up here," said First Lt. Craig Thompson, of Erwinna, Pa. "We know the Communists are loaded over there, and they are watching us day and night the way we are watching them. Nobody goes to sleep around here."

Col. Petruzel, who looks like a mortar shell ready for action, summed up his front-line outfit's spirit this way:

"If the Communists want to come, let 'em try. We're ready for anything, and these boys are sharp. They are in better shape than any American troops were up here when the fighting stopped. Let 'em come. We're waiting."

SUMMER REGISTRATION FRIDAY AT WASHINGTON U.

Registration for the second semester of Washington University's summer school will be held next Friday from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., and Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon in the Women's building.

More than 150 courses will be offered in the fields of liberal arts, business, engineering and social work. Classes for the five-week session will begin July 23.

500 HERE TO JOIN IN 2-DAY CIVIL DEFENSE TEST

General Public Not to Take Part in 'Operation Alert' Friday and Saturday.

About 500 volunteer civil defense workers and representatives of other groups will participate here Friday and Saturday in the nation-wide civil defense exercise, "Operation Alert 1956."

The general public will not take part in the test, although officials said evacuations of a few buildings might take place. About 150 volunteers will "flee" by automobile to Wright City, Mo., on Saturday, where an evacuation center will be established.

15-Minute Air Silence.

All television and FM radio stations in this area will go off the air for 15 minutes at 3:10 p.m. Friday as part of a national test to prevent signal beams from being used as guides by "enemy bombers," Brig. Gen. F. P. Hardaway (ret.), St. Louis civil defense director, said.

The AM radio stations will continue to operate but at either 640 or 1240 kilocycles and will take turns at the two band locations in rapid succession in a manner intended to confuse hostile planes, he said.

Gen. Hardaway said the AM broadcasts would be concerned with the "Alert" test, but would avoid any pretense that a real attack was under way.

This year, he said, St. Louis will not be among the 76 cities which will be "hit" by air attack, in contrast to the 1955 test. St. Joseph, Mo., and Springfield, Ill., are the nearest "target" cities.

36-Hour Period.

The test here will be carried out in a 36-hour period from 10 a.m. Friday to 10 p.m. Saturday. This will represent a theoretical six-day operation.

Defense workers and some officials of municipal agencies and such service organizations as the Red Cross will assemble at the city-county control center at Howard Bend in St. Louis county.

In the national test, 63 metropolitan centers, nine air bases and four Atomic Energy Commission installations will be assumed hit by nuclear weapons.

TB GROUP SEEKS VOLUNTEERS FOR CHRISTMAS MAILING

Volunteers are needed to prepare for mailing of 56,000,000 Christmas seals for the 1956 campaign to raise funds for the Tuberculosis and Health Society of St. Louis, Mrs. Lucile McNulty, volunteer supervisor of the society, announced yesterday.

Organizations and individuals that can work any weekday in September, October, November or December at the TB Society offices, 911 Locust street, were asked to let Mrs. McNulty know when they will be available.

Volunteers aid in the annual drive by sticking address labels on envelopes, placing the Christmas seals in the envelopes and arranging them in numerical order.

BLUMEYER HEADS GROUP FOR JUBILEE TICKET SALES

Arthur Blumeyer, director of Civic Progress, Inc., has been appointed chairman of the advance ticket sales committee for the Mid-America Jubilee, an exposition to be held in September on the riverfront, it was announced yesterday.

Frank Mayfield and Sidney R. Baer will serve with Blumeyer in calling on businesses and industries in the St. Louis area to encourage purchase of blocks of Mid-America Jubilee combination tickets for distribution or use by employes, Roscoe C. Hobs, president of City-Country Cavalcade, the non-profit corporation sponsoring the jubilee, said.

TRAFFIC IMPROVEMENT PLAN TO BE PRESENTED FRIDAY

A plan to improve traffic flow in St. Louis and St. Louis county by the use of existing streets and highways will be presented Friday to executives of the St. Louis Regional Committee on Traffic and Parking, L. J. Sverdrup, committee chairman, announced yesterday.

He said that drafting of the long-range plan had almost been completed by the Chamber of Commerce of Metropolitan St. Louis. Details of the plan will be announced after the regional committee has approved it.

COUPLE MARRIED 50 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. Herman E. Collins, of Wild Horse Creek road, Chesterfield, will celebrate their fiftieth wedding anniversary this afternoon with a dinner for relatives and friends at their home. They were married July 11, 1906 at Jackson, Mo.

Collins, 72 years old, was employed by the Terminal Railroad Association before retiring about 10 years ago. His wife is 69. They have five daughters, 13 grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

U.S. GROUP TO HELP REBUILD FRANKFURT OPERA HOUSE

FRANKFURT, Germany, July 14 (UP)—An American committee has been formed to help Frankfurt citizens in the $2,000,000 job of rebuilding the city's famed opera house.

The committee is made up of United States service men, local American business men, newsmen and housewives. The gray stone building has remained in ruins since an Allied bombing raid hit it in March 1944.

LIBRARY WILL DISPLAY WOODROW WILSON EXHIBIT

An exhibit commemorating the 100th birthday anniversary of Woodrow Wilson, twenty-eighth President of the United States, will be on display throughout this month in the main hall of Central Public Library, 1301 Olive street.

The centennial exhibit, arranged in five glass cases, consists of books and reproductions of photographs, documents and newspaper cartoons lent by the Woodrow Wilson Foundation of New York City and the St. Louis Public Library.

The exhibits display the work of Wilson as an educator, politician, World War I President, representative of the League of Nations and statesman.

Poland to Get Back Paintings.

VIENNA, July 14 (AP)—Polish art treasures, including a number of Rembrandt paintings, will be returned to Poland by the Soviet Union, the Polish Press reports. The paintings were seized by the Germans during the Nazi occupation and recovered by the Russians after the end of World War II.

Doe Avedon

Got 'Big Town' Role Because Fans Wanted Girl in Series

By Edward A. Harris
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

HOLLYWOOD, July 14

THE STORY OF blue-eyed, chestnut-haired Doe Avedon is unique in that she became an actress without ever wanting particularly to be one.

Miss Avedon, who portrays the role of Diane Walker, the girl friend of Steve Wilson (Mark Stevens) in NBC-TV's "Big Town" series (KSD-TV, 10:30 p.m. Fridays) was working as a bookkeeper in a New York office when she was spotted by Broadway-producer Irene Selznick, then the wife of Movie Producer David O. Selznick.

With a little quiet persuasion, the young bookkeeper was induced to quit her job and sign a contract at a nominal salary to train for the stage. For two years she studied under top Broadway coaches, then had her first role in "The Young and the Fair," starring Julie Harris.

AFTER APPEARING in her next play, "My Name Was Aquilon," Miss Avedon was offered a movie part in England, but elected instead to marry a young actor named Dan Matthews and became a sedate housewife. But two years later her husband was killed in an automobile accident. Doe returned to the theater, this time on celluloid strips.

One of Hollywood's live-wire actors' agents and producers is Charles Feldman, who knows the combinations of many locked cinema doors. On hearing of the Matthews tragedy Feldman contacted Doe. She came to Hollywood for a screen test, did well, and was cast as an airline hostess in "The High and the Mighty," appearing in every scene in the film. After that she played a leading role in the picture "Deep in My Heart."

The big break came when Producer-Actor Mark Stevens was testing prospects for the new role created for "Big Town," the role of Diane. It seems that many viewers of the program decided that Steve Wilson, managing editor of the Illustrated Press, worked much too hard. They wrote in, demanding that he be given a girl friend, a slick-looker.

STEVENS SAW some film sequences of Doe and was impressed. He located her in New York, even before she had time to unpack her suitcases from a three-month vacation trip she had taken to Italy. Doe kept her bags packed, flew back to Hollywood, tested for Stevens and was signed for the TV role, in which she plays a commercial artist.

"I enjoy it, very much," she remarked during an interview, "but it wouldn't be honest to say that I now have decided to be an actress. Fact is, in my whole life I've never had a really clear idea of what I do want. Life is so full of surprises that I've learned not to plan on anything definitely.

"I don't recommend that way of thinking for others," she added, "but it works out all right for me."

All St. Louis TV stations are now on Central Daylight Saving time. Listings of nearby cities are Central Standard Time except for KHQA-TV, WGEM, WTVP and WCIA-TV.

She lives in a comfortable little house in the Hollywood Hills, likes to cook, makes many of her own clothes, and loves to travel. At one time she was fond of skiing, swimming and riding, but has little time now for these sports. Off and on through the years she has taken tennis lessons, but says she still can't play.

DOE, WHO WEIGHS a neat 116 pounds and is five feet seven inches tall, has two little secrets. One is her real first name, "Doe" being an adopted nickname. It must be pretty horrendous, because she won't even whisper it. The other secret is her exact age. Not that she's ancient; anyone can tell that she's still buoyantly youthful, but girls will be girls. It's a safe bet, however, that she's over 21, and she readily concedes she was born on an April 7 in Old Westbury, Long Island.

Her early years were spent in England, where her father, a native of London, was the manager of a large estate. His name was William Nowel, and he died when Doe was 12 years old. Her mother, a native of Aberdeen, Scotland, died when Doe was three. With the death of her father Doe returned to this country to be brought up by relatives.

While Doe insists she had no ambitions other than a desire to do well at whatever she undertakes, she does confess she might like to try "villainous" roles for a change. But this tall, well-groomed young woman doesn't look very villainous — even if her real first name were Rasputinella—and she says it's even worse than that.

The Television Letter Box

Letters Intended For This Column Should Be Addressed To Television Editor, TV Magazine, Post-Dispatch, St. Louis 1, Mo.

THE recent drama, "Starfish," on KSD-TV was really a polished production in every way. Every role was excellently done. And Farley Granger was nothing short of great. A difficult role that could have been pure "ham" was so poignantly played. Let's see more of him. Joanne Woodward also was excellent, as was everyone.

Many, many people miss Liberace on TV. His shows were always an inspiration. Please bring him back. And thank you for the Russ David show. Good music and very enjoyable if one is fortunate enough to be home from work by 4 in the afternoon.

Our family looks forward to seeing Clint Walker in "Cheyenne" every Tuesday evening. These stories are well acted, have plenty of action, and revive the old West. Hope they will continue.

Three cheers for the teenagers who suggested an hour of Elvis Presley and other rock 'n' roll singers, especially for us kids. To have such a program would be the most we could expect.

A Pair of Tapestries

COMPOSER Richard Rodgers conducts the N.Y. Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra for a Columbia album. Film versions of Rodgers and Hammerstein's Oklahoma!, Carousel, The King and I are now on view, plus their stage hit, Pipe Dream.

by RICHARD RODGERS

THE AUTHOR (l.) poses with his first collaborator, the late Lorenz Hart. The year: 1932.

On a spring evening, 31 years ago, I sat alone and discouraged in my parents' New York home, my youthful dreams of becoming a composer fading into air.

My previous progress had been unusually encouraging. I had composed my first song at the age of 14, conducted my first musical revue at 15. As a freshman at Columbia, I had had a score used in the Varsity Show. After college, my lyricist-collaborator, the late Larry Hart, and I wrote songs for two Broadway shows, and felt we were on our way.

Then came the cruel awakening. For a whole, long, agonizing year we were unable to sell a single number. We wrote nearly 30 semi-amateur shows, put on in schools, churches and synagogues. But not one publisher or producer showed any interest in our work.

By that spring evening, I had become so disheartened that I was on the verge of taking a job as a childrens'-underwear salesman. Suddenly the telephone rang. The call was from a family friend. "Dick," he inquired, "how would you like to do the score for a semi-amateur revue the Theatre Guild is putting on? They're trying to raise money to buy a pair of tapestries to help the acoustics in their new playhouse."

I can't remember now whether I laughed or just snorted. But I told him bluntly, at some length, how I felt about such shows. He persisted. "All right," I finally agreed, "I'll give it one last try — providing Larry can work with me."

The show was entitled The Garrick Gaieties. It was scheduled for only two Sunday performances. But it rang such a resounding bell that it ran, in two editions, for 48 weeks.

The following year, Hart and I had four musicals on Broadway and a fifth in London!

I don't say that eventually we might not have achieved success under different circumstances. I don't know. But I believe my feelings about it can be summed up in something I unthinkingly said to Larry while we were attending a Guild opening years later.

Pointing to the tapestries hanging beside the boxes, Hart proudly remarked, "Those tapestries, Dick — we're responsible for them." To which I heard myself answering, "No, Larry, you've got it backwards. They're responsible for us." ■

The truth about

Authorities tell how a controversial

A YOUNG WOMAN — call her Mrs. Dodd — suffered violent asthma attacks. After drug treatment failed, doctors suggested that her sickness might be caused by some emotional problem. At this, she scoffed.

To cure her asthma — and prove the doctors wrong — Mrs. Dodd decided to find the "ideal climate." She moved from Minnesota to six different states, winding up in California. Still the asthma attacks came.

Finally she went to a psychiatrist who decided to try hypnosis. In a hypnotic trance, Mrs. Dodd "reached" into her past. She revealed a bitter conflict of many years with her father. It stemmed from an inheritance which she felt he had mishandled.

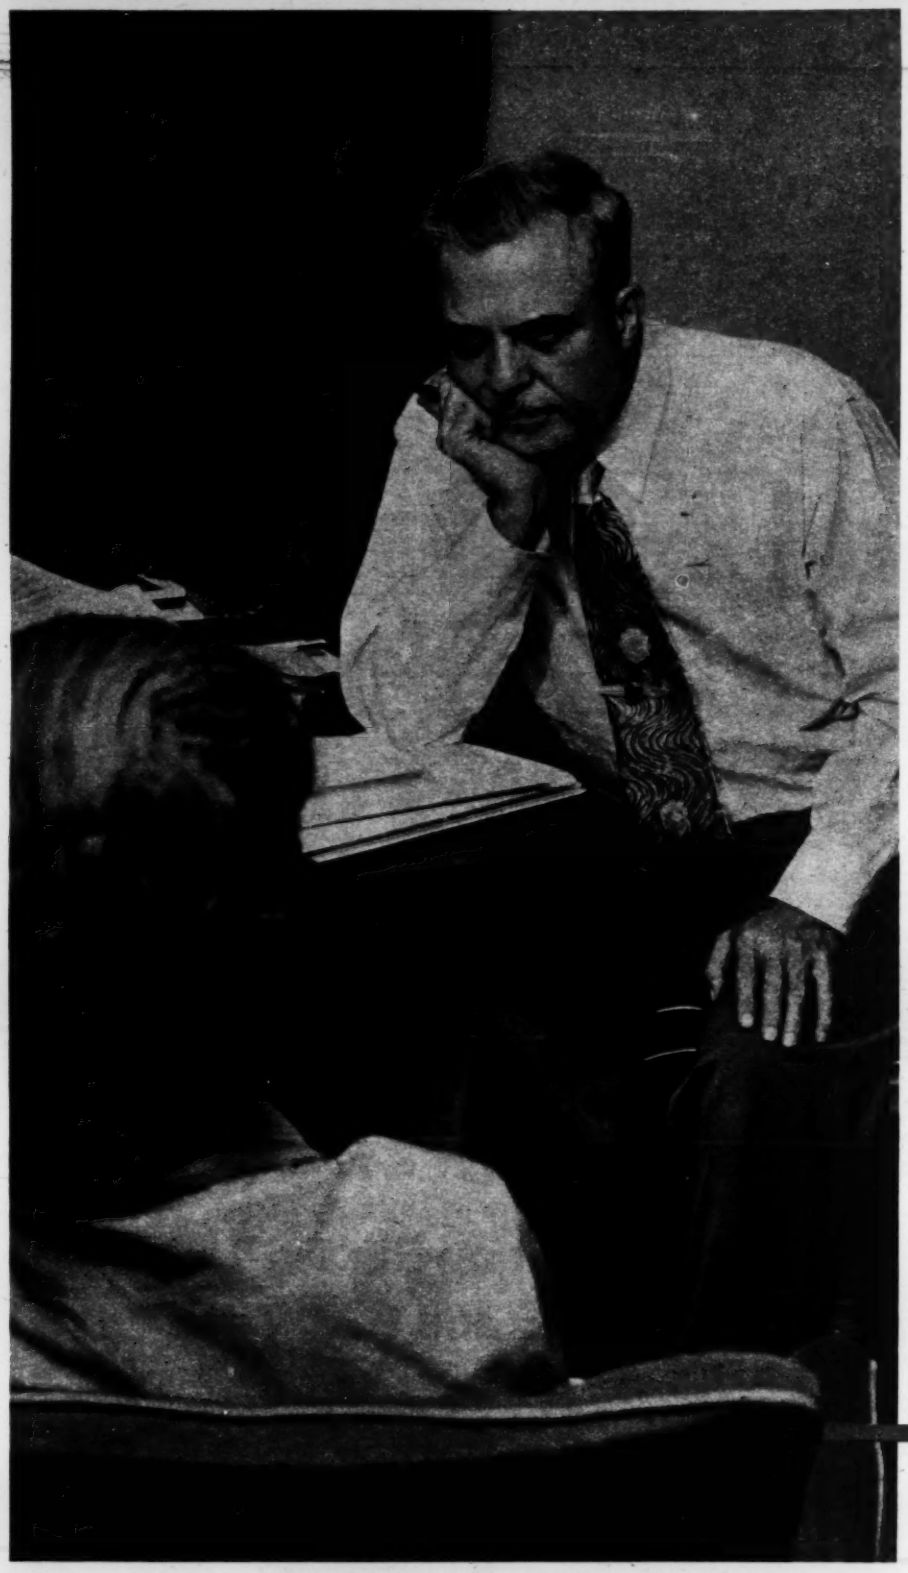

Out of the trance, she was helped to understand the conflict by the doctor. Gradually her asthma attacks subsided. For the past three years, Mrs. Dodd has been free from the choking agony of an asthma seige.

Behind that dramatic story lies one of the great controversies in health care today — hypnosis. It has been debated since the days of the ancient Greeks.

Through the centuries, hypnosis has been hailed as treatment beneficial to mankind and denounced as witchcraft. In the 1780s, a commission branded Viennese doctor Franz Mesmer (from whose name comes the word mesmerize) as one of the all-time fakes for his claims about hypnosis. A prominent, and vocal, member of that commission was Benjamin Franklin.

From Mesmer's day to this, a melodramatic haze has surrounded hypnosis. Stage-show hypnotists have given it an aura of charlatanism. The recent "Bridey Murphy" craze has only compounded the confusion.

In the hoopdedo atmosphere surrounding hypnosis, these vital facts have been obscured: more and more U. S. doctors, dentists and psychologists are using hypnosis as a treatment tool; it is helping to achieve amazing success in a variety of ailments — burns, skin disorders, mental ailments and others; more practitioners are learning to use hypnosis, so that in the future it will be fairly commonplace; hypnosis may help you, or someone you know, to overcome some illness.

HYPNOTIC TREATMENT is devoid of mystery. Here, Dr. Milton Erickson of Phoenix, Ariz., treats a mentally disturbed woman who has just been placed in a trance state. Cooperative patients can be hypnotized in a matter of minutes. Children are among the easiest to hypnotize.

Hypnotic suggestion has produced results in these areas

by ROBERT P. GOLDMAN & SID ROSS

what HYPNOSIS can do for you medical tool helps overcome pain, fear and many other disorders

Thus, in the hands of trained practitioners, hypnosis is coming of age. But for patients like one boy — call him Roy — hypnosis has more than come of age. It has proved the difference between misery and happiness.

Roy had been bed-ridden with a skin rash that covered much of his body. Once in a while, the rash would subside for a few days, letting Roy leave his bed. But it always came back.

Under hypnosis, it was suggested to Roy that the periods of comfort could be extended if he followed his allergist's orders. In addition, Roy revealed a hostile feeling toward his parents — not unlike that of Mrs. Dodd.

As in the latter case, hypnotherapy paid off. Once Roy began to understand the emotional factor in his illness, he improved. Roy enrolled in college four years ago and has had little trouble with his skin rash since.

The Real Facts

Is a case like Roy's an isolated one? PARADE directed that question, and others concerning hypnosis, to the nationally renowned "dean" of U. S. medical hypnotists, psychiatrist Milton H. Erickson of Phoenix, Ariz. (Dr. Erickson, incidentally, considers the hypnotic technique and results of the "Bridey Murphy" story very misleading.)

His answer to the question concerning Roy is an emphatic "No." Thousands of persons have been and are being helped by hypnosis, he says. And he gives authoritative answers to some of the widespread misconceptions about hypnosis.

There's something occult or "other-worldly" about hypnosis. False, says Dr. Erickson. A hypnotic trance represents a normal state of mind, but one in which the mind's "deep layers" — the unconscious and the subconscious — are probed.

Essentially, the purpose of hypnosis is to establish a healthy "climate" between doctor and patient — and to induce the patient to think, do or feel things which will prove beneficial. In a trance, many patients show unusual ability to respond to suggestion (from the therapist) and thus to set out on the road to health.

Suggestions made by the therapist while the patient is in a trance will produce a positive patient attitude or action when he comes out of the trance. This is known as post-hypnotic suggestion.

You can be hypnotized against your will. False again, says Dr. Erickson. Hypnosis is based on cooperation between patient and therapist. You cannot be made to do anything against your will under hypnosis. And hypnosis cannot add to your talents or capacities. It can only help you use those talents.

You can be transformed into an evil being by the hypnotist. False. Hypnosis cannot transform a good citizen into a bad one.

Once the patient cooperates, the hypnotherapist may employ many techniques. In one, the patient is asked to concentrate on an object, then on another. Slowly the hypnotic state takes over. In a sense, a trance represents a "twilight zone" between wakefulness and sleep in which the patient can deal with current or remembered situations beyond his conscious capacity.

Hypnosis is not yet fully understood by experts, but it has been proved beneficial in a variety of illnesses.

The pain of many ailments can be alleviated by the "directed suggestions" of hypnotherapy. Similarly, hypnosis has been used to reduce the fear of childbirth among many women. Natural childbirth, say authorities, is really a form of hypnosis.

Dentists are using hypnosis on an ever-increasing scale, to reduce the fear of treatment and to lessen the pain itself. Among some dental patients, hypnosis serves as either partial or total anesthesia. One dentist cited by Dr. Erickson hypnotizes an entire waiting room of patients, one by one, before treating them.

A group of Texas doctors reported recently that hypnosis helped keep alive a number of burn victims. It served as anesthesia, stimulated the patients' appetites and got them to exercise burned body parts.

Hypnosis has been invaluable in treating patients with many types of neuroses, phobias and other mental ills. One 30-year-old woman who suffered claustrophobia (a fear of "closed-in" places) overcame her illness when, under hypnosis, she recalled that as a child she had fallen into a grain feedbox on her grandfather's farm. Once the significance of that episode was explained, she lost her fears.

In certain surgery cases, hypnosis has served to prepare the patient to accept the operation without fear or excitement. It also is possible, through hypnosis, to hasten recovery after surgery. For example, hypnosis can reduce pain, relax the injured organ and improve circulation, which leads in turn to faster healing.

Even in the practice of general medicine, hypnosis has a place. It can induce a patient to stick to a prescribed medical regime; it can help some fat people stick to their diets; it even can induce a patient to get to sleep on time.

Needed: More Therapists

Why isn't hypnosis used more widely? Dr. Erickson cites two reasons: 1) There is a shortage of hypnotherapists; 2) There is resistance to hypnosis on the part of the general public and the professions. Thus, trained hypnotherapists today number only in the hundreds.

But there's a silver lining in this cloud, too. Dr. Erickson and other authorities travel around the U. S. from time to time giving short-course training in hypnotherapy to professionals. A half-dozen U. S. colleges and universities have — or are setting up — courses in hypnosis. The British Medical Association has urged that all medical students in Britain be trained in hypnotherapy.

Gradually the barriers to hypnotherapy are disappearing. As that happens, more people will benefit from hypnosis. Now, scientists hope to proceed to perhaps the most important application of all — the use of hypnosis to study the basic, still unknown principles of learning, memory and thinking.

As one doctor puts it: "The full medical benefits of hypnosis have just begun to be tapped!" ■

Hypnosis has been used in the following conditions — often with results that surprise even the most skeptical medical and dental practitioners.

Pain: To provide partial or total anesthesia in a variety of painful illnesses.

Childbirth: To help women accept the experience and to reduce pain.

Allergy: To discover the possible role of deep-seated emotional factors that may cause or worsen allergic conditions.

Skin disorders: To learn whether the illness has any emotional causes and to induce the patient to follow a prescribed course of treatment.

Burns: To lessen pain and permit required treatment.

Emotional ills: To help diagnose and treat them.

Dentistry: To help the patient cooperate in treatment — and to reduce anxiety and pain.

Surgery: To instill confidence in the patient, reduce pain — and, at times, help speed recovery following an operation.

General medicine: To induce the patient to follow the doctor's orders and to avoid habits or practices harmful to the condition under treatment.

Alcoholism: To induce the patient to stop drinking. So far there is limited experience with such patients — and only sketchy reports of successful results.

THE DUKE...

...AND THE PRINCE

Like father, like son

Science still is debating which does more to shape the growing child, heredity or environment. Thus there can be no positive scientific explanation of the photos above. Science aside, however, newspaper readers the world over have seen pictures of the Duke of Edinburgh pacing with hands clasped behind his back. Now PARADE readers can observe his 7-year-old son, Prince Charles, doing the same thing. Evidently it's a family trait.

Ever feel like trading yourself in for a new model?

SOME OF US take a lot better care of our automobiles or television sets than we do of ourselves.

The slightest knock or murmur sends us off to the service station to have the fan belt tightened or the car lubricated. Or a little flutter on a screen, and we're off jiggling the phone and asking the TV specialist to be there within the hour.

Now, there's nothing wrong with pampering our pet possessions, but it just seems to be reasonable, common sense that we apply the very same care to our most precious possession of all—our complicated, sensitive bodies. Yet how few of us do!

Autos, TV sets can be exchanged, traded in. But you just can't trade yourself in for a newer model. You just can't buy a new set of nerves, head or stomach. Not even if you're an oil man from Texas or the King of Saudi Arabia.

Before you say to yourself, "Joe should read this. This is for him . . ." STOP!

This message is for YOU.

We mean YOU. That's right, YOU.

On using your common sense

Unless you stop to ask yourself some mighty pointed questions, you're not likely to believe yourself guilty of the very symptoms you so clearly see in others.

Are you irritable? . . . Do you find yourself in needless arguments about trivial things? . . . Do you toss and turn all night long, yet wish you could get another 40 winks as the alarm goes off? . . . Then chances are that you are not taking care of yourself as well as you should.

Yet—very often, the "knock" or "squeak" you develop as the years go by may be corrected very simply . . . almost as simply as tightening a fan belt.

Your doctor would tell you . . .

Your doctor would be the first to tell you that, for some people, one of the worst offenders against the human nervous system is the caffein in coffee or tea.

The use of this strong stimulant day after day, week after week, may make you jumpy, nervous, irritable, hard to live with. However, if you're addicted to this habit, there's no reason in the world why you can't get yourself in tune again, begin to feel as you'd like to.

You replace a bad habit with a good one

You switch from caffein-heavy drinks to a wonderful hot beverage—Instant Postum.

There isn't a taut nerve, a sleepless hour or a headache in Postum. It can't make you nervous, irritable. It can't keep you awake at night because there isn't a single grain, speck or fleck of caffein in it.

New! Tastes like coffee

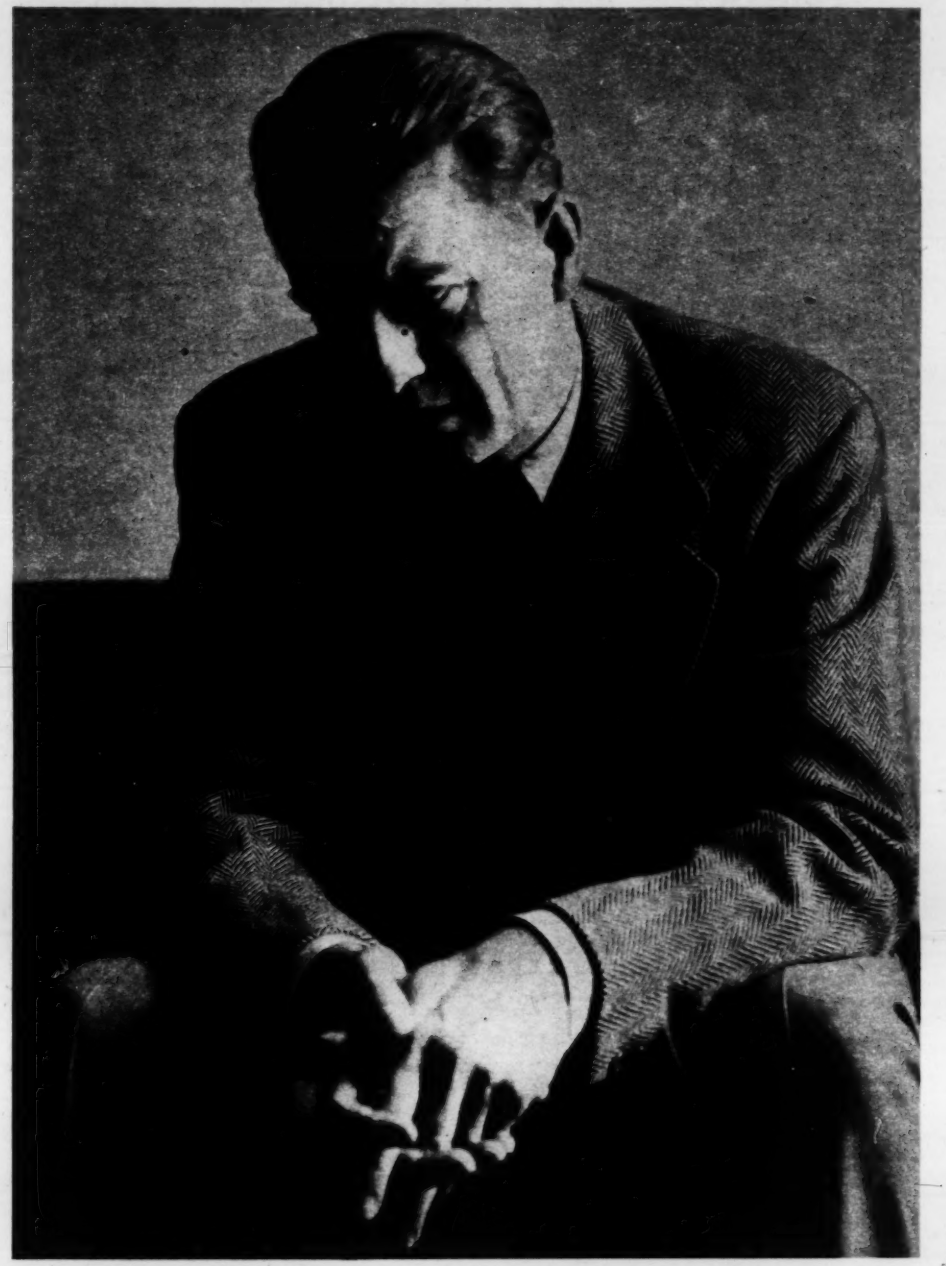

Now available for the first time is a new, delicious Instant Postum—Imitation Coffee Flavor.

What a rich aroma this new beverage has! And it tastes so full-bodied, so satisfying.

You make Postum instantly, right in the cup. Just add boiling water and stir. You can enjoy it straight or with cream and sugar, all day long, without fear.

Your grocer has both new Imitation Coffee Flavor Instant Postum and famous regular Instant Postum with a distinctive flavor that millions have enjoyed for many years.

You owe it to yourself and to your family to try this satisfying, caffein-free beverage not just once, but for 30 consecutive days. After all, you can't expect to free yourself from the accumulated effect of a habit of years in two or three days or even a week.

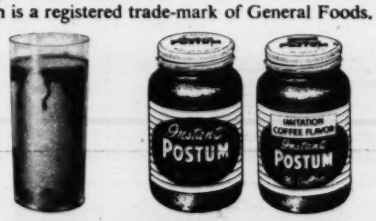

Costs half as much as most coffees

Whether you choose new Imitation Coffee Flavor Instant Postum (red label) or regular Instant Postum (blue label), you'll get up to 100 cups from the 8-oz. jar and up to 50 cups from the 4-oz. jar—for less than a cent a cup! Both are so low-priced, compared with ground, instant or decaffeinated coffees. Cup for cup, Postum costs only half as much.

So, try Instant Postum for at least 30 days—take this one step that may make a real difference in your life . . . give you zest to renew friendships . . . make every day so very worth while!

Don't let another day go by without giving caffein-free Postum a fair trial. Start the 30-day test today. See if you don't feel better! Act better! Look better! Postum is a registered trade-mark of General Foods.

Frostiest, most refreshing drink you'll taste all summer! It's the Postum milk shake—made with cold milk and Instant Postum. See easy directions on jars. You'll enjoy iced Instant Postum, too—and Instant Postum is always delicious hot. Have some today—any way!

FAST ASLEEP, lioness Penny and Sultan, her mate, lie in their cage in Munich's Hellabrunn Zoo, unaware cameraman is lurking just outside the bars.

Wake up, Pop!

A loafer at heart, the lion stirs himself from sleep only because his mate insists

MUNICH, GERMANY. Does Papa Lion do his duty as guardian of his family when danger threatens it by night?

A German cameraman went to the Hellabrunn Zoo here recently for the answer to this question — and came back with the photos on these pages, probably the first zoo closeups of sleeping lions ever taken.

Photographing sleeping wild animals is not easy. Though their eyes are closed, their ears and noses stay alert. But the photographer was able to surmount this problem and prove, at least to his own satisfaction, that the so-called King of Beasts — a notorious loafer when awake — also will sleep blissfully every chance he gets unless his mate wakes him up. ■

ROUSED by click of camera, Penny glares, then tries to awaken snoring Sultan with a tap of her paw. Ignoring his mate, Sultan makes no protective move.

Debra Paget is trying

Two minds with one thought . . .

Wearing a suitably exotic costume, Debra Paget poses with her mother, who inspired and continues to push Debra's current "glamor" campaign.

e glamor for Hollywood get is trying hard to re-create the gaudy living of the 1920s

Hajji Baba, the macaw, keeps Debbie company in a corner of the family garden.

by LLOYD SHEARER PARADE WEST COAST CORRESPONDENT

HOLLYWOOD.

Debra Paget, the well-turned actress whose face decorates PARADE's cover today, has embarked on a project unusual even in this unpredictable town: at 23, she is attempting to bring back the way of life that made Hollywood famous before she was born.

Auburn-haired, blue-eyed and entrancingly curved (5'3½"; 36, 21, 35), Debbie comes from Denver and was christened Debralee Griffin. She signed her first film contract at 15, since then has been a distinct ornament to a succession of pictures (latest: Seven Angry Men, The Ten Commandments, The Loves of Omar Khayyam) as well as television and the night spots of Las Vegas, Nev. But her career to date is less interesting, in certain respects, than her feelings about the way people should live in Hollywood.

"The trouble with this town," claims Debbie, "is that it's lost its luster. Movie stars aren't living like movie stars any longer. They're living just like plain people, and that's wrong, because what the fans are buying nowadays is glamor — not the girl next door. If the public wants to see the girl next door, all they have to do is look out the window."

Urged on by her mother, Margaret Gibson, a shrewd, talkative, charming ex-burlesque queen who is a well-loved local figure in her own right, Debbie has come to feel so strongly about Hollywood's de-glamorization that she now spends most of her spare time and money (her salary: $1,550 a week) living glamorously.

When she bought her first Cadillac three years ago, for example, she had it painted shocking pink. "It stopped traffic," Mama recalls proudly.

This year she got another Cadillac — a strawberry-colored one — and she spent $500 encrusting it with jewels. When she drove it onto the Paramount lot, where she was starring in The Loves of Omar Khayyam, even Martin and Lewis were impressed. "This is the only car in the world," Dean Martin announced, "that is lubricated by a jeweler every thousand miles."

Debbie also has taken to wearing 5" earrings and star sapphires on her forehead, and discussing almost without reluctance her love affair with millionaire sportsman Howard Hughes.

"I was in love with Howard for two years," she says, "and I don't care who knows it. He is one of the kindest, most wonderful men on earth. I was never alone with him in the whole two years. Mother was always with us. He used to fly us to Las Vegas and other places.

"I haven't seen Howard for a long time now, because I'm a one-man woman, and I've got to have a one-woman man. I've got to be the girl in a man's life or I'm not going to hang around. But I'll always remember Howard with fondness."

Other Paget attention-getters are her home, her menagerie, her wardrobe.

Three years ago Debbie canceled all publicity sittings designed to show her as a home girl cleaning, dusting and cooking. With her parents (her father,

Naturally shy, Debbie is

Frank Griffin, is a former house-painter) and her three sisters and brother, she moved into the most bizarre house in Beverly Hills, a 26-room job built by Constance Bennett three decades ago. Among its features are black-and-gold marble bathrooms, steam cabinets, a tiled swimming pool, three dens, an entrance hall with murals of jeweled mermaids and a Chinese worshiping room.

To this fantastic layout Debbie and Mama have added 10 TV sets, 20 parakeets, a macaw, a parrot, a cat, a Golden Gibbon ape, assorted dogs and an incredible variety of statuary, ceramics, paintings and bric-a-brac. Every period and style of furniture is represented. No wall has been left uncluttered. No color has been omitted.

The editor of a shelter magazine once inspected the furnishings and remarked, "This is an example of free taste carried to anarchy." Another visitor, asked to give his impressions, was nonplused. "All I can tell you," he said, "is that the place is done in Early Hollywood" — which is precisely what Debbie seems to want.

The actress adds: "For business reasons, I believe in living and looking like a Hollywood movie star. I own more than 150 pairs of shoes, and whenever I go out, I dress to the teeth in tight-fitting sheaths. No one is ever going to photograph me in a pair of slacks. What's glamorous about slacks?"

Actually, it is hard to determine whether such statements originate with Debbie or with her mother. By nature Debra is shy and uncommunicative. Until three years ago, when all this began, she was considered impossible to interview, answering only yes or no to all questions.

"In a quiet way," she concedes, "I'm ambitious. I want to be a tremendous show-business success because we've been a show-business family for generations. But I'm not the forward or pushing type. And I simply can't lend my name to those phony romance items.

"When Howard Hughes gave me that 5-carat diamond ring a few years ago, everyone urged me to tell the columnists who had given it to me. I just couldn't. Eventually I sent the ring back to Howard, but at the time I just wouldn't talk about it. I'm just not the type who can make up witty little sayings about sex and things."

Other than Hughes, Debbie never has had a steady beau. She shuns night clubs, premieres and other industry affairs. After each of her pictures she throws a party at her home; she invites the working crew — grips, gaffers, electricians — but never the cast. She feels at ease with laborers, self-conscious with artists or intellectuals.

Her whole life is built around her career. She has a massage every day in the week, adheres to a rigid diet, takes lessons in dancing, singing and acting. "I feel miserable when I'm not working or rehearsing," she says.

Her sex appeal is more contrived than natural. In movies she always plays the role of the sweet innocent, which gripes Mama. "You can't get anywhere in this racket," Mama explodes, "playing Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm. Those days are over. I've tried to tell that to Debra's bosses but they won't listen."

Mama's dealings with Debbie's bosses began eight years ago. The family had moved here when Debbie was 11, enrolling her in the Hollywood Professional School. When Mama wasn't out playing clubs or theaters, she taught Debbie the finer points of hoofing and emoting. In 1947 a scout from 20th Century-Fox saw Debbie in a stage play in Los Angeles. His reaction was favorable. Studio executives waited a year, then signed her to a seven-year contract starting at $75 a week.

Soon she was appearing in such vehicles as Cry of the City, Anne of the Indies, Prince Valiant and Demetrius and the Gladiators. Younger moviegoers, especially, liked her; by 1952 she was No. 3 on the studio's female fan-mail list, topped only by Marilyn Monroe and Betty Grable.

At this point Debbie and her mother hoped for "one hot picture, one great role that would shoot her to the top." Somehow the role was not forthcoming.

"You know something?" Mama demands rhetorically. "In practically all of her pictures, my Debbie's never had a decent modern role. In Broken Arrow with Jimmy Stewart she played an Indian girl. In Bird of Paradise she was a native. In Ten Commandments, she's a slave girl. In Omar Khayyam she's engaged to the Shah of Persia.

"But for years, no kiddin', for the past five years we tried to talk to Darryl Zanuck about some good parts for Debbie. Zanuck wouldn't see us. On the level, for the past five years we haven't spoken to him. His secretary once said to us, 'Mr. Zanuck isn't even talking to important people these days.' That's when I decided that Debbie would have to start glamorizing herself."

Debra accordingly was busy last week cementing another $200 worth of crystal to the roof of her Cadillac, pursuing the forthright aim of advertising herself to the powers that be. Would glamor really do the job for her? "Sooner or later," she cheerfully confided, "I know I'll make it." ■

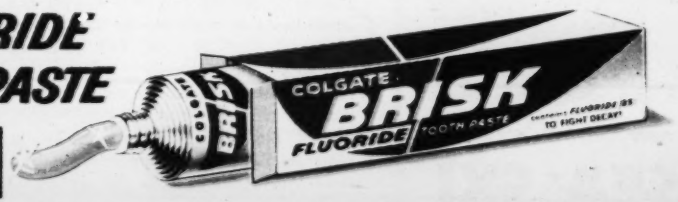

FISHNETS decorate this cozy nook in Debbie's home. The house cost actress Bennett $150,000, probably is worth twice that today.

Take a baker's cake...

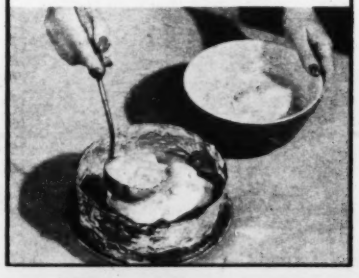

and make three delicious desserts

by BETH MERRIMAN
PARADE FOOD EDITOR

July days are long, lazy days and no one wants to spend much time in the kitchen. Thus you should welcome these luscious, yet easy-to-make desserts that feature baker's cake, packaged ice cream, instant pudding mix and fresh berries. Suggestion: Make the first two recipes at the same time, as each calls for only one cake layer. Serve one. Freeze the other unwrapped, then wrap-seal in foil or plastic and store a few days in the freezer.

TWO SPONGE-CAKE LAYERS in a neat carton (above) are an easy beginning for many a summer dessert. Below is the foil collar around a single cake layer used when making Banana-Cream High Hat.

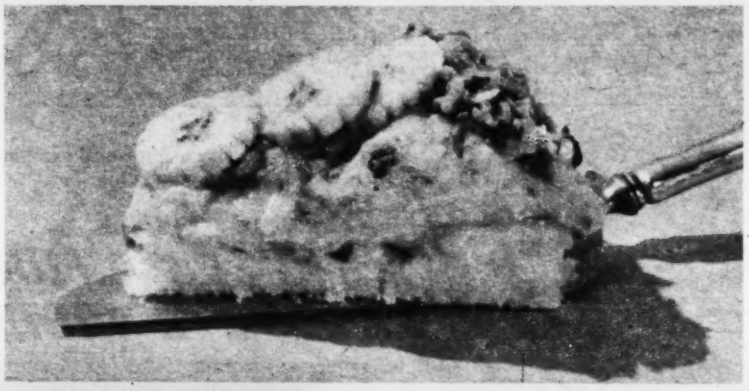

FROM PARADE'S TEST KITCHEN

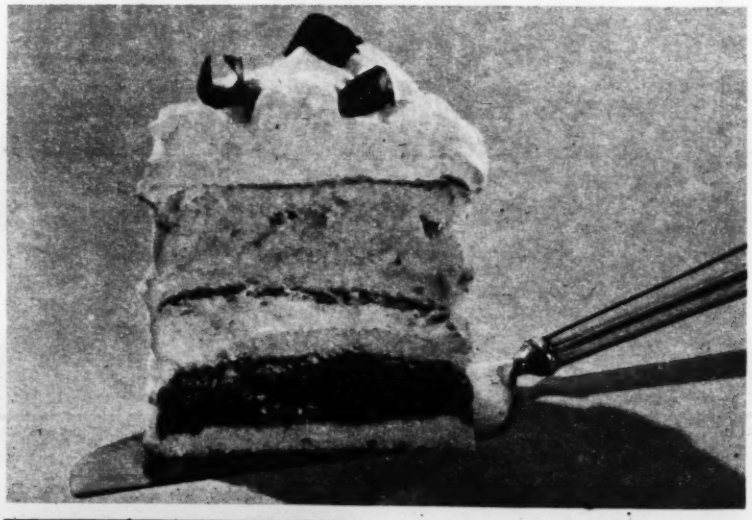

Raspberry Ice-Cream Pie (1 layer)

Cut cake layer in half crosswise to make two thin layers. Place bottom layer in 8" pie pan. Top with 1 pint vanilla ice cream, then with 1 cup slightly crushed, sweetened raspberries. Add second layer. Whip ½ cup whipping cream, spread on cake. Border with 1 cup whole raspberries. Makes six to eight servings.

Banana-Cream High Hat (1 layer)

Make a "collar" of a double thickness of aluminum foil around one cake layer, 1½" higher than cake. Secure ends with paper clips. Pour 1 cup milk and 1 cup whipping cream into bowl. Add 1 package instant banana-cream pudding. Beat until well mixed (about 1 minute). Fold in ½ cup broken walnut meats and 1 banana, sliced thin. Pour mixture on cake layer within foil collar. Chill. Garnish top with ¼ cup chopped walnuts and another banana, sliced. Remove foil collar. Makes six to eight servings.

Neapolitan Ice-Cream Cake (2 layers)

Cut both cake layers in half, crosswise, to make four thin layers. Place bottom layer in deep 8" layer-cake pan; top with 1 pint chocolate ice cream. Add another cake layer and top with 1 pint vanilla ice cream. Add third cake layer and top with 1 pint strawberry ice cream. Add last cake layer. Whip ½ pint whipping cream and use to frost cake. Garnish with chocolate curls. Makes eight to 10 servings.

Teen-age Topics

Here are some more of the many questions you are sending me on dating and other matters.

Q. I am 14 years old and I would like to know why my father treats me like a baby. A week ago I asked him if I could take a girl to a dance. My family knows her pretty well, but he said, "You are too young to think about girls." Another time I asked him if I could take this girl to the movies. His reply was the same. Am I too young? — L.G., Syracuse, N.Y.

A. Your father is not realistic in saying that you are too young to think about girls. You began thinking about them long ago and now you are getting to an age where you are sure to begin dating them.

I find that fathers are much less willing than mothers to grant that their children are growing up and moving out into wider experiences. Why not bring your mother into the discussion, too? Perhaps your parents will agree that you may invite this girl home. Perhaps if your father sees her around the house from time to time, he will more easily accept the idea of your taking her on some kind of limited date.

Q. Is it polite to comb your hair in front of other people? — S.W., Newburgh, Ind.

A. No, not in a public place.

Q. Ever since I became a teenager I have had fat legs. The rest of me is just right. My mother says that I'll lose the extra weight in time and don't need to see a doctor about it. I am 15 years old now. Do I have to accept this situation? — B.L., Boston, Mass.

A. You may have to, but there are many exercises that will slim legs — bicycling, for example. Still, leg shapes are not the key to lasting happiness. When you are young, physical characteristics often take on an importance they really don't deserve.

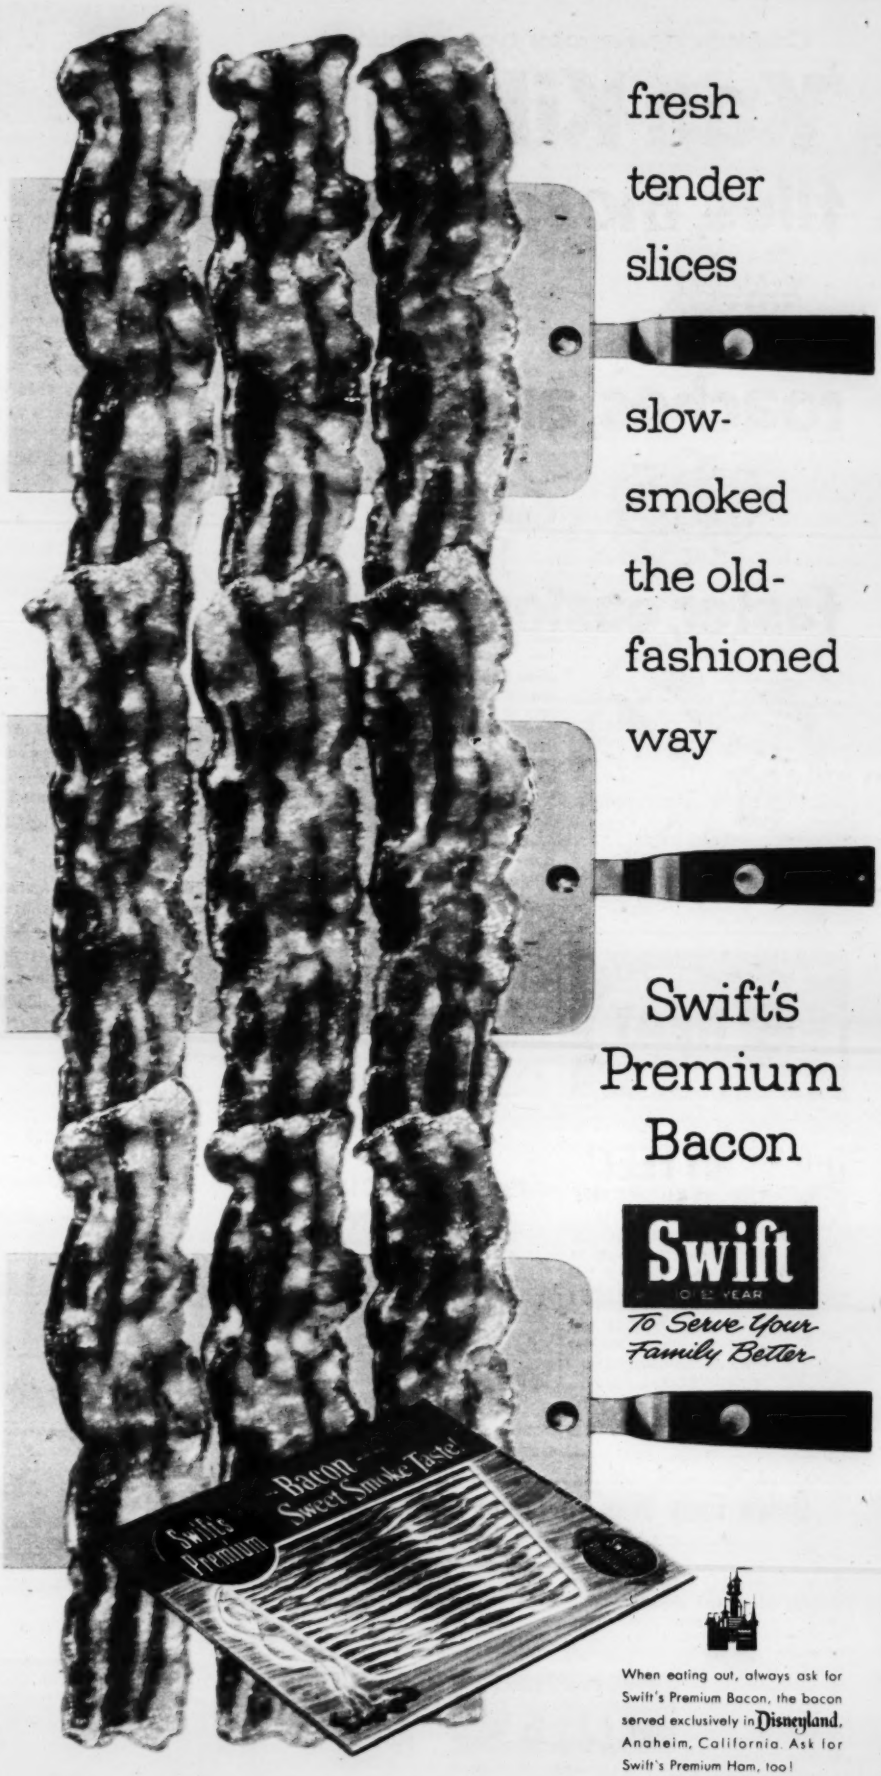

Q. My fiance bought me a fairly inexpensive formal for our school prom. His mother didn't think it was proper for him to buy me that. Is she right? — L.K., Arlington, Calif.

A. Yes. Even if you are formally engaged, you should not accept any gift that would have to be returned if the engagement were broken. Articles of clothing given under the circumstances should be rather impersonal — handkerchiefs, scarves, gloves. The acceptance of personal gifts cheapens a girl.

Q. I like a boy who doesn't like me. All the kids tease me about him — even when he is around. This makes him dislike me even more. How can I get them to stop teasing me? — J.L., Warwick, Va.

A. You shouldn't have indicated so clearly that you like the boy, especially if he has no interest in you. Just ignore the teasing and in time "the kids" will get no satisfaction out of it.

REPORT ON Youth

A different kind of teenager

BONING UP on dinosaurs, boy paleontologist Bob Carroll sprawls out in bedroom studded with scientific maps, specimens and souvenirs.

Michigan's Bob Carroll likes dancing—but he likes fossil-hunting more

by SID ROSS and ED KIESTER

MASON, MICH.

At the age of 3, Bob Carroll liked to be read to sleep with a picture book, Ancestors of Man. At 8, he staggered his parents with a tall Christmas request: either "a million dollars for a fossil-hunting expedition" or a dinosaur bone. He got the dinosaur bone, as a gift from the Chicago Museum. Today, 18-year-old Bob describes it: "A left femur of allosaurus, a fairly large carnivorous dinosaur of the Jurassic era."

The fact that not one in 10 of his teen-aged contemporaries can translate this into English (or even cares to) doesn't sway him from his singleness of purpose. In the fall, Bob will enter Michigan State University, near here, on a $4,000 scholarship, to study paleontology — the science of fossils. Around Mason, his choice of a life's work is regarded with a mixture of awe, amusement and sarcasm. Sometimes, behind his back, he is referred to as "Bonehead" or "Rockhead."

Being known as a "brain" sets Bob a little apart from the other teenagers, but he is perfectly normal in many respects: he likes basketball, dancing, girls and pineapple sodas with strawberry ice cream. He isn't, however, the typical flighty teenager. Nor is he the teenager out to make a million. Bob's idea of his future niche is a low-paying job in a museum.

Some of his teachers and friends, in fact, think he is throwing away his scientific talent at a time when industry and government are crying for scientists. At least, they think, he should consider being a micropaleontologist, in demand by the oil industry to compare fossil samples from oil layers. Bob has considered it. "There's good money in that field," he admits. "But you're comparing known samples—it's pretty much regulated and routine."

Routine has never held much interest for Bob. For a number of years

An information-packed article about your baby's care, feeding, growth and fun. Watch for it each month.

How To Help Your Baby Feed Himself

Tuck-in technique

Hot weather hints

WHEN baby gets do-it-yourself ideas about feeding, let him try—ready or not! If you put him off too long, he may lose interest in self-service and demand mother-service for months. Or he may even stage a hunger strike.

• Give him a spoon of his own, small and straight-handled. Then you can feed him without a spoon-grabbing contest! He'll enjoy hunting for and finally finding his mouth. With doctor's OK, introduce some Junior Foods along with baby's Strained Food stand-bys. Heinz diced and minced Junior Foods make self-feeding easier. Baby's happy to work hard for such delicious-tasting results.

• When he manages a bite or so, let baby practice by himself. But come back soon and help; he gets tired. Don't mention misses—just hits. Manners are for later!

• Extra sponge-offs and airings in his birthday suit are treats for baby in hot weather. Naptimes and at night, move his crib away from the wall so it catches stray breezes. If he eats less, don't worry or urge. Keep nipple holes big enough. Sucking is important—but bottle-fed babies can work up a sweat from sucking too hard!

• Why does your toddler pop out of bed so regularly? Maybe more outdoor exercise would make him sleepier. Or perhaps less excitement right before bedtime. Give him all the go-to-bed attention you can. It helps cut down demands after he's tucked in. Make your Good Night friendly but "for real!" Even a toddler can tell when Mommy and Daddy mean what they say. Sleep problems caused by fear and anxiety call for different treatment—we'll talk about that another time.

• Weaning to a cup can now be fun—not a chore, thanks to Heinz new spill-proof tumbler. It has a lid with a little perforated spout—which lets liquids flow through at just the right speed to suit a small person learning a new way to swallow. No big gulps to choke on—or run in rivers down his chin! For a non-breakable nylon tumbler, pink or blue, send 50c and 12 labels from Heinz Baby Foods to H. J. Heinz Co., P. O. Box 28, D-9—PA-76, Pittsburgh 30, Pa. For a sturdy plastic tumbler (pink or blue) send 25c and 6 labels from Heinz Baby Foods.

• How long can you keep baby food once it's been opened? Baby food packed the Heinz way—in protective easy-to-seal-again glass jars—keeps fresh and flavorful for 2 to 3 days under good refrigeration. When resealing, push the cap down tight with the palm of your hand—pressing all sides equally. Put the re-sealed jar in the coldest part of the refrigerator—next to (never inside of) the freezing compartment.

• Meat fed babies relax more readily and sleep more soundly, studies show, than babies who get no meat. Also, meat-eaters grow faster and stay healthier. Your doctor will say when to add this iron-and-protein-rich food to your baby's diet—perhaps quite early. Heinz offers 8 tender top-quality Strained Meats—lightly seasoned to the famous taste-perfection of all foods prepared in Heinz shiny-clean kitchens since 1869.

MUSEUM VISITORS get lecture on early fossils from director himself, who collected all of them.

An even-up trade: a half-inch animal for a dinosaur bone now, he has been "director" of the "Mason Museum of Natural History." The "museum" is housed in a barn behind the Carroll home and contains his wide-ranging collection of fossils, Indian relics, minerals and pottery fragments, as well as such items as Civil War muskets, battlefield souvenirs and sea shells.

The prize exhibit, of course, is the dinosaur bone. Several years ago, Bob was able to repay the Chicago Museum with a half-inch fragment of a bryozoa, a rare specimen which the museum didn't have. He picked it up in a gravel pit near his home. Along with his father, a high-school science teacher, and his mother, a former nurse, he often goes on field trips to hunt new specimens.

Occasionally he will turn up at a farmer's door, carrying hammer, chisel and pegs, and ask permission to dig on their land. "Most of them think I'm screwy," he says. Once in a while he hits the jackpot in the form of a stone quarry. A favorite digging place is at Alpena, in Michigan's Southern Peninsula, and the Carrolls have taken trips as far as Yellowstone National Park, Utah and Canada.

As a museum director, Bob also must deliver short talks on paleontology to school classes and Boy Scout groups that naturally gravitate there. The whole exhibit is carefully catalogued and displayed, for Bob is a stickler for accuracy.

A few years ago, in making a display of Indian lore, he used flint and granite implements to skin a rabbit and give a real ring of authenticity to the exhibit. In another exhibit on woodland Indians for the Youth Talent Exhibition at Lansing, he thinks maybe he overdid his passion for realism. He included a real Indian pipe which he had found at Dewitt, Mich. But the pipe had been scoured clean by the soil and, to make it look charred, he slipped down to the basement, shredded a tobacco leaf into it, and smoked it. "I didn't feel too well afterwards," he admits. "Possibly that was carrying the interest of science a little far."

One of Bob's exhibits, on living and fossilized weeds, won him a $100 scholarship in this year's Westinghouse Science Talent Search. His high-school marks dropped to "B" only once — in second-year Latin. In Mason High's graduating class this year, he took second honors; his girl friend, Helen Swaim, was first.

Part of the teen-aged couple's fun comes from challenging each other's brainpower. For instance, Bob dared Helen to write a term paper on Einstein's theory of relativity; she did, and received an A. He has a great deal of respect for her brilliance. "Why, she took trigonometry because it was a snap course," he says admiringly. Although a whiz at math, Helen is more interested in commercial art.

The couple's other pastimes are a little more normal: they go to a movie, or for a drive in Bob's dad's car, a 1951 Chevrolet. They also attend the Presbyterian Church together. Bob is commissionary chairman of the youth group, and sees in science the proof of the existence of God. The study of paleontology, he thinks, shows that evolution was guided.

In his recently ended high-school days, Bob was mayor of the student council and much admired. He and Helen frequently turned up at high-school dances. With his clique of friends, he went to basketball games or often "just out riding around." By association, some of his friends have worked up an interest in archeology and paleontology. Some of them serve as his assistants on fossil-hunting trips, and a few have even become collectors.

Looking back on high school, Bob thinks maybe it was "a little soft"; he never worked up to his limit. Michigan State, he expects, will be different. Of recent months, Bob has been considering teaching — in the same field. Hints from his parents that he might try some other science or profession have been rejected out of hand.

Other people have suggested that Bob would contribute more to future generations if he channeled his talents into physics or electronics. Bob looks at it differently; a real contribution to mankind, he thinks, might be "the discovery of some insignificant little skull that is a clue to a line of evolutionary descent."

Suggestions that he be more like the majority have little effect on Bob. He's been swimming against the tide since he was 5, when he picked up his first trilobites in the Carroll gravel pit. He wants to be a paleontologist. If this means being an off-beat teenager, he'll do it; if it means rejecting the accepted idea of a successful career, he'll risk that, too. In a democracy, he realizes, he has the right to be as different as he wants to. ■ HUNTING TRIP for Carroll family begins with tools ready. Bob's father and mother usually take color photos of flowers and trees while he hunts for fossils.

NEXT WEEK: A mother and her son conclude "Report on Youth" with a no-holds-barred discussion of today's teenagers.

ST. LOUIS TOWERS

Contrasting Architectural Styles In View Across the Plaza Area

FOUR TOWERING LANDMARKS of downtown St. Louis present architectural contrasts in this view across the newly cleared Plaza area. In immediate foreground is the richly ornamented top, or lantern, of the Gothic bell tower of Christ Church Cathedral, with its finials and gargoyles visible in striking close-up detail. Portion of Central Public Library roof is visible at lower right, with Olive street just beyond. At left are the twin bell towers of historic St. John's Catholic Basilica which faces Sixteenth street. Its architecture follows classic Italian style. At right, also on Sixteenth, is the 200-foot modified Gothic spire of Centenary Methodist Church.

Dominating upper part of photo is the clock tower of Union Station. Its architecture is Romanesque, a solid, thick-walled style that predates the slender, airy Gothic. Scaffolding just above the tower's clocks was being used to complete reroofing of the station in red tile. White building to left of clock, in distance, is Firmin Desloge Hospital on South Grand avenue, built in modified French Gothic style to harmonize with nearby buildings of St. Louis University.

SMALL FRY FROGMEN

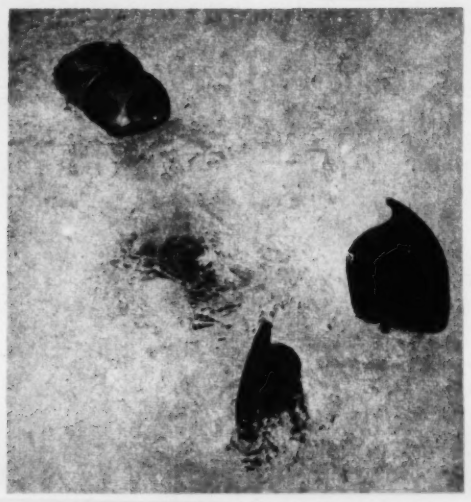

They Go Swimming Happily Encumbered With Skin-Diving Gear

Wearing three items of head protection, Christine Jennings comes up from a dive. Her outfit includes nose clamp, cap and mask.

Dale Goldberg tugs down snorkel and mask of his younger brother, Michael. To be watertight, masks must fit snugly.

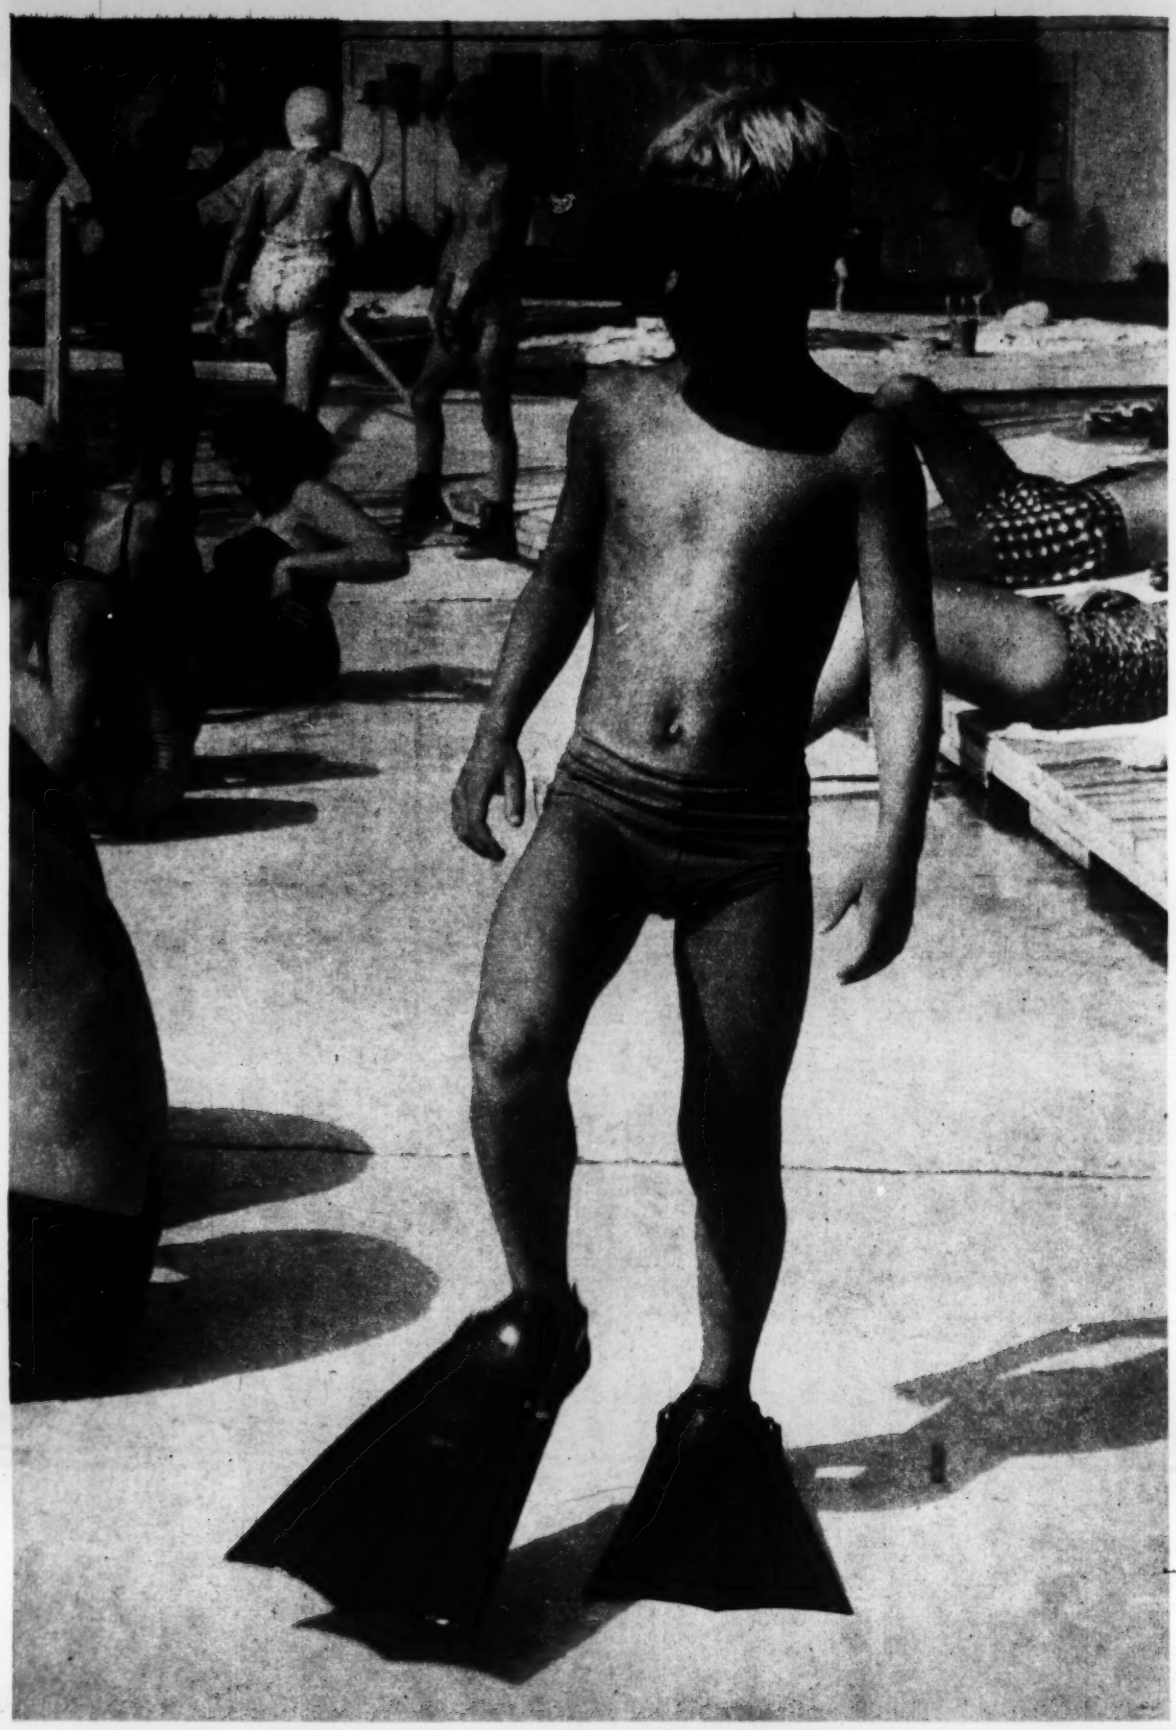

In water churned to froth by his now idle flippers, John Paisley peers from behind plastic plate of his face mask.

UNTIL FAIRLY RECENTLY, small fry needs for summer swimming were simply swimming suits and water. This season, some pools have been invaded by youngsters harnessed in deep-diving equipment, and not at all bothered by the incongruity of using it in water hardly up to their chins. The upswing in popularity of skin diving as an adult recreational diversion and the exploits of frogmen being depicted on movie and television screens have been reflected in the increasing number of face masks, snorkels and flippers that are now being worn by young swimmers.

On the banks, the equipment makes walking awkward. Nevertheless, the web-footed youngsters keep their snorkels, face masks and flippers on, and flop about in them with particular pleasure. Part of the fun of small-scale skin diving seems to be the pride of possession, the feeling of being right for the occasion.

For parents, the special equipment is just something more for youngsters to lose. Some swimming pools consider it a safety hazard to other swimmers, prohibit its use.

Photos by JACK GOULD of the PICTURES Staff

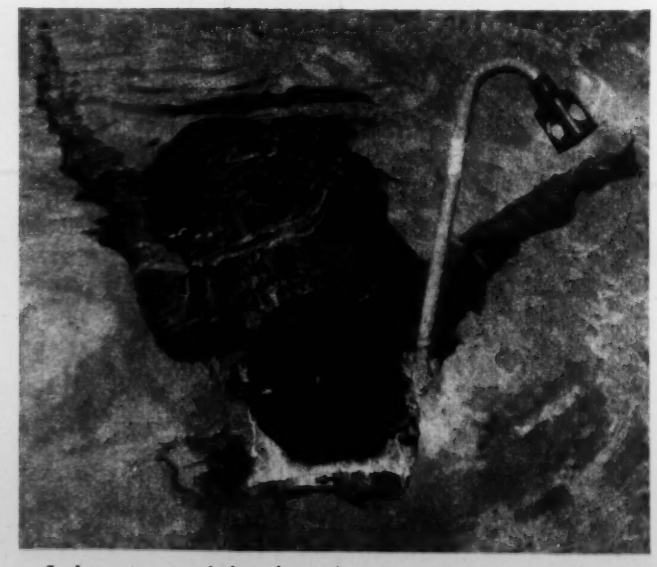

Kenneth Adams, with mask in place, wears his flippers for a laborious walk on dry concrete bordering pool.

Sitting by pool, Michael Goldberg is weighted down with the most in skin diving gear—flippers, mask and snorkel.

As he swims just below the surface, boy's snorkel provides him with air. If top of snorkel is accidentally submerged, plastic ball is forced, by water pressure, over air opening. It then prevents water from running down tube.

SUNDAY AT THE AIRPORT

Visitors Find New Terminal Building an Exciting—and Cool—Sight-Seeing Stop

An airport terminal visitor listens to one of four telephones attached to an advertising display. He's hearing recorded information about a steel plant in the St. Louis area.

Spectators get a satisfying view of plane refueling operations from iron-railed balcony beneath center arch of terminal building on its landing field side. The new terminal building is on the north side of Natural Bridge road, just west of Edmundson road and east of the Naval Air Training Station. Its parking lot accommodates about 1000 automobiles.

At an airline ticket counter a prospective traveler checks map while an attendant waits patiently. Scales are for weighing passenger baggage.

From cushioned seats in the waiting area, a man, a woman and a Pekinese observe the sights in various directions.

Women visitors have soda pop and conversation in waiting area of the terminal's long, broad stretch of concourse.

Diners at tables near windows of the carpeted Kitty Hawk Room, most elegant of the terminal's eating places, have excellent view of activities on the landing field. Many families dine out at the terminal. There are also a snack bar, a coffee shop and a private dining room.

Man wearing summer sports togs loads film. Unusual perspectives and good light bring cameras out of their pouches.

Men, women, children watch activities on flight apron from roofed 700-foot spectator deck that extends from center of terminal building. In background, other spectators observe from behind one of the large arches of green glare-resistant glass. Beneath this deck is one of terminal's three concourses or "fingers" used by passengers in getting to and from planes.

Woman in phone booth has her hands full. She uses one to keep boy from falling off stroller.

By CHARLES MENEES of the PICTURES Staff

SIGHT-SEEING IS ZOOMING THIS SUMMER in the new terminal building at Lambert-St. Louis Field. A reliable estimate is that for every terminal passenger there are five to six persons on the premises as spectators. These include visitors greeting or bidding farewell to passengers as well as many more who just drop in to enjoy the terminal's sights, sounds and facilities. This volume about doubles the old ratio of 3.2 spectators to one passenger that prevailed at the old and overtaxed terminal before the new structure was occupied last March. The new ratio is believed to be as high as that of any other air terminal in the nation.

Sunday is the big day, particularly in the afternoon and early evening hours of concentrated flight arrivals and departures. If it's an extremely warm day the spectator traffic is even heavier. The air-conditioned terminal is an oasis of escape from outside heat. Shorts and other informal clothing are in constant parade.

The new building, with its 239,000 square feet of floor space, is a sort of city in itself. Visitors, singly and in family groups, roam at will in the spacious concourse. There are places to eat, shop, play pinball games, get a haircut. And the high-arched expanses of glass provide dramatic vantage points from which to watch the planes come and go.

Photos by JACK GOULD of the PICTURES Staff

Young viewers at another of the terminal's advertising displays. This one is a map of St. Louis area with globular markers indicating points of interest. Most displays have lights, motion, sound effects.

Customer, right, receives purchase from a clerk at shop that offers everything from diapers to phonograph records, sundries to costume jewelry.

Ice cream cones help while away time at the terminal. Among other services new to a St. Louis air terminal are branch post office, a nursery and a cocktail bar that serves nothing stronger than 3.2 beer.

A family group finds comfort amid terminal activities on a hot afternoon. The man has a portable radio so as not to miss the baseball broadcast.

A SPICY-FLAVORED tomato aspic salad can add zip to a summer meal. Miss Verna McCallum, home economist for a food products company in Indianapolis, makes one that she calls barbecue egg salad. It is recommended to accompany outdoor cooking.

Miss McCallum dissolves lemon-flavored gelatin in a portion of tomato juice, heated, then cools it with additional tomato juice and chili sauce. When the mixture is partly congealed, under refrigeration, pickle and thinly sliced green onions are folded in. Slices of hard-cooked eggs, sprinkled with salt and pepper, are placed decoratively in a small amount of the gelatin mixture poured into a ring mold. When chilled until firm, the egg slices will remain in place, then the remaining gelatin mixture is spooned on top. Additional egg slices are then pressed into the gelatin until all are submerged. This prevents breaking up of the egg slices and gives them better distribution. The ring mold is placed in refrigerator until very firm. When ready to serve, the mold may be dipped briefly in hot water to loosen, a serving plate is placed on top, held tightly and turned upside down. Curly endive, with cooling shades of green, encircles the sparkling hot-weather salad. One salad ring serves six. Individual molds may be used.

INGREDIENTS

- One package lemon-flavored gelatin
- One No. 303 size can (two cups) tomato juice
- One tablespoon pickle relish (sweet)
- One tablespoon chili sauce
- One-fourth cup sliced green onions
- Six hard-cooked eggs (sliced)
- One-eighth teaspoon pepper
- One-half teaspoon salt

5. When salad is chilled to firmness, it is slipped onto a platter, surrounded with endive. Creamy cottage cheese is a good side dish.

American Women, Australian Men Dominate Tennis Classic

THE ANNUAL TENNIS TOURNAMENT on the ivy-walled courts at Wimbledon, England, came off as expected: Australia monopolized the men's division, the United States dominated women's play. Of five championships, Americans won two and a half.

After nine years of trying, Shirley Fry of St. Petersburg, Florida, won the women's singles crown. Her victory kept alive the tradition of American supremacy among women at Wimbledon since World War II. She teamed with Philadelphia's Vic Seixas to win the mixed doubles title. Althea Gibson of New York and Britain's Angela Buxton were the winning pair in women's doubles.

Australia's 21-year-old whiz kids, Ken Rosewall and Lew Hoad, met in Wimbledon's first all-Australian men's singles final since 1922, with Hoad the winner. They teamed up to repeat their 1953 triumph in the men's doubles.

SEARCH FOR WEAPONS IN CYPRUS CEMETERY

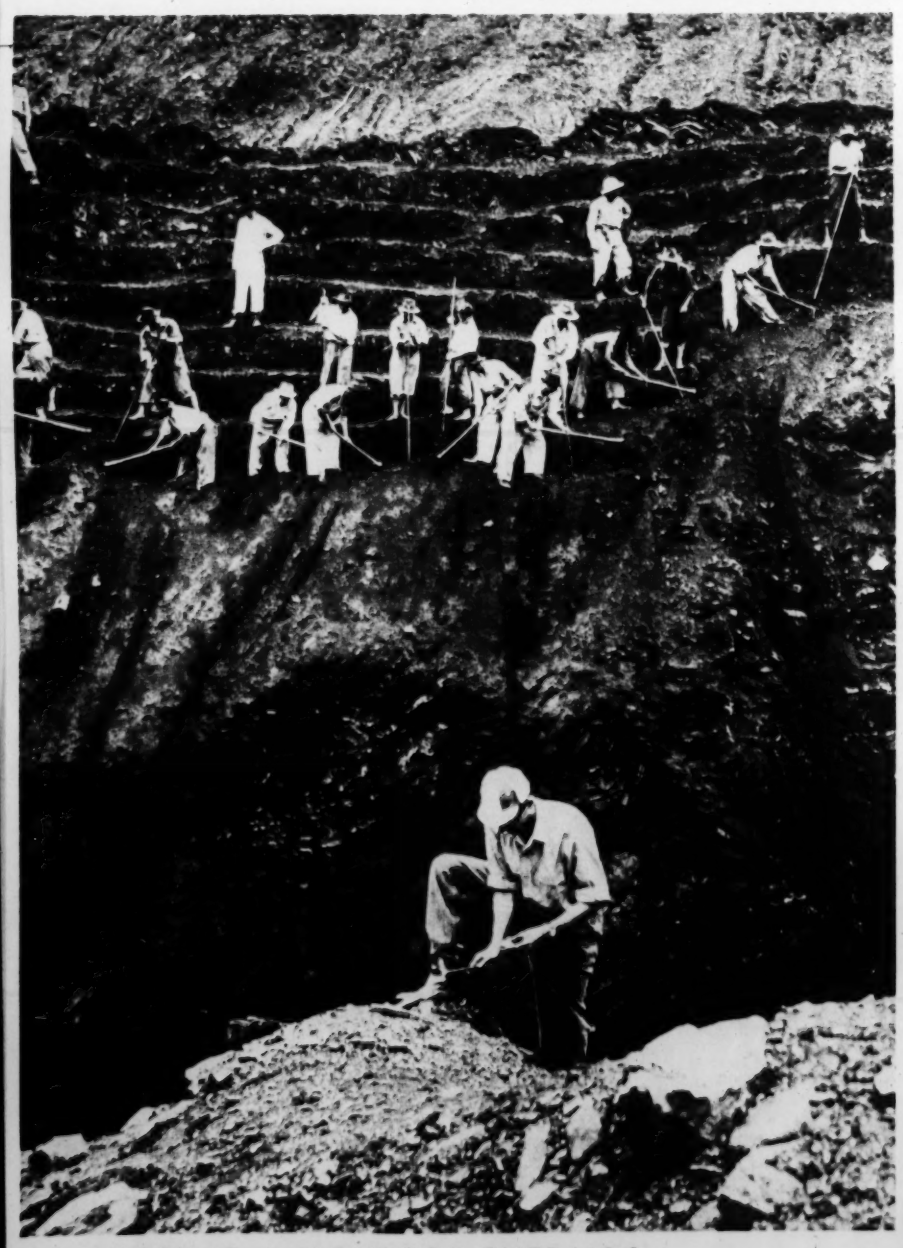

Acting on a tip from an informer, British troops search for weapons of Cyprus patriots in a cemetery of Nicosia. One soldier, at right, uses a mine detector. Others probe with sharp-pointed sticks. Previously, caches of arms had been found by the British in the hollow bottoms of gravestones. In this all-day search, no arms were found, but three young Cypriots were arrested near the cemetery. One carried a gun.

TIRE CHANGE ON A HOUSE

Changing a tire on a 16-wheel house-moving rig is almost as big a job as moving the house. These men were transporting a frame bungalow at Hutchinson, Kansas, when a tire blew out, throwing an overload on a second tire which also collapsed. They managed to change the tires and continue on their way without disturbing their cargo.

HEADGEAR AT THE RACES

Even in a land where unusual hats are more or less conventional, these headpieces caused head-turning. The display was seen at Longchamps racecourse, outside Paris, when Actress Diana Roussin, wearing a frilly cartwheel, sought advice from a British professional tipster called The Prince, whose Zulu-style bonnet with plumes is his distinguishing mark.

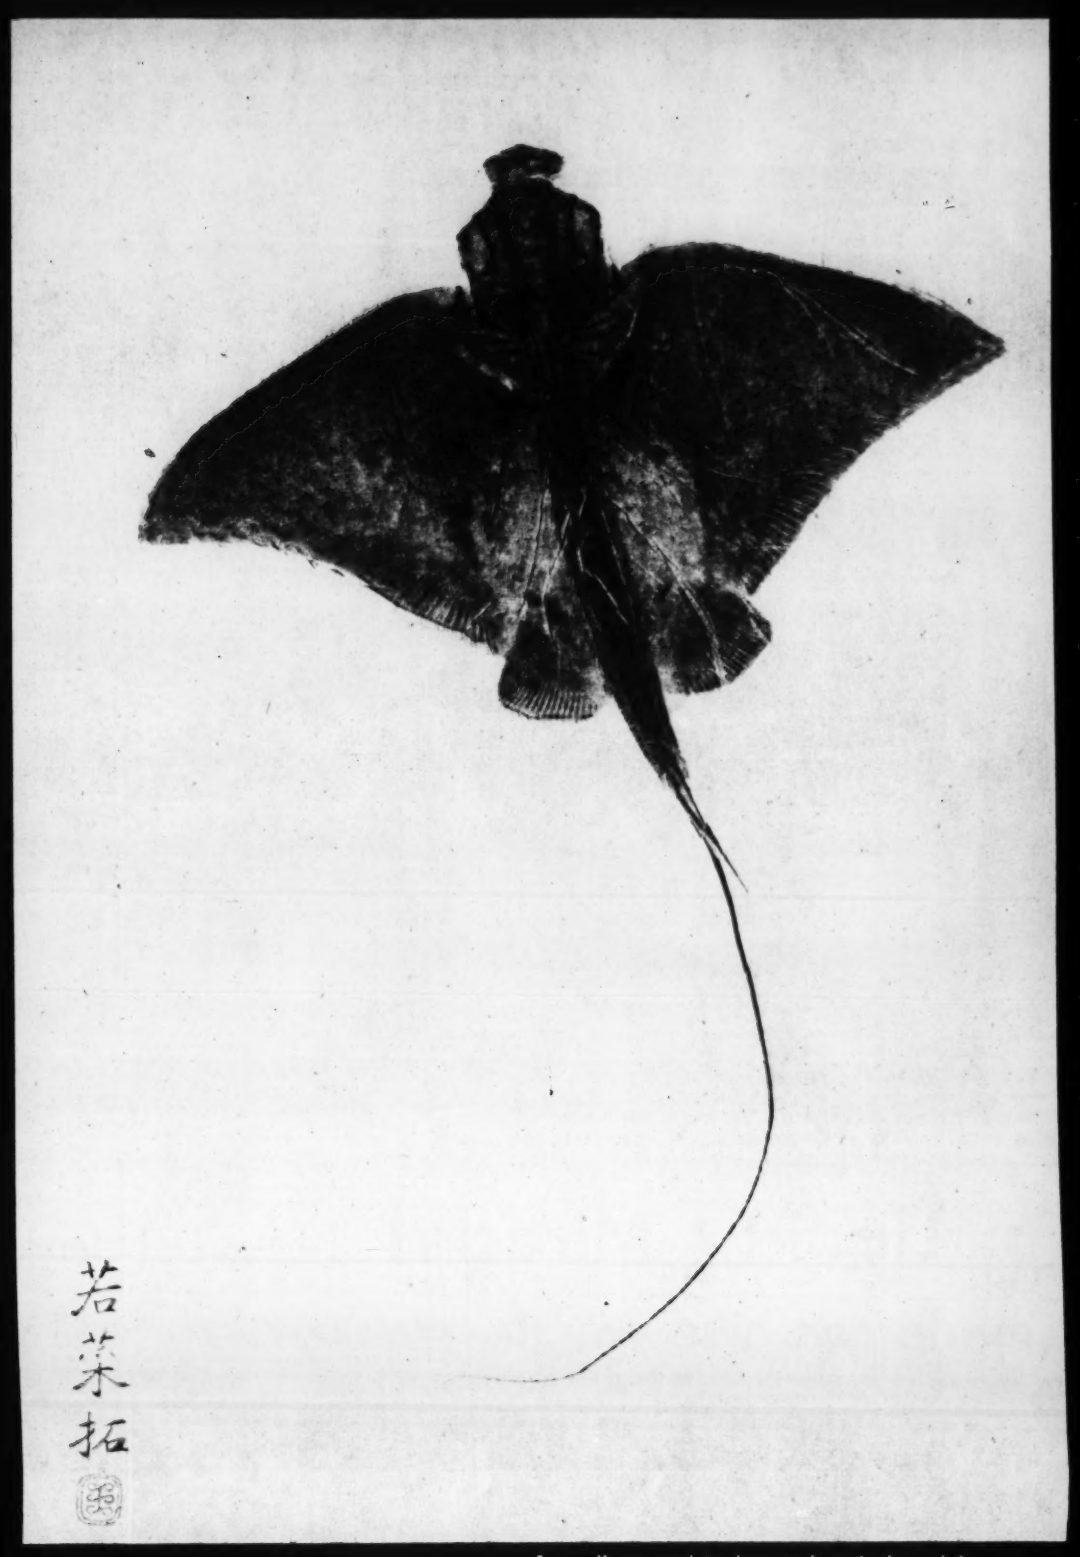

Rock fish were reproduced by indirect method of applying ink to wet rice paper laid over fish. Some of the show's prints are in color.

Japanese Process of Taking Actual Impressions of Fish Produces an Art of Distinctive Liveliness and Delicacy

School of silver-gray half beaks is imprinted in formation. Paint skillfully applied to the paper shows details of beaks from which the fish get their name.

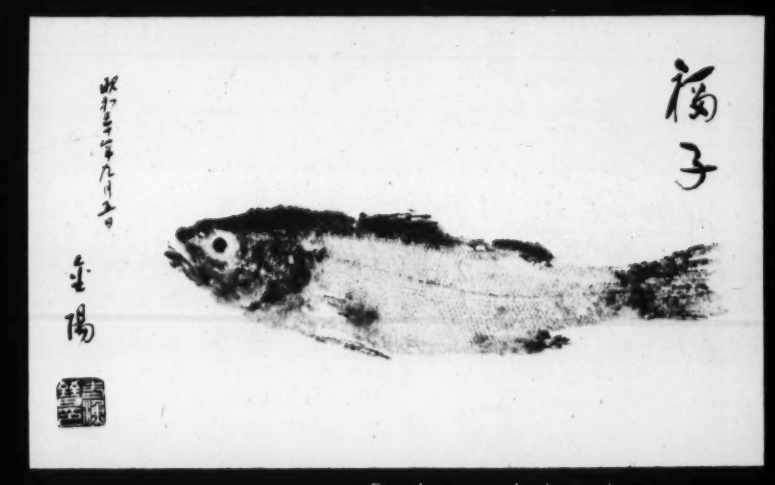

A small ray and its long tail, with the subtle modeling of the body faithfully portrayed.

ACTUAL-SIZE PRINTS OF FISH in ink or paint are an old form of folk art in Japan. The prints are used as signs for tackle shops, to decorate seaside resorts and to hang as proof of prowess in homes of fishermen.

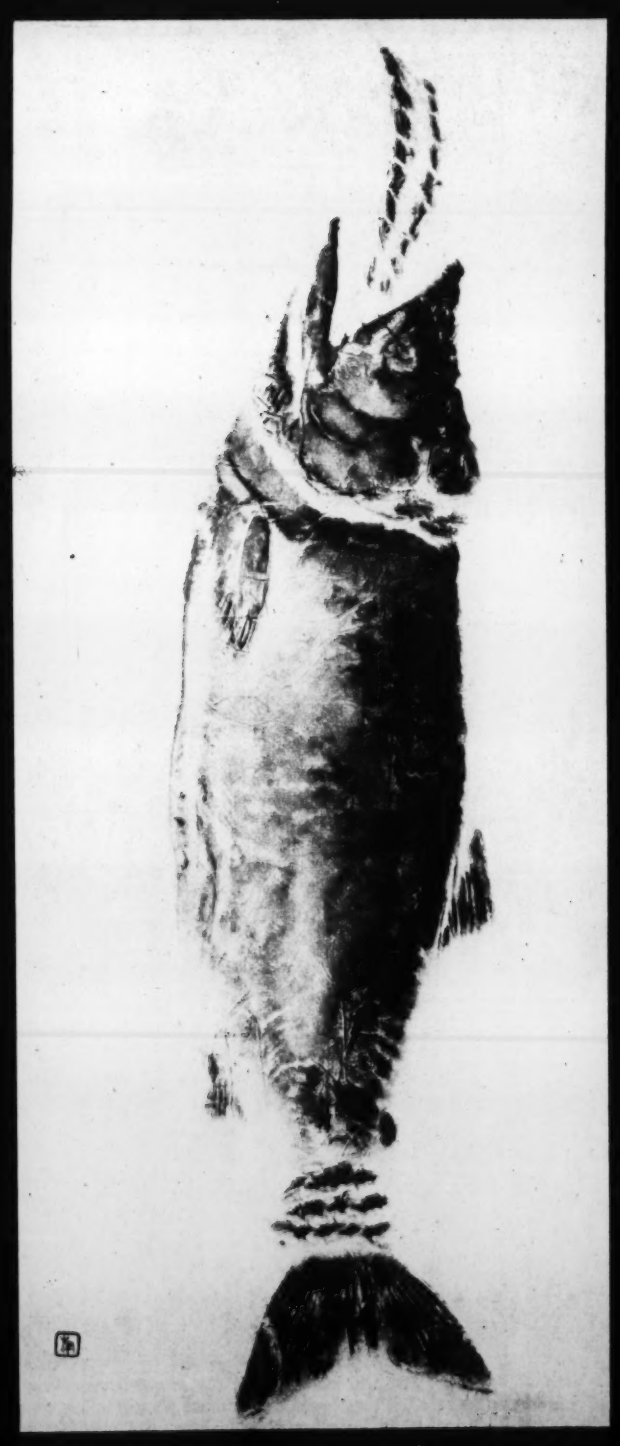

Recently the skill of Gyotaku, a Japanese word for an impression taken of a fish, has been revived by a group of painters and ichthyologists. Artists use the medium as an art form to reproduce the delicate lines and color shading of the fish's body, the scientists as a help in fish identification and study. A fish print often shows more clearly than a photograph the identifying characteristics of a fish. Scale counts, usually done on an actual specimen, can be made from the impressions.

Two methods are used in making the prints. In one, ink or paint is applied directly on the fish. A fine rice paper is pressed evenly over the fish to make an imprint. In the second, or indirect method, wet rice paper is placed on the fish. Ink or paint is then lightly applied on the outside of the paper. The direct method tends to exaggerate the outline, producing a bold effect. The indirect method results in a more delicate, minutely defined impression. Care is used in both by the Gyotaku-makers to produce a print that is faithful to life and at the same time a thing of beauty.

NEW INTERIOR TOUCHES

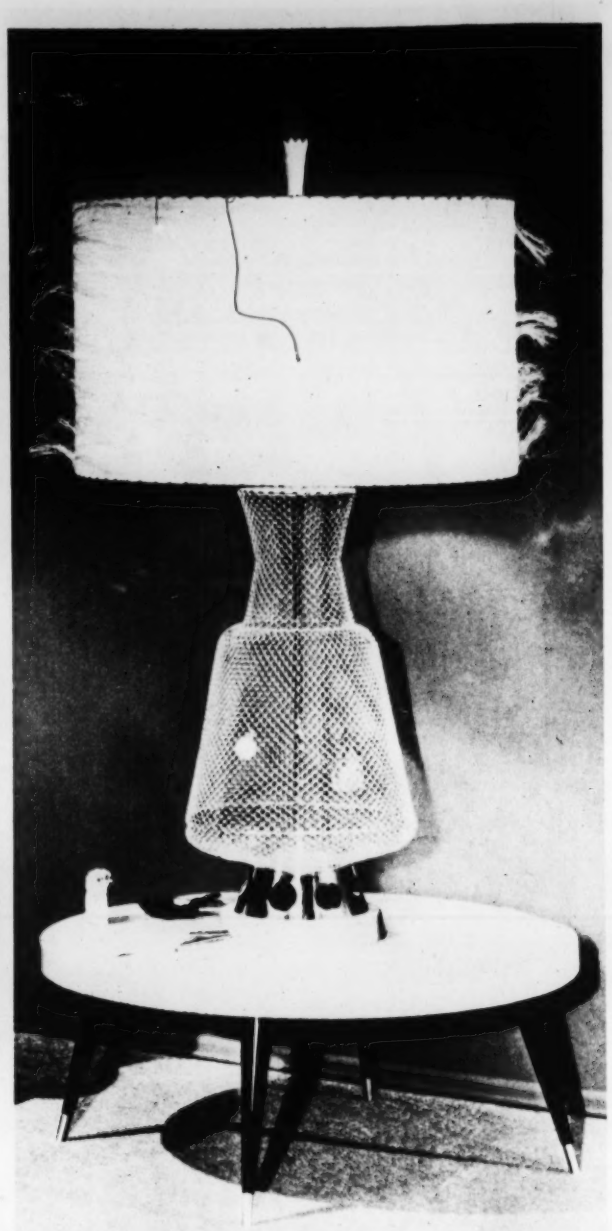

Furniture Designers Look Ahead—and Back—at Chicago Show

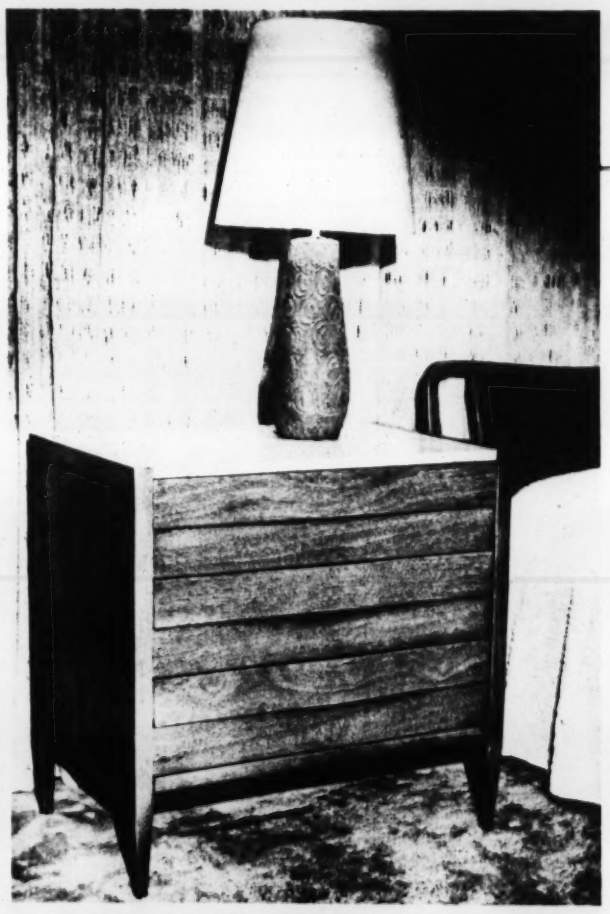

Manufacturers exhibiting at the summer wholesale home furnishings market in Chicago foresaw trends both toward new interest in traditional styles and toward contemporary lines. This room divider cabinet, from the contemporary camp, uses perforated paneling in doors and facing. Vertical slats of textured glass, rising from back of the cabinet, create effect of a partition.

Rattan dining table only 25 inches high and correspondingly low chairs exemplify the oriental influence in some of the new pieces. The chairs are designed so even tall persons can sit comfortably.

Marble-topped bedroom chest, with curved drawer fronts, was inspired by a water stand the same manufacturer produced 50 years ago. In contrast with the simple lines of the polished wood chest, the original water stand was baroque and heavy.

Among unusual chairs was this one designed for straddling as well as for conventional sitting. The designer, John Abbate, demonstrates how the chair's curved backrest comes in handy as an armrest in backward style sitting. The chair is of walnut, has foam rubber seat, two vertical brass rods supporting the back.

Tragedy at a Log-Rolling

Birler, Filling In on Program, Dies of a Heart Attack

Lawrence Bergeron, left, and Sam Harris watch each other's feet as they get set for contest. They wear spiked shoes for better grips on the spinning log. Pants legs have been cut off so as not to interfere with footwork.
International News Photo

ON THE THIRD and final day of the National Roleo Association tournament at Rockford, Illinois, an old-timers' log-rolling contest was scheduled as a feature event. No opponent showed up to compete against Sam Harris, 57 years old, of Kelso, Washington. In order not to disappoint the 500 spectators lining banks of the Rock River, Lawrence Bergeron, fire chief of Cloquet, Minnesota, and the world's birling champion of 1929, volunteered to take on Harris. Bergeron, also 57, and just re-elected president of the log-rolling association, declared that he and Sam Harris would show the younger birlers how to "get action out of those logs." Soon after the match began, Bergeron fell into the river and disappeared from view. A hurriedly summoned police detail dragged the stream for 25 minutes before his body was recovered. An autopsy showed Bergeron apparently had suffered a fatal heart attack in the first few moments of their contest.

Harris keeps his footing as Bergeron splashes into the water. He surfaced and pushed hair back from his face, then slipped back under. Officials of the contest, with spare logs on barge, calmly watch what they thought was a routine dunking.

Mrs. Bergeron, center, is consoled by wives of two contestants, Mrs. Robert Teske, left, and Mrs. Sam Harris, as police drag river for the body. The championship matches of the association were completed later. Twenty-one-year-old Jubiel Wickheim of British Columbia won the men's title.

Ike Says 'Yes' Again

Word He'll Run Makes G.O.P. Leaders Rejoice

Summoned to a conference at President Eisenhower's temporary office at Gettysburg, Republican congressional leaders wear serious expressions as they prepare to board small planes in Washington for the short flight to the Pennsylvania town. They, like most Americans, had been wondering if the President's recent operation would alter his previously announced decision to seek re-election. From left are Senator Styles Bridges, White House Aid Jack Martin, Representative Charles A. Halleck, House Minority Leader Joe Martin, Representatives Leo Allen and Leslie Arends.

After the meeting, beaming countenances of the President and the conferees reveal that all doubts about Mr. Eisenhower's political intentions are removed. William F. Knowland (right), Senate Republican leader, announced that during the conference "the President reiterated the fact that he will be a candidate for re-election."

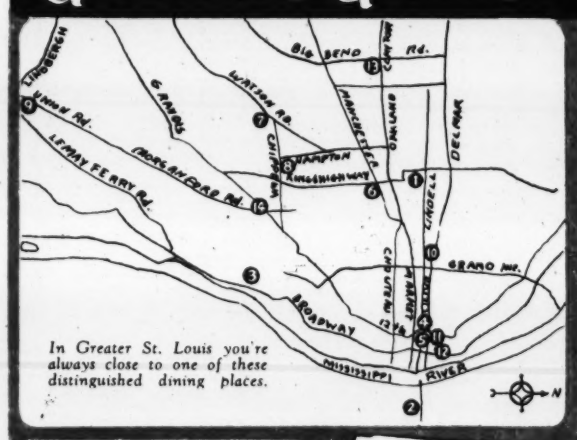

Associated Press Photos except as noted

Looking better than when he left the hospital a week earlier, even though thinner, President Eisenhower waves cheerily to news photographers as he leaves the conference at Gettysburg College. The President returned immediately to his nearby farm where he is recuperating from his intestinal operation.

A Wedding After All

Grace Kelly, Crosby, Sinatra in Movie "High Society"

1. Dexter Haven (Bing Crosby), a millionaire song writer, sings to the accompaniment of Trumpeter Louis "Satchmo" Armstrong and his band at the annual Jazz Festival in Newport, Rhode Island. Armstrong has come to the festival at Dexter's invitation.

2. Elsewhere in the fashionable resort, Dexter upsets his former wife, Tracy (Grace Kelly, second from left, in the last picture she made before being married to Prince Rainier of Monaco). Dexter has dropped in unexpectedly as she prepares to wed George Kittredge (John Lund). Tracy becomes even more disconcerted when Mike Connor (Frank Sinatra, right), and Liz Ambrie (Celeste Holm), reporter-photographer team for a gossip magazine, arrive to do a story on Tracy and her former and prospective husbands.

3. Taking Tracy sailing, Dexter succeeds in making her recall the happy days of their honeymoon aboard the boat.

4. Having sipped too much champagne at a pre-wedding party, Tracy, who has dismissed her renewed fondness for Dexter, impulsively goes for a midnight swim with Mike, who is entranced with her. Dexter and George are waiting when Mike carries Tracy home.

5. Dexter beats George to the punch, explains to Mike as he revives that the blow was actually a good deed, because George had been angry enough to take full vengeance out on Mike.

6. The next morning George announces that he is disgusted with everyone's behavior, especially Tracy's. This causes Tracy to realize she does not love George and their wedding, scheduled for that afternoon, is called off. As Dexter sympathizes with Tracy, whom he has always loved, she realizes that she could love only him, and they are remarried at the ceremony that was originally planned for Tracy and George. Mike and Liz, who have fallen in love meanwhile, cancel their magazine story plans.

A BOLT OVER BROOKLYN

During an early morning thunderstorm, a bolt of lightning with numerous vein-like branches illuminates the Brooklyn waterfront and the Brooklyn Bridge with eerie light. White streaks just above the East River at right were caused by lights of a boat that passed while the 11-second time exposure was being made from the roof of a newspaper building on Manhattan. The storm brought temporary relief to New York after a sweltering day of 90-degree temperatures.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH ACTION —AND ADVENTURE SECTION

JULY 15, 1956

Prince Valiant

IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR

BY HAROLD R FOSTER

Our Story: WITH PRINCE ARN WRAPPED UP BESIDE THE WARM BODY OF THE SLAIN DEER, HE IS IN NO DANGER OF FREEZING, AND GARM HAS ABOUT TWO HOURS TO FIND SHELTER.

AMID THE HUGE BOULDERS OF A ROCKFALL BENEATH A CLIFF GARM FINDS A SHELTERED NOOK.

HIGH OVERHEAD THE WIND ROARS AMONG THE PEAKS, WHILE IN THE SHELTERED PASS THE SNOW LAYS AN EVER-MOUNTING BLANKET OF WHITE.

EVEN BEFORE THE ROOF IS FINISHED IT IS COVERED DEEP WITH SNOW.

NOW GARM TAKES HIS STRIKING IRON AND FLINT AND STRIKES A SPARK. SOON HE HAS NURSED A TINY FLAME INTO A CRACKLING BLAZE.

THEN HE SETS OUT TO FIND ARN. OMINOUS TRACKS IN THE SNOW SEND HIM BOUNDING FORWARD, PRAYING HE IS NOT TOO LATE.

HAL FOSTER

THE SCENT OF BLOOD HAS BROUGHT THE WOLVES FROM THEIR SHELTER, AND CAUTIOUSLY THEY MOVE FORWARD TOWARD THE MOUND OF SNOW WHERE ARN AND THE DEER ARE BURIED

NEXT WEEK:—The Long Vigil.

The Heart of JULIET JONES

SAM ROSE

JULIE IS ABOUT TO CHECK OUT OF THE SEAVIEW HOTEL AFTER ONE UNNERVING NIGHT...

MRS. MADDERN—WHERE DID THIS LOVELY OLD FURNITURE COME FROM? I MEAN—THE OTHER ROOMS—THEY'RE SO...SO...

THEY'RE 20TH CENTURY MODERN, MISS JONES—AT LEAST THAT'S WHAT THE CATALOG SAID: "INEXPENSIVE AND IN THE BEST OF TOMORROW'S TRADITION," I BELIEVE WAS THE WAY IT READ!

WHEN MY GRANDMA MADDERN GAVE THIS HOTEL TO ME, SHE SAID, "LOUISE—FOLKS TODAY WANT TO LIVE UP TO THE MINUTE." SO—UP INTO THE ATTIC WENT ALL THE ANCIENT DUST-CATCHERS...

AND IN THEIR PLACE—NEW THINGS—THE VERY LATEST...ALL BRIGHT AND SHINY. THEN CAN YOU GUESS WHAT HAPPENED TO THE SEAVIEW HOTEL?

NOTHING! PEOPLE STILL STAYED AWAY IN DROVES! BELIEVE IT OR NOT—YOU'RE THE FIRST PAYING CLIENT WE'VE HAD THIS SEASON, AND FRANKLY, I WONDER WHY YOU CAME!

MY FATHER STAYED HERE FORTY YEARS AGO. THAT'S WHY I COULDN'T FIGURE OUT—

HEAVENS—I'M NOT THE HOTELKEEPER. YOUR FATHER KNEW! I'M HER GRANDDAUGHTER. WELL—YOU'LL BE WANTING TO CHECK OUT NOW.

I'LL NOT BE WANTING TO DO ANYTHING OF THE SORT! I'M STAYING!

YOU'RE—BUT WHY?

BECAUSE I LIKE THE VIEW...MY BED IS PERFECTLY COMFORTABLE...AND—I LIKE YOU, MISS MADDERN! BESIDES, I THINK I'D LIKE TO HELP YOU MAKE SEAVIEW HOTEL A PAYING PROPOSITION!
